PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 101st CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Wednesday, September 27, 1989

The House met at 12 noon.

The Reverend Hugh L. Baker, Jr., First United Methodist Church, New Iberia, LA, offered the following prayer:

O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is Your name in all the Earth. Before the mountains were brought forth or ever You had formed the Earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting You are God. Give us grace to live our days within the framework of Your blessed will. May the freedom that we ask for ourselves be the freedom we seek for our neighbors. May the crown of liberty, which our great Nation wears, be the model for the kind of liberty we seek for other nations. Let justice roll down like waters and integrity like an ever-flowing stream. Forgive us our sins as we ultimately forgive those who sin against us. To Your name be praise and glory, world without end. Amen.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the Chair's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. MACHTLEY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 304, nays 117, not voting 11, as follows:

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Hallen, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 2835. An act to provide for the relocation of certain facilities at the Gateway National Recreation Area, Sandy Hook, NJ, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested, bills of the House of the following titles:

H.R. 2771. An act to reauthorize the National Flood Insurance Program and the Federal Crime Insurance Program through September 30, 1991;

H.R. 2990. An act making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and related agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1990, and for other purposes; and

H.R. 2939. An act making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1990, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate insists upon its amendment to the bill (H.R. 2990) "An act making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, Health, and Human Services, and Education, and related agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1990, and for other purposes", requests a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. HARKIN, Mr. BYRD, Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr. BURDICK, Mr. INOUYE, Mr. BUMPERS, Mr. REID, Mr. ADAMS, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. HATFIELD, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. RUDMAN, Mr. MCCLURE, Mr. COCHRAN, and Mr. GRAMM, to be conferees on the part of the Senate.

The message also announced that the Senate insists upon its amendment to the bill (H.R. 2939) "An act making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1990, and for other purposes", requests a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. LEAHY, Mr. INOUYE, Mr. JOHNSTON, Mr. DECONCINI, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. HARKIN, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. BYRD, Mr. KASTEN, Mr. HATFIELD, Mr. D'AMATO, Mr. RUDMAN, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. NICKLES, and Mr. STEVENS, to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

THE REVEREND HUGH L. BAKER, JR.

(Mr. BAKER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BAKER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to express my appreciation to the Chaplain and to the leadership for this accommodation in arranging for our guest Chaplain for the day. It is a particularly unique opportunity for me to rise and address the House in the fact that the gentleman who gave our opening prayer is a man who by his service to the U.S. Navy and by his service to the Methodist Church for over 40 years has exemplified his commitment to God and country better than any other I know.

It is my pleasure to welcome to the House today my father, the pastor of the First United Methodist Church from New Iberia, LA, the Honorable Reverend H.L. Baker.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON H.R. 1312, DOMESTIC VOLUNTEER SERVICE ACT AMENDMENTS OF 1989

Mr. OWENS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 1312) to revise and extend the programs of the Domestic Volunteer Service Act of 1973, with Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York? The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. HAWKINS, OWENS of New York, KILDEE, MARTINEZ, SAWYER, and PAYNE of New Jersey, Mrs. UNSOELD, and Messrs. GOODLING, TAUKE, BARTLETT, and GRANDY.

MCNULTY SUPPORTS ROSTENKOWSKI/GEPHARDT SUBSTITUTE

(Mr. MCNULTY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MCNULTY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the proposal by DAN ROSTENKOWSKI and DICK GEPHARDT to give a tax break to middle-income Americans, while at the same time reducing the Federal budget deficit. The simple closing of a loophole—which currently permits the wealthiest among us to be taxed at a lower rate than middle-income Americans—can accomplish this.

The enactment of this proposal will increase savings, help families to buy a first home, help pay for college educations, and reduce the budget deficit by about $25 billion in the first 5 years. That's the kind of positive action the American people would like to see from Congress. Let us not disappoint them.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION TO CREATE A NATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL INSTITUTE

(Mr. SAXON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SAXON. Mr. Speaker, the age of the environmental ambulance squad must end.

For years we have found ourselves suddenly reacting to clean up the environmental messes that we have dumped on our own doorstep.

Today, I ask my colleagues to join with me, in taking the first step to change all that.

Yesterday, I introduced legislation, House Concurrent Resolution 202, which calls for the creation of a National Environmental Institute.

This institute would tap into our Nation's great scientific intellect and coordinate it, and enable us to finally adopt environmental policies which anticipate problems before they fester and explode.

We do not need another unexpected oilspill, another shocking epidemic of dolphin deaths, or another toxic waste surprise before we begin to take charge of the environmental challenges which, up until this time, have taken charge of us.

Mr. Speaker, our national institute will enable us to bolster the education of graduate and undergraduate students, to offer training to those in the policymaking arm of government, and to sponsor public awareness campaigns.

More important, it will be one of the greatest environmental data banks in the world.

It is a first step, but for the sake of all of us, a critically important one.

DO WHAT IS RIGHT: BRING BACK THE IRA'S

(Mr. GEJDENSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I do not take this floor often for the 1-minutes, but this Chamber is going to have a choice tomorrow, a verdict, so to speak, on Leona Helmsley. She said that taxes are only for little people.

I guess we are going to make that decision. If we vote for the President's proposal, we will benefit 3.3 percent of the public with 80 percent of the benefit, and like with other tax-cut proposals, the costs will come back to middle and lower income Americans.

Leona Helmsley said that taxes are only for little people. Is that what we are going to do in this Chamber? Are we going to cut taxes for the richest people in the country so we can pass more burden on to middle and lower class Americans? I certainly hope not.

We ought to do what we know is right, what we know will benefit the broadest segment of America by bringing back the IRA's.

Do not let Leona Helmsley be right. Let us not just tax poor and middle-class people.

THERE IS JOY IN CHICAGOLAND TODAY—THE CUBS WIN

(Mr. CRANE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, the Sun shines on the Chicago Cubs today. It has been 5 years since the skies above Wrigley Field have been this bright.

With two outs in the last inning last night in Montreal, Mitch Williams blazed a third-strike pitch past Mike Fitzgerald to bring the National League East Championship back to the north side of Chicago for the first time in 5 years.

It was the initial step in what Cub players and fans alike believe will be a march to the team's first pennant since 1945, and first World Series title since 1908.

We Cub fans are patient folk. But the blood is now zipping through our veins as we see a baseball world championship captured by a Chicago team for the first time since 1917. For the first time in 81 years the Cubs will reign as world champions.

It has been noted by others that team effort was the formula used by the Cubs of 1989 to bring a title to the north side of Chicago by a team some so-called experts predicted would finish last.

Manager Don Zimmer is the genius who led and motivated team members to a first-place finish. Zimmer, his coaching staff, and all of the players are to be congratulated for this shining moment of success. Others, too, aided in the victory drive, such as Harry Carey with his never-ending enthusiasm and optimism for the Cub cause.

All of Chicagoland, as well as Cub fans worldwide, delight in this success story. With the division title in hand, a World Series victory is but two steps down the path: First the pennant, then the series.

AN EXHILARATING DAY FOR THE CUBS

(Mr. MICHEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MICHEL. Mr. Speaker, holy cow, I am one of the happiest fellows on this floor today, because I, too, am one of those long-suffering Cub fans.

Mr. Speaker, I guess there is a life beyond the legislative duties that we perform here, and certainly the Cubbies have been part of my life from childhood on.

The last time the Cubs were in the World Series I was overseas in Europe waiting to come home. We were listening to the Cubs and the Tigers replay at 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning.

We have agonized over this thing over the last few years. The last 2 years I have gone to spring training. I impressed upon Jim Frey and Don Zimmer the need for bunting that ball once in a while, particularly when the pitchers could not do it, when we needed that sacrifice bunt. I think we have put it all together today, and as my good friend, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CRANE], has said, we certainly want to congratulate the Cubs, the management, and all the players for doing such an outstanding job with a bunch of rookies. It is just an exhilarating day for old BOB to come here and say these things in behalf of the Cubs.

JOHN WAYNE IS ROLLING OVER IN HIS GRAVE

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, I, too, am very glad for the Cubs. I just hope the Japanese do not buy them.

Two years ago Sony bought CBS Records. Today, Congress, the Sony Corp. bought Columbia Pictures. John Wayne is rolling over in his grave. The biggest film library in the world, 40,000 movies, are now owned by the Japanese; in addition, 27,000 hours of hit television programs such as the film and the series "Room 227," "Married With Children," and "Who's the Boss."

Think about it now: What is next? Are they going to buy ABC, CBS, NBC? Will the evening news be beamed over from Tokyo, America? Is that what is coming? Think about it.

Nomura, Japan's leading securities firm, is 20 times bigger than Merrill Lynch now. Nippon Telephone & Telegraph is bigger than IBM, AT&T, General Motors, and General Electric combined.

There is no doubt in my opinion who will be the boss. It seems that Congress and Washington is evidently very comfortable in watching reruns now owned by the Japanese.

I hope the Cubs stay in Chicago and they continue to be owned by the fine people from Chicago, and I think a lot of people would like to see them win.

PRESERVING THE AVIATION TRUST FUND

(Mr. CLINGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and entend his remarks.)

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to alert Members that later today an amendment will be offered by the chairman of the Public Works Committee, Mr. ANDERSON, to preserve the aviation trust fund.

His amendment is very simple. It requires that Federal excise taxes collected on airline tickets and aviation fuel continue to flow into the aviation trust fund.

For those of you unfamiliar with the trust fund, it is a self-supporting account, those revenues are derived from a dedicated tax. The aviation trust fund supports capital improvements at our Nation's airports and airway facilities.

This same trust fund concept also applies to over 20 other federally managed programs, including the highway trust fund and the Social Security trust fund. Dedicated Federal excise taxes are collected, deposited to a specific account, and spent in support of a particular array of programs.

Another important feature common to all trust funds is their inability to draw on General Treasury revenues. If a trust fund account is depleted, then its affiliated programs come to a halt.

With that as background, you should be aware that the reconciliation bill contains a provison that diverts dedicated user taxes into the Treasury.

This violates the principle of trust fund supported programs. It is a dangerous precedent. If this provision is allowed to stand, it threatens the very integrity of all trust fund supported programs and exposes them to future raids.

I urge all Members to support the Anderson amendment to maintain the integrity of the aviation trust fund.

IRA'S: THE RIGHT CHOICE

(Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, this House will soon have a choice to make between two revenue plans which are supposed to stimulate savings and investment. The capital gains plan favored by President Bush rewards past, rather than future investments, and is not likely, based on the historical record, to contribute to an increase in the pool of national savings. It is certain, however, that the Bush plan will contribute to an increase in the national debt.

The Democratic alternative, on the other hand, utilizes the proven tool of IRA's to provide a solid boost to our savings rate. IRA's work, on that the evidence is clear. By encouraging middle-income Americans to get back into the IRA market by providing an opportunity to use IRA's to help pay college tuition bills or make the down payment on a home, the Democratic plan combines good economic policy with good tax policy. In addition, the Democratic alternative is truly self-financing. Providing the tax relief associated with extending the deductibility of IRA's will not contribute to the national debt.

Mr. Speaker, the essence of governing is the making of choices. When we choose between the competing plans to advance our economy let us be clear: The President's plan benefits a few at the expense of a great many. The Democratic plan will benefit many and pay for itself. I believe most Americans will agree, the Democratic alternative is the right choice.

CAPITAL GAINS IS GOOD FOR FARMERS

(Mr. GUNDERSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GUNDERSON. Mr. Speaker, to my good friend from Ohio, if he wants to find a way to keep the Chicago Cubs American, I would ask that he find a way to keep more capital in the hands of American business rather than in the hands of their government. While we are not dealing with corporations here today, we are dealing with the capital gains reduction for individuals. I happen to come from a rural district, a district that has some 30,000 farmers. I would like to tell my colleagues what capital gains means to those farmers, not a big farmers but a small farmers.

Let us say he has 20 head of cattle that he has raised from birth. He decides to sell them for $600 a head. That works out to $12,000 in taxable gain. Under the 28 percent present capital gains law, that means $3,300 in taxes owed. If we can pass the capital gains reduction we are talking about here, there will be a 30-percent exclusion. That is $3,600, and then all of a sudden instead of paying $3,300 on the sale of those 20 cows, he will pay $2,300 in taxes. That means this small farmer with only 20 head of cattle being sold will be able to keep an additional $1,000.

This is not a rich man's tax. This is a family farm tax, and that is why the National Milk Producers Federation in their most recent publication said this:

> Farmers would benefit from the Ways and Means proposal if it is adopted in two ways. First, by the overall exclusion which includes assets such as breeding stock, and, second, by a provision which will allow 25% of health insurance premiums to be deducted by taxpayers.

MORE SUPPORT FOR BANNING ASSAULT WEAPONS

(Mr. MAZZOLI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MAZZOLI. Mr. Speaker, nearly 2 weeks have passed since a gunman in Louisville killed 8 of his former fellow employees, wounded seriously 14 more before taking his own life at the scene.

Family, friends, and the community still grieve for the dead. The wounded are still trying to get their lives back in order. It will be no easy task.

The only redeeming aspect of this horrible tragedy is that public opinion is coalescing around the view—which I hold—that we need to do something, and soon, to curtail the availability and use of semi-automatic, assault-style weapons which have no legitimate sporting or target use.

Yesterday, I cited a recent resolution of the Louisville Chamber of Commerce that such weapons have no place in our community.

Earlier, Governor Wilkinson, Mayor Abramson, Judge/Executive Sloane, and State Representatives Burch and Ward announced their support of a ban on assault weapons.

And, just yesterday, the Jefferson County Fiscal Court unanimously adopted a similar position. I want to commend Commissioners Gorman, Maze, and Owens on their stand.

I hope Congress will move forward on providing legislation and will send a responsible and sensible assault-weapon bill to the President soon.

SUPPORT A LOWER CAPITAL GAINS TAX

(Mr. BUECHNER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BUECHNER. Mr. Speaker, I notice the most often-quoted person in the democratic rhetoric is Leona Helmsley. She was convicted so what she said was wrong. As a practical matter, the question of who are rich people and who are poor people, ask people who are in the middle class and they will say I am poor and anybody that makes more money than me is a rich person.

By the way, if people without money are not given an incentive to invest in America, who is going to invest in America?

You know, there is an amazing change of religiosity we have had here. DAN ROSTENKOWSKI and DICK GEPHARDT just a few years ago, in fact since the Cubs won their last division title, were all for reducing the capital gains to 20 percent, and all of a sudden there has been a leap of faith, coming out and saying we do not have the confidence to instill investment in America.

But the Japanese do, the British do. The Japanese and all of the other countries in this world that understand America is a good place to invest want to get in there. We do not encourage capital savings. Foreign countries do.

Let us do something good for America. Let us reduce capital gains.

FULFILLING THE AMERICAN DREAM

(Mr. SYNAR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SYNAR. Mr. Speaker, what is the American dream? It is to give your children a college education, buy your first home, and to save money to make your retirement years safe and secure. The plan to give a tax break on capital gains won't go far to help people from Muskogee or Sallisaw achieve the American dream.

The choice between the capital gains tax break and the Democratic proposal is not a difficult decision. It is a simple choice between a proposal which provides only limited benefit and the Democratic proposal which benefits a larger percentage of Americans and the country as a whole.

The true Democratic proposal will revitalize savings and long-term investment, promote education, encourage homeownership, and reduce the deficit.

That is the best one-stop shopping bargain in a long time.

CAPITAL GAINS REDUCTION: AMERICAN HOMEOWNERS

(Mr. KYL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KYL. Mr. Speaker, up to now not much has been said in this debate about capital gains and the effect on the average American family who are trying to save and buy their first home, and maybe it is because the first-time homeowners can benefit significantly from a reduction in the capital gains rate. Let me give a specific example.

Consider the young American family that has been putting away some money each month for some time. They are not wealthy, but of average income. They have listened to America's leaders, who have all declared themselves in favor of greater individual savings and investment.

After a while, this family's modest investments in stocks, bonds or a mutual fund have appreciated to the point where they can be rewarded for their long-term thinking. They want to cash in the investments and use the money for down payment on their first home.

But will they be financially able to buy it? Their investments have done a little better than inflation, but that does not help much because they will be taxed at 28 percent or more on the unadjusted gains.

That means that this typical young family will likely wind up paying a third or more on their real capital gain, in constant dollars. That is a large amount of money and it may mean that they still cannot buy their first house.

We have said for years that every American family should be able to own their own home, and that Government should help in meeting that goal. Yet more and more young couples now find homeownership financially beyond their reach.

A lower capital gains rate, with indexing, is a positive step that can make that dream of homeownership a reality.

PENNSYLVANIA'S MODEL CHILD CARE PROGRAM FOR STATE EMPLOYEES

(Mrs. SCHROEDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, what America's children need are more leaders like Gov. Robert P. Casey of Pennsylvania.

Since becoming Governor in 1987, Robert Casey has put in place a model child care program for State employees.

But Governor Casey didn't stop at child care. Understanding that family leave is a crucial component of any successful child care policy, he expanded Pennsylvania's leave policy so that both fathers and mothers could take an unpaid job guaranteed leave of up to 6 months.

Still Governor Casey went one step further. To encourage parents to take the leave, children enter the child care centers at the age of 6 months.

And just this week, he endorsed a Pennsylvania version of family and medical leave legislation.

All of this action for families from a probusiness Governor who knows that when families and children thrive, so do businesses.

He understands that by vastly expanding investments in child care for parents struggling to enter the workforce, in early childhood health and nutrition, and in programs that help all families, he is investing in future economic growth.

Mr. Speaker, I hope Governor Casey's leadership on work and family issues is contagious.

SUPPORT URGED FOR CAPITAL GAINS PROVISIONS

(Mr. STEARNS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, I stand before you today to express my support for the capital gains provisions of the budget reconciliation bill that will be considered over the next several days. My support for the rate reduction over the Gephart plan IRA provisions is easily explained—the reduction in capital gains will help more middle-class Americans over the long run.

The proposal to expand IRA's and increase taxes is not a good deal for working middle-income people. Instead of decreasing the tax burden of this group, the plan seeks to increase their tax liability. At age 59, when the IRA would be cashed in, the rate of tax on it would be even higher, then leaving absolutely no advantage for the taxpayer. If Congress is truly interested in helping middle-class Americans, we cannot in good conscience approve such a plan. The capital gains provisions are important to this group, and we should adopt the language passed by the Ways and Means Committee.

The capital gains exclusion is good policy that will help Americans and our economy. It is a policy that I intend to support, and I encourage my colleagues to do the same.

AMENDMENT PENDING TO RESTORE FUNDS FOR AVIATION

(Mr. ANDERSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ANDERSON. Mr. Speaker, I want to alert Members that when the House resumes consideration of the budget reconciliation bill today, I will be offering a very important amendment.

My amendment would strike a provision in the Ways and Means Committee title that diverts almost $1 billion from the aviation trust fund to the general fund.

Briefly, the diversion is wrong. It's bad public policy and it's counter-productive.

It puts our airways at risk; it jeopardizes aviation projects and it will make airport congestion a common occurrence.

Furthermore, the diversion provision is not necessary to achieve the budget revenue targets.

My amendment, which is deficit neutral, reflects the good faith compact Congress made with the American public.

Those who say working families should not be subsidizing aviation users are dead wrong. Working families are aviation users.

My amendment will be considered after the section 89 amendment—around mid to late afternoon.

I urge an aye vote on the amendment.

SUPPORT URGED FOR JENKINS-ARCHER CAPITAL GAINS TAX CUT

(Mr. DOUGLAS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support the Jenkins-Archer proposal to cut the capital gains tax. It is a common sense, bipartisan plan that will increase investments and create jobs. The liberal Democrat alternative is the same old, tax and spend, song and dance.

Lower taxes on capital gains will increase investors' willingness to sell their capital assets. Greater realization of capital gains will translate into increased revenue for the Federal Government.

Liberal Democrats have tried to turn the debate into a class war, by stating that the capital gains proposal will only benefit the rich. Seventy-four percent of those with capital gains have ordinary income under $50,000. The bipartisan cut will help small business people, family farmers, and small investors, and will help spur world-wide competitiveness.

Look around the world at our competitors who do not tax capital gains at all: West Germany, Italy, Holland, South Korea, Hong Kong. Look who has lower capital gains rates than we do: Japan, Canada, France, Sweden.

The issue is simple: The liberal Democrats want to raise taxes, and the Republicans want to cut them.

SONY'S PURCHASE OF COLUMBIA PICTURES PRESENTS ANTITRUST PROBLEMS

(Mrs. BENTLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. BENTLEY. Mr. Speaker, Sony Corp.'s purchase today of Columbia Pictures is a challenge to American antitrust laws. I must ask the question whether Sony's integration of this industry is a violation of traditional monopoly law in this country? The Justice Department hopefully is looking into this purchase.

Sony, the largest producer of VCR's in the world, is now in a position to control a major portion of the telecommunications/entertainment market from film through television to distribution and replay technology. Sony also owns CBS Records which adds to its power in the entertainment field.

Up until this time, this kind of power play was unthinkable inside the United States. Inside Japan, it is the way business is done.

This country now could become a battleground for multinational corporations to vertically integrate, not only in entertainment, but also in manufacturing and services.

Although we have become accustomed to importing many of our consumer products, we should determine whether imported business practices and values are contrary to our free enterprise system.

It is one thing to buy their consumer products. It is another thing to buy a different set of values from the ones which made this country great. The purchase of Columbia must not be considered business as usual because it could be a grab of power in a very strategic area.

MEMBERS ASKED TO VOTE AGAINST CAPITAL GAINS TAX CUT

(Mr. SABO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, tomorrow we will cast a very important vote. We have two distinct options from which to choose. One gives another tax break to the very rich and adds to the budget deficit. The other helps average Americans and reduces the deficit.

I urge my colleagues to vote against the capital gains tax cut plan. It's bad tax policy, bad economic policy, and bad budget policy.

If we are really serious about reducing the deficit, we should not make the job more difficult in the years ahead. Cutting the deficit will be tough enough. We should not make it even tougher. The capital gains tax cut will soon be a major revenue loser. Then we'll either have to live with a bigger deficit or face serious pressure to raise the average taxpayer's taxes.

We should reject this unwise, unfair, and irresponsible proposal and adopt a better, fairer, and more responsible alternative.

LEGITIMATE DEBATE DEGENERATES INTO FIGHT FOR POWER WITHIN THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

(Mr. LIGHTFOOT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Speaker, there has been a lot of talk about capital gains tomorrow and a lot of talk about who the rich are that are receiving all of the benefits and breaks.

I received yesterday a letter from a lady in my district who at the age of 60 was divorced. She worked for the next 10 years to save and scrape and put every penny aside that she could into stocks and bonds. She now wants to convert that into CD's that bear interest so she can retire. She is now told by her accountant that Uncle Sam because of catastrophic and capital gains will take 38 percent of her money, which puts her back into the poverty category.

Is this woman rich? No.

What really I guess has a knot in my stomach this morning is that what started out as a legitimate debate between two philosophical ideas on capital gains has degenerated into a fight for power within the Democratic Party and it makes me sick to think that so someone can say, "I am the leader," we are going to sacrifice millions of middle-class citizens in this country by sticking taxes to them again and again and again because it sounds quick to say, "We are just going to stick the rich," on the 10 o'clock news.

CAPITAL GAINS MIRAGE

(Mr. PRICE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PRICE. Mr. Speaker, by now we are all quite familiar with the capital gains issue before us. I want to take this opportunity to outline my own concerns about the 2-year reduction in the capital gains rate that President Bush is supporting—a one-shot, short-term proposal that could not possibly achieve the long-term goals of increased investment and productivity that its supporters claim to espouse.

We all know that the Bush proposal will bust the budget—to the tune of $21 billion over the next 10 years. This idea defies common sense. Is the President seriously proposing to generate capital for investment by forcing the Government to borrow more of it? Can any Member of this body claim that this 2-year tax giveaway is really about fostering long-term economic growth?

There are some clear principles that Members on both sides of the aisle should embrace on any economic issue before us. First, and foremost, any proposal must meet the test of long-term deficit reduction. Every dollar of the Federal deficit is a dollar of capital lost to American businesses. President Bush's proposal simply encourages churning of assets to produce a short-term revenue windfall with no long-term benefit to capital formation or increased savings rates. Over the next decade the Federal deficit would be increased by some $21 billion, digging us even more deeply into the fiscal hole we are in, and increasing our children's future tax burden. The President's plan flunks the deficit reduction test badly. By way of contrast, the leadership alternative dedicates $23 billion to deficit reduction over the next 5 years.

Second, it is patently unfair that the benefits of a cut should go primarily to the wealthy who not only were major beneficiaries of the 1986 rate cuts, but whose real incomes have increased more over the past 10 years than any other segment of the population.

The President's proposal would violate the principle of tax reform that reduced the top rates in return for ending special tax loopholes. Have we forgotten that Ronald Reagan sent to Congress a tax reform proposal that noted that "the preferential tax rate for capital gains * * * distorts investment decisions * * * and impedes the efficiency of a market based upon free market principles"? Now perhaps President Reagan overstated his case: I see considerable merit in indexing capital gains so that taxes are not incurred on inflationary increases. Perhaps a tightly written incentive for investment in new ventures could be justified, and I also see merit in providing a preference for timber, an industry that requires an inordinately long investment period and that provides many environmental benefits as well. But the short-sighted profit-taking proposal before us has none of these merits. There is a time and a place for a capital gains adjustment as part of an overall budget package that would put our fiscal house in order and stimulate investment and growth. But the proposal before us would make such an agreement less likely, not more so.

To illustrate the folly of the Bush proposal, let me elaborate on the possible impact on two important sectors of the economy—timber production and home sales. A timber grower from my State recently told me that he favored the Bush proposal, but only on the assumption that someone, somewhere down the line, would rewrite it. He has grave reservations that it might result in the devastation of our country's private woodlands as landowners rush to cash in during the 2-year window. Similarly, in Sunday's Washington Post, Ken Harney eloquently outlined the potential havoc this proposal could wreak in real estate markets across the country due to the incentive to cash in. We are just beginning to liquidate the housing that is now Government property because of the savings and loan disaster. This temporary capital gains cut could glut the market in many areas and help ensure that these houses are sold at depressed prices—costing the taxpayers even more than anticipated 1 month ago to maintain the solvency of the Federal deposit insurance funds.

The alternative offered by the Democratic leadership surpasses the Bush plan on all of these criteria—fiscal responsibility, fairness, stimulation of savings and investment. It is a commonsense proposal that—by restoring favorable tax treatment of Individual Retirement Accounts and allowing these IRA's to be used for educational expenses and first-time home purchase—will give a tax break to the middle class Americans who are the backbone of our economy. Not only that, but it reduces the deficit not just the first year but every year.

President Bush and the Republicans are blowing a lot of smoke about a tax increase. As they well know, the Democratic proposal does not increase the present top tax rate of 33 percent. It simply ensures that the wealthiest Americans will pay that rate. Individuals with taxable incomes greater than $45,000 already pay the 33 percent rate, but because of a quirk in the tax reform act, individuals with taxable incomes over $93,000 or couples with incomes over $155,000 revert to a lower marginal rate. The Democratic proposal does not increase tax rates but merely removes this loophole. In so doing, it enables us to reduce the deficit, provide tax relief for ordinary Americans, and restore fairness to the Tax Code. For some reason Mr. Bush has a problem with making the wealthiest Americans pay the same tax rate as those who make less than they do. He calls this a tax increase. I call it common sense.

The Democratic proposal also recognizes the benefits of a capital gains rate differential, capping capital gains rates at 28 percent. This will lower capital gains taxes for those now paying income taxes at 33 percent, and maintain a 28-percent capital gains rate for the richest taxpayers who now will also pay 33 percent on their ordinary income. Moreover, this is a permanent preference for capital gains, rather than a 2-year incentive to unload assets.

The bottom line is simple. The Democratic proposal makes long-term changes that will address critical problems. It provides incentives for all Americans to play a role in stimulating economic growth. It supports two pillars of the American dream: Buying a first home and paying for our children's education. It also corrects the largest remaining injustice of our post tax reform Tax Code. What is more, this plan will reduce Government borrowing and the deficit—permanently.

The Bush plan is a short term gimmick that continues the borrow-and-spend patterns that created our deficits. It encourages investors to make decisions based on a 2-year tax window rather than sound economics, and it leaves behind more bad debts for our children to pay.

I urge my colleagues to reject the flashy, quick-fix scheme in this bill and to support deficit reduction, tax relief for ordinary Americans, and investment in our Nation's future—vote for the leadership alternative.

COMMEMORATIVE BILLS SEEN AS WASTE OF TIME AND MONEY

(Mr. HOLLOWAY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOLLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 244, legislation which I have introduced to abolish the time-consuming and generally meaningless practice of recognizing various days, weeks, and causes through commemorative bills.

Mr. Speaker, there is no doubt that certain commemorative legislation is worthwhile. However, most of the commemorative bills many Members of Congress, have supported border on the ridiculous. It is time to do away with the practice of recognizing such cases as "Smoke Detector Day," "National Tap Dance Day," "Dairy Goat Awareness Week" and "Snow White Week." Let me acknowledge that I have cosponsored commemorative measures in the past. I do not intend to do so again. The vast majority of commemorative bills are a waste of time and money. It's gotten out of hand. Congress now spends thousands and thousands of dollars in printing costs and hours upon hours of staff time tending to commemorative legislation which means little and accomplishes even less.

In the last Congress, commemorative bills accounted for nearly one-third of all the legislation enacted into law.

Mr. Speaker, we have serious things to talk about in this great body. We should do so—and we should stop wasting our time on commemorative bills. That is why I urge my colleagues to show the general public that we mean business, that we are not content to waste our time. I urge my colleagues to cosponsor and strongly support House Resolution 244.

SUMMIT MEETINGS ON THE ISSUE OF EDUCATION IN AMERICA

(Mr. OWENS of New York asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OWENS of New York. Mr. Speaker, we all welcome the summit of the President and the Governors on the very important issue of education in America.

However, at the beginning of this summit I would like to ask the Governors to examine their own formulas for the distribution of assistance to school districts in their States. In too many States there is an open, blatant, and official discrimination against poor children and minority children who live in the inner cities. Governors and State legislators have for years cynically manipulated State aid formulas. They use school attendance instead of school enrollment as a basis for the distribution of State aid to schools.

This emphasis on attendance clearly favors middle class, suburban, and rural districts while it penalizes the poor inner-city districts where the aid is needed most. Most knowledgeable citizens are aware of this longstanding pattern of official discrimination.

I ask the Governors to take a strong look at this during the summit. The moral and practical answer to this evil is a formula based on per capita distribution of aid, as we do in most Federal legislation. Let us ask the Governors to lead the summit with a resolution to correct this gross injustice. In each State where they still practice it, they can make this change.

Mr. Speaker, let that be one of the first steps they take toward the improvement of education in America.

CAPITAL GAINS TAX CUT WOULD IMPACT THE ECONOMY, CUT SAVINGS

(Mr. CARDIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, the proponents of capital gains are bringing forward this proposal in order to do something about the poor savings ratio in the country, and yet their proposal would do just the reverse. We all know that the No. 1 problem we have in regard to our savings ratio is the deficit of this Nation, and yet the capital gains proposal will add to the deficit of this country.

The proposal that is before us provides a 2-year window, which will cause the turning of assets rather than the long-range planning that is necessary for this Nation and our capital investments. It provides for holding assets for 1 year. That is not the type of savings that we want for the future of America.

The impact on the real estate community will be adverse in that we will have a lot of assets that are going to be sold.

Have we considered that in regard also to the fact that the savings and loan bailout will require savings and loan assets also be brought to the marketplace?

It is unfair in the way it is framed in that it will help the wealthy. That is not the type of proposal we should be considering.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to take the capital gains provisions out of reconciliation.

A BEAUTIFUL DAY IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD

(Mr. PORTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I had intended to lecture you this morning on the failure of our budget process. I wanted to assess blame and rail against our individual and collective inadequacies. But I find, Mr. Speaker, that I cannot.

Because this morning the sun shines brighter, the grass is greener, and all is right with the world, for the Cubs, Mr. Speaker, have clinched the National League East Division title.

At the start of the season, no one anywhere said they could do it. No one, except Cub fans. We believed in our hearts, as we do every year, that the Cubs really will win it all.

So, Mr. Speaker, no matter how difficult things get here, you can expect smiles from the Chicago contingent, and even more when the Cubs take San Francisco, and still more when they win the World Series.

Have a nice day, Mr. Speaker.

TAX RELIEF FOR INVESTORS OR TAX RELIEF FOR AMERICAN FAMILIES?

(Mr. DURBIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. Speaker, the debate on the reconciliation bill is going to be a real test. The test is whether Congress is really listening to the concerns of American families.

I have had about 300 town meetings in my district in downstate Illinois. I have not heard people come forward and say they are worried about whether we are going to cut taxes for the sale of stocks and bonds, but I have heard many people say they are concerned about whether or not their children will ever be able to buy a home. They are concerned also about whether they will ever be able to pay for the college education expenses of their kids. These are the basic things people worry about over the kitchen table at night.

So why is the Republican Party and their proposal opposed to helping American families pay for their share of the American dream? Under the Republican proposal investors would receive a tax break but the average American family would receive no help in paying for college and house purchase expenses.

Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, it is the same old story. The Republican proposal is going to bring smiles to the investors on Wall Street; the Democratic alternative focuses on tax relief for American families living on Main Street.

THE NEED FOR ANOTHER ALTERNATIVE ON RECONCILIATION

(Mr. SMITH of Vermont asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Vermont. Mr. Speaker, we have before us one of the most important bills this year—the reconciliation bill supporting programs for everyone from infants and seniors to farmers, veterans, and the very needy.

By acting on this bill now and addressing the deficit in a responsible manner, we can still avoid the worst case scenario of across-the-board Gramm-Rudman cuts.

Because of the bill's importance, it is disturbing that debate has become overshadowed by what amounts to a political power play over a proposed reduction in capital gains taxes.

There are lies, damn lies, and statistics.

The game playing over this issue has spawned smoke-and-mirror distortion of facts. Worse, it is now limiting our ability to come up with the very best option for Americans.

We are given only two options to act upon—what is in the bill and the so-called Democratic alternative—both of which are not perfect. We are not allowed debate on any other alternative—or a blend of the two options—that might be better for the broad middle class of this country, the people who pay the bills and make the country run.

The deficit represents a chilling threat to this Nation. It is unfortunate that it is being held hostage with this bill because of political game playing. And its disturbing that we are not allowed to come up with the best alternative for capital gains and IRA's that might help the most Americans the most.

WHO BENEFITS FROM THE BUSH PROPOSAL?

(Mr. PEASE asked and was given permission to address the House for one minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, while we are talking about "lies, damn lies, and statistics," I would like to make reference to a statement by President Bush in a letter to a Congressman today and a statement made on the floor yesterday that "over 70 percent of the taxpayers who report capital gains have other income of less than $50,000."

What that carefully worded statement means is that of the 8 million tax returns annually which show any capital gains activity, roughly 70 percent are filed by those with incomes below $50,000. But that does not take into account the nearly 100 million tax returns which show no capital gains activity at all. Thus those earning under $50,000 actually report only about 8 percent of the actual gains and would get only 8 percent of the benefits. Eighty percent of the benefits of this Bush-Archer-Jenkins proposal would go to those earning over $100,000 a year.

Mr. Speaker, it is pretty clear who gets the benefit from the Bush proposal.

WHAT WAS THAT WORD AGAIN, PLEASE?

(Mr. HENRY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HENRY. Mr. Speaker, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax.

Tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax.
Tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax.
Tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax.
Tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax.
Tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax.
Tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax.
Tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax, tax.

Have we got a deal for you. We will lower your rate by allowing you to defer your taxes in an IRA in exchange for substantially increasing your taxes when you cash in.

Congratulations, Democratic leadership, for an idea well conceived.

A CAPITAL GAINS TAX WOULD STIMULATE ECONOMIC GROWTH

(Mr. ROHRABACHER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, if America is serious about competing in the global economy, we must cut the capital gains tax.

The United States has one of the highest costs of capital in the world. Those countries that are looked upon as competitors and models of economic growth—Hong Kong, Singapore, South Korea, and Malaysia—do not tax capital gains at all. In fact, one of the world's largest welfare states, Sweden, has a lower capital gains tax than the United States.

Despite the modern Robin Hood rhetoric of opponents of tax cuts, the capital gains cut is not a rich versus poor issue. The middle class also suffers when a gains tax is too high. A cut in the capital gains will result in economic benefits for all Americans. As a recent Treasury Department study stated, "over 70 percent of the taxpayers—almost 10 million Americans—who report capital gains have other income less that $50,000." At the same time, wealthy Americans would actually increase their tax payments as they shift more of their wealth from tax shelters to taxable investments.

I urge my colleagues to support the Jenkins-Archer capital gains proposal. It is good tax policy for all Americans.

EXPRESSING SORROW AT THE DEATH OF THE LATE HONORABLE JOHN E. HUNT

(Mr. RINALDO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RINALDO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to announce the death of a former Member of this House, Congressman John E. Hunt, who passed away last Friday in Woodbury, NJ. Funeral services were held this morning in Pitman, NJ.

He served in the House from 1966 to 1974 and represented New Jersey's First Congressional District. He was a well-respected Member in this body and will be remembered for his courage, strength of character, and dedication to his State and country.

NOT FUNNY

(Mrs. BOXER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. Speaker, I was not going to do 1 minute, but I was very amused by my Republican colleague who got up here and used the word "tax" about 50 times. It was a clever way to make his point.

However, Mr. Speaker, I have to ask the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. HENRY] whether he thinks it fair and in the American tradition for people who earn millions of dollars a year to pay less of a tax than those in the middle income. So, when he says, "tax, tax, tax," a number of times, I think it is important to go beyond that.

Mr. Speaker, that was funny and it was cute, but it is not funny, and it is not cute, that a billionaire in this country pays a lower tax rate than a middle-income person.

JENKINS-ARCHER WILL CREATE JOBS AND EXPAND THE ECONOMY

(Mr. GINGRICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GINGRICH. Mr. Speaker, the argument, despite all of the efforts by the liberal Democratic leadership to change the topic is simple. On the one hand the Jenkins-Archer bipartisan effort to cut the capital rates gain would, in fact, create 527,000 jobs, expand the economy by $70 billion and lead to $25 billion in additional investment in American industry.

Now, if this was a bureaucratic government jobs program with 527,000 jobs, most of our liberal friends would be excited, but it is not. It lowers the capital rates so that we, in fact, encourage people to invest in creating those 527,000 jobs. On the other hand, the Gephardt tax increase raises $35 billion through a tax increase in order to give back $15 billion in an IRA package.

Mr. Speaker, I say to my colleagues, "If you have to spend $35 billion giving it to the Government in Washington to get back a mere $15 billion in IRA rates, that sounds like Son of Mondale, and I don't think that's what the American people want."

THE "DEMOCONS" ARE AT IT AGAIN

(Mr. WALKER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, there is a classic, anticonsumer scam known as bait and switch. Read the Democrats' tax proposal, and my colleagues will see how bait and switch works.

First, under their plan tax on working people would be increased, but wait. They say we are offsetting the tax increase with an IRA deduction. For those of us who think that IRA's have merit that sounds attractive. Then we look more carefully. Sure enough, there is a problem: "You can't cash in your IRA until you get close to retirement age, and at retirement, because of Social Security earnings limitations and the like, your marginal tax rate goes up to as much as between 40 and 50 percent."

So, Mr. Speaker, here is the Democrats' deal: "You get to pay higher taxes now while you're working, and then even higher taxes later when you cash in your IRA."

Mr. Speaker, bring on the consumer protection agency. The "Democons" are at it again.

CORRECTING MR. WALKER'S STATEMENT ABOUT THE DEMOCRATS' IRA PROPOSAL

(Mr. MOODY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MOODY. Mr. Speaker, I usually respect the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WALKER] for his accuracy, however, I would request the gentleman from Pennsylvania to perhaps return to the well to correct his statement.

The Democratic IRA proposal specifically unlocks the IRA for anyone who needs it for college tuition, for health care, or for purchasing homes. Those are the three big-ticket items that the middle class needs an IRA for. Those are totally different than the kind of IRA's we have had in the past, and I would hope the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WALKER] would be more accurate in his comments.

WHY AMERICANS VOTED FOR GEORGE BUSH

(Mr. COX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, it is going to be difficult as we watch the debate and the procedures unfold here on the floor of the Congress to see exactly what it is we are voting on. But ultimately underneath it all there will be a choice between a capital gains rate reduction and something else. So, what the real debate ought to focus on is: "Is a capital gains rate reduction good for America?"

Mr. Speaker, there are two ways to look at it, from the standpoint of the taxpayer and from the standpoint of the Government. From the standpoint of the taxpayer it certainly makes sense that they are better off with a lower rate of tax. Most Americans know that. That is why they voted for George Bush who urged upon America the wisdom of a capital gains rate reduction.

From the standpoint of the Government, the Federal Government stands to gain billions of dollars in new revenues, and everyone agrees about this.

The only question is how long that new revenue stream will last.

Mr. Speaker, we have got some empirical data that will help us. We have reduced the rate of tax in this country on capital gains in 1978, and revenues shot up. We reduced the rate again in 1981, and in 1981, 1982, 1983, 1984, and 1985 revenues went up.

This is a chance to reduce rates and raise revenues for the Federal Government, make taxpayers and our Government better off.

MY REASONS FOR OPPOSING THE JENKINS-BUSH PLAN

(Mr. PENNY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PENNY. Mr. Speaker, I strongly oppose the Jenkins-Bush plan for cutting the capital gains tax rate. I oppose this measure for several reasons.

First, I am in favor of cutting capital gains rates only if such a plan is designed properly. Such a proposal would provide for long-term investment incentives designed to benefit many middle-class citizens and others who experience a one-time gain on sales of assets like a farm, a home, or a business. The Jenkins-Bush plan is not such a proposal.

Second, Mr. Speaker, the Jenkins-Bush tax cut is shortsighted providing an incentive to sell off assets during the next 2 years to benefit from the temporary drop in tax rates. That is bad economics, bad budgeting, and bad policy. We may get a 2-year bump in revenues, but over time we lose money, and a short-term tax break makes new investment relatively less attractive.

Finally, I am concerned about the effects of the Jenkins-Bush plan on one of our most productive and dynamic sectors in our economy, and that is agriculture. This 2-year tax cut could spur the selloff of a sizable amount of farmland driving down farmland values and hurting our financially strapped farmers who just came through one of the worst agriculture depressions in our Nation's history.

STOP THE DEMAGOGUERY

(Mr. SOLOMON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, it is a little disheartening to sit here on the floor and hear Republicans and Democrats accusing each other of being against the middle class and the poor and for the rich, et cetera.

As my colleagues know, yesterday up in the Committee on Rules; late last night I should say, I offered a motion which would have made an amendment in order on this floor which would have eliminated the cap on outside earnings for our American senior citizens on Social Security, middle class and poor alike. Do my colleagues realize that the Democratic Party voted en bloc on a party line vote not to allow that amendment on the floor?

Mr. Speaker, Claude Pepper would have turned over in his grave up in that Committee on Rules; however, we know that that does not mean that the Democratic Party is against senior citizens, and that they are against the poor and the middle class any more than it does for those Democrats and Republicans who are going to support a capital gains reduction here today.

Why do we not stop this demagoguery? You are good guys. We are good guys. Let us do what is right for the American people.

The unions throughout this Nation who invest their money into retirement systems take advantage of capital gains, and so do the little old ladies who have survived their husbands and need that money as income.

Come on, let us get with it.

IS A TAX CUT GOOD FOR EVERYONE?

(Mr. MAVROULES asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MAVROULES. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. MOODY].

Mr. MOODY. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman yielding to me.

I just want to respond to the point made earlier about a tax cut being good for everyone. A tax cut is not good for everyone if it puts the country in a deeper and deeper deficit hole. That is bad for everyone, because the deficit is a tax. The deficit is a tax on the capital markets. It raises interest rates 2 or 3 points higher than they otherwise would be. It is a tax on every middle-class American, their mortgages, their car payments, and everything else.

So as we contemplate the Jenkins tax cut, make no mistake about it, the Jenkins tax cut and the Bush tax cut will drastically increase the deficit starting in 1992. It will make previous deficits look tame. That will be a tax on all Americans. That is a tax, a tax far more serious than anything we are talking about today in terms of balancing out the deficit.

CAPITAL GAINS CUT SIMPLY A GIVEAWAY TO THE RICH

(Mr. SCHUMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, we have heard a lot about capital gains today, but I think three facts are irrefutable:

First, the majority of the capital gains tax cut, supported by the President and the other side, is going to go to reward the very wealthy, not to encourage them to invest, because it goes for prior investments. It is simply a giveaway to the rich, saying, "Great. You did a great job for America. Here's a couple hundred thousand dollars to add to your bank account."

Second, the forward parts of the capital gains tax in the bill are counterproductive, because they say that if you are going to make a new investment that has not been rewarded by previous investments, if you are going to make a new investment, get in and get out in 2 years.

Probably one of the two greatest problems America has is this short-term thinking, but the Jenkins proposal and the Bush proposal says, "Think and invest short term." That is death for America.

The third problem is, what does the Democrat alternative do? It encourages savings, our greatest problem. The other proposal does not. If America is going to save, it is going to have to be the middle class that starts saving, and IRA's are about the best way that I know of to get it done.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote for the Democratic proposal.

A SINGLE VOTE TODAY WILL DEFINE US AS MEMBERS

(Mr. TORRICELLI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. Speaker, rarely in this institution does a single vote define us as Members. Rarely can one issue provide a real view of the differences between our political parties and our philosophies. This day and this vote offers just such a contrast.

The American people are given an opportunity to see the real difference in our political parties, our Members, and our philosophies. The Republican Party suggests to you today that those one-half of 1 percent of the American people with incomes in excess of $200,000 per year should have a tax rate lower, pay less of a rate in taxes than the overwhelming majority of Americans in the middle class, the working class, and the upper middle class.

The Democratic Party suggests that they be equal.

If you doubt whose constituencies are being represented, whose interests are represented by the two parties, look at this vote today. Watch your Member and learn the difference.

OMNIBUS BUDGET RECONCILIATION ACT OF 1989

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 249 and ask for its immediate consideration.

H. RES. 249

Resolved, That during the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 3299) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 5 of the concurrent resolution on the budget for the fiscal year 1990, the bill shall be considered as having been read for amendment under the five-minute rule. All points of order against the bill are hereby waived except against section 3131(b)(1)(A), 3156, 3201, 7001, and 7002. The amendments printed in section one of the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution shall be considered as having been adopted in the House and in the Committee of the Whole. No other amendment to the bill shall be in order in the House or in the Committee of the Whole except that amendments printed in section two of the report of the Committee on Rules and said amendments shall be considered only in the order and in the manner specified. Said amendments may be offered only by the Member indicated in the report, or his designee, and said amendments shall be considered as having been read when offered. Debate on each of said amendments shall not exceed the time specified in the report and shall be equally divided and controlled by the proponent of the amendment and a member opposed thereto. Said amendments shall not be subject to amendment except as specified in the report and all points of order against said amendments are hereby waived. If more than one of the amendments relating to catastrophic health insurance (amendments number six and seven) are adopted, only the last such amendment which is adopted shall be considered to have been finally adopted and reported back to the House. If more than one of the amendments relating to child care (amendments number nine and ten) are adopted, only the last such amendment which is adopted shall be considered to have been finally adopted and reported back to the House. At the conclusion of the consideration of the bill for amendment, the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Bosco). The gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. DERRICK] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, for the purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. QUILLEN], and pending that, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 249 is a modified open rule providing for the further consideration of H.R. 3299, the Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989. The rule does not provide for general debate on this bill as this time was allotted in an earlier rule.

The rule waives all points of order against the bill except against sections 3131(b)(1)(A), 3156, 3201, 7001, and 7002. These sections largely raised user fees in the Education and Labor and Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committees' portions of the reconciliation bill, and in one instance repealed a 150-percent full funding limitation on multiemployer pension plans.

The rule further provides that the amendments printed in section 1 of report 101-261 accompanying this resolution, are considered as having been adopted in the House and in the Committee of the Whole upon adoption of this rule. These "self-executing" amendments follow.

The rule provides for an amendment striking textile and footwear provisions of the Caribbean Basin Initiative in the bill and adding back a 50-percent reduction in duties on certain leather-related products.

The rule provides for an amendment striking a user fee for the filing of FCC form 740 in the Energy and Commerce Committee title of this bill.

This rule provides for an amendment designed to bring the Post Office and Civil Service Committee's reconciled savings up to the level required in this year's budget resolution. The amendment would require the postal service to pay for cost of living adjustments for certain retirees and survivors and would raise an estimated $69 million toward reconciliation targets.

The rule provides for an amendment providing that transfers of outlays, receipts, or revenues from one fiscal year to another are a necessary but secondary effect of a significant policy change. This amendment addresses several timing changes in the Agriculture, Energy and Commerce, and Ways and Means titles of H.R. 3299, and would permit the scoring of the amount of deficit reduction that would result from their enactment.

Finally, the rule provides for an amendment incorporating abortion-neutral language into the bill. This amendment is designed to clarify that sex discrimination provisions of the child care portion of this bill do not require an employer to pay for or provide abortion-related service. The amendment mimics current-law, title IX(9) language.

In addition to these "self-executing" provisions, the rule provides that no other amendment to the bill is in order in the House or in the Committee of the Whole except the amendments printed in section 2 of report 101-261 accompanying this resolution, and that these amendments may only be offered in the order and manner specified. These amendments may be offered by the Member indicated in the report or by that Member's designee and each amendment shall be considered as having been read when offered. Debate on each of the amendments shall not exceed the time specified in the report and the time is to be equally divided and controlled by the proponent and a Member opposed thereto. These amendments are not subject to amendment except as specified in the report and all points of order against these amendments are waived. The amendments follow.

The rule provides for one amendment to be offered by Representative ROUKEMA to strike the Visclosky provision in the Education and Labor title of H.R. 3299 and to be debatable for 1 hour.

The rule provides for one amendment to be offered by Representative DORGAN to repeal section 89 of the Internal Revenue Code, to be debatable for 1 hour.

The rule provides for one amendment to be offered by Representative ANDERSON to strike a provision in this bill diverting funds from the airport and airways trust fund into the general fund, to be debatable for 1 hour.

The rule provides for one amendment to be offered by either Representative GEPHARDT or ROSTENKOWSKI as a substitute to the capital gains tax rate reduction provisions in the bill, to be debatable for 2 hours.

The rule provides for one amendment to be introduced by Representative OXLEY to strike the fairness doctrine from the Energy and Commerce title of this bill, to be debated for 30 minutes.

The rule provides for two amendments to be introduced by Representatives DONNELLY and STARK to repeal and modify current catastrophic insurance provisions, respectively. These amendments are each to be debatable for 1 hour. If more than one of these amendments relating to catastrophic insurance—amendments number six and seven—is adopted, only the last such amendment adopted shall be considered to have been finally adopted and reported back to the House. This is commonly known as a "king of the hill" mechanism.

The rule also provides for one further amendment pertaining to catastrophic health care. Both potential modifications to catastrophic health care law would exempt resulting changes in the deficit from calculation in a few budget documents. Essentially, they provide that changes to catastrophic health care law would not affect deficit calculation under the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, better known as Gramm-Rudman-Hollings. Anticipating the adoption of modifications to catastrophic health care law, the rule provides for one amendment to be introduced by Mr. PANETTA to strike such a Gramm-Rudman-Hollings exemption and to be debatable for 30 minutes.

Finally, the rule provides for two amendments to be introduced by Representatives EDWARDS and STENHOLM as substitutes for the child care provisions contained in both the Education and Labor and Ways and Means Committees' titles or H.R. 3299. Like the amendments on catastrophic health care, these amendments are to be considered in a "king of the hill" fashion. If more than one of the amendments relating to child care—amendments number nine and ten—is adopted, only the last such amendment adopted shall be considered to have been finally adopted and reported back to the House.

At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment, the rule provides that the committee shall report the bill back to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill as amended without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.

Mr. Speaker, the Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 is an act designed to implement requirements of the 1990 budget resolution and the budget summit agreement worked out between Congress and the administration in April of this year. As it stands now, this legislation would provide for an estimated $16.6 billion in budget savings in fiscal year 1990 and $13.7 billion in 1991. Passage of a reconciliation act is essential if the Government is to avoid sequestration under the Revised Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

The Rules Committee has tried to be fair and responsible in crafting the rule now before the House. I believe House Resolution 249 provides for adequate consideration of the many and varied issues contained in this year's reconciliation legislation. I urge my colleagues to adopt this rule.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. QUILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. DERRICK] has ably explained the provisions of the rule. Mr. Speaker, I shall support the rule, but I want to show the Members of this House what we are considering today.

The printed bill is in two volumes, 1,935 pages, and the report accompanying the bill is 1,555 pages. I do not want to minimize what we are up against today.

I want to congratulate the chairman of the Committee on Rules, the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MOAKLEY], and other Members on both sides for working out a rule that we can support. Over a period of several days the Committee on Rules was called to meet but then recessed in order to hammer out a consensus of both sides and, finally, a consensus was reached. I am proud of that work. I am proud to support this rule on the floor of the House.

We know this is a massive undertaking. We know it is late in the game, and we are dealing with a bill which has turned into a Christmas tree, but reconciliation is absolutely necessary. We must get down to the business of passing this measure so that it can go to the Senate and then to a large conference committee. Hopefully they can work it out before Christmas. But then, if it is not worked out, under Gramm-Rudman, there will be a cut across the board in all of the programs that this Congress has authorized. We must not let that happen, because cuts should be made only where cuts are needed.

I am happy to say that we are going to have an up-and-down vote to repeal catastrophic insurance, which is really a turkey that the elderly citizens of this Nation want to see repealed, because the financing burden is on the wrong shoulders.

I am happy that we are going to have an up-or-down vote to repeal section 89 which has turned out to be a nightmare for small business.

I am proud that all of these other measures are singled out for separate votes. I think it is a step forward in the history of the Committee on Rules to shape such a balanced rule.

I also want to congratulate the Committee on the Budget for their fine job. I know they would have preferred to see a clean reconciliation bill, but that is not the case today, as evidenced by the 1,935-page bill itself.

In the Committee on Rules I offered an amendment to include the enterprise zone proposal championed by Secretary Kemp, championed by President Bush, championed by myself and other members of the Committee on Rules. It should have been allowed an up-or-down vote, because we know that the poor people of this country are suffering today. The rule should have made in order the amendment, but it was not allowed.

I understand that the chairman of the Committee on Rules, the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MOAKLEY], has a commitment from the Committee on Ways and Means to hold a hearing on the enterprise zone proposal so that it can be brought to the floor of the House. I applaud that action, because enterprise zone legislation is absolutely necessary.

Mr. Speaker, I could go on and on and point out all the good and the bad items in the bill, but we need to get down to business to debate the bill itself.

Mr. Speaker, I support the rule. I urge its adoption.

Mr. Speaker, I advise the gentleman from South Carolina that I have five remaining requests for time.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. APPLEGATE].

Mr. APPLEGATE. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to be able to say a couple of things on this bill and on this rule.

Mr. Speaker, I do not rise to oppose the rule, but I do reluctantly support it. I will tell the Members why. How many of us here in this room would like to find $500 million or $600 million? Everybody is looking for money, and we do not know where to get it.

I offered an amendment to the Committee on Rules to come out on the floor to the reconciliation bill.

We could use $500 or $600 million to fight the drug war. We could use it to restore some of the cuts in the domestic programs which are going to be cut in order to help to fund the drug war. Or we could help to balance the budget. There are a lot of different reasons.

The Committee on Rules refused to allow my amendment. What it would simply do is deny an oil company to be able to write off the cleanup costs from an oilspill if the company or its employees are declared by a court of law to have committed a negligent act. That is very simple and that is all it is.

Of immediate concern is the Exxon oilspill of which there was 11 million gallons of oil that went out into the environment, and Exxon came in, they have been declared to be negligent in this matter. The cost they say is somewhere in the neighborhood of $1.5 to $2 billion. They are going to come back and they are going to write this off, and the American taxpayer is going to reward them for damaging the environment by giving back $500 or $600 million. I think that is wrong.

The taxpayers are going to have to cough this up, and I do not think that they should have that right to do that. They are profiteering at the taxpayers' expense. And this does not just mean that it is going to cost this amount of money. What about the animals, the loss of life of animals? What about the loss of the fish and the loss of birds? We can see reports where this is going to continue on, and what about the loss of jobs in the future? And this is happening every year.

Let me tell my colleagues something. Since 1984 there have been 95 million gallons of oil that has been dumped into the waterways of this country through one act or another. So I am just saying that while I do not get up to oppose the rule and I do support it, it is basically a good rule, but I just wish that this had been allowed to be offered as an amendment.

Mr. QUILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], a member of the Rules Committee.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this rule. H.R. 3299 itself is another story, but the rule we have before us is a rule we all can support. This rule is the product of lengthy consultations between the leadership on both sides of the aisle, and it will enable the House to work its will on the difficult issue of budget reconciliation.

I think special note needs to be made concerning Chairman MOAKLEY, BUTLER DERRICK, and the Democrat majority on the Rules Committee throughout this long process of preparing a rule for H.R. 3299, Chairman MOAKLEY was very sensitive to Republican concerns. He made every effort to keep Republicans on the Rules Committee informed about how the process was working out. And I would note that we were briefed on the contents of this rule several hours before the committee met last evening and we had copies of the rule in hand a good 45 minutes prior to the meeting which allowed we Republicans time to plan any necessary strategy.

And so I am very grateful for the chairman's cooperation throughout this process. You know, the Washington Post did a story a couple of weeks ago about Chairman MOAKLEY. And in that article, he was quoted as saying that he consults with Republicans and tries to accommodate our concerns. I can certainly testify to the fact that he does exactly that. Evidently, he is a man of his word.

Turning now, Mr. Speaker, to the rule itself. This rule will enable the House to have clean-cut, up-or-down votes on several of the most important issues contained within the reconciliation package.

We will have ample opportunity to debate the capital gains issue. I support the capital gains tax reduction presently contained in the bill. Some people will say that this tax cut is only a gimmick for the rich. But I am convinced that many middle-income Americans, as well as many others living on fixed incomes, are the ones who really have a stake in what we do here today. These are the people who truly will benefit from a capital gains tax reduction. We will have ample time to debate this, and we will have the opportunity of voting on a substitute version.

The rule allows us the opportunity of voting for an outright repeal of section 89. This odious provision, which has proven to be such an obnoxious burden on small businesses in America, must be gotten rid of. And we will have the opportunity to do that.

We will also have the opportunity of voting on a repeal of the Catastrophic Health Insurance Program, which has, in practice, proven to be very ill-conceived. The senior citizens of America want us to do something about it, and this rule gives us the chance.

The rule allows us the opportunity to strike the "fairness doctrine" provision from H.R. 3299. Whatever may be the arguments, pro and con, on that particular idea, the fact remains that a reconciliation bill is simply not an appropriate legislative vehicle for dealing with such a politically-charged subject.

And that goes for the pension provisions as well. Under the rules, we will have the opportunity to strike the Visclosky amendment dealing with the composition of pension trustee boards. Frankly, I wanted all three pension provisions to be stricken, but at least we will have the chance to strike one of them.

Mr. Speaker, reconciliation bills are extraordinarily complicated. And so, it goes without saying that the rule will be complicated as well. No Member, on either side of the aisle, will be entirely satisfied with the rule—just as no Member can be entirely satisfied with the bill. I myself have several concerns on the rule:

I regret that the child care bill was folded into reconciliation. But I would note that we will have the chance to consider several different versions.

I regret that we will not have the opportunity to vote on an amendment establishing urban enterprise zones.

And, finally, the rule provides a motion to recommit but not with instructions.

But I believe, on balance, that the scales are tipped strongly in favor of the rule. Given the extraordinary nature of H.R. 3299, the benefits of this rule far outweigh the negative points and that is why the Republican leadership is supporting this rule.

I will conclude, Mr. Speaker, by making a comment about the reconciliation process itself. We are confronted today with the consequences of a systemic failure in the congressional budget process. Here we are, more than 3 months late, still horsing around trying to produce a reconciliation bill. Mr. Speaker, Congress has become a national embarrassment, especially the other body.

Reconciliation bills are increasingly loaded with extraneous issues that have all kinds of spending implications in the outyears. Throughout the decade of the 1980's, actual outlays have exceeded the budget resolutions by an average of $13 billion per fiscal year. The reconciliation process has failed, and H.R. 3299 is no exception to this dismal record.

I have no idea what it is going to take—what kind of crisis will have to come upon us—before we as a Congress will summon the courage and the discipline that are necessary to put our country's financial affairs in order. But when that day comes, the cumulative effects of monstrosities like H.R. 3299 are going to make our jobs all that more difficult.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge a "yes" vote on the rule. Congress must have this chance to work its will. But I reserve my vote on final passage of the bill, pending the outcome of the various amendments we will be voting on.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. ALEXANDER].

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in symbolic opposition to the rule, and I will vote against the rule for the purpose of making a point that I think needs to be made.

Under the present scheme of accounting in the budget process the figures that are used in order to achieve a so-called balance budget under the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act by 1992 are fictitious, they are arbitrary. That is to say, they have no meaning that bears a resemblance to reality.

In 1992 if we continue under the method that we are now using, according to the House Budget Office, the real deficit as measured by the Federal funds accounting system will be $291 billion. Two years later the House Budget Office projects that the Federal funds deficit will be about $303 billion. That is to say, after we balance the budget according to the method that we are now using, in 1994 the real deficit will be $303 billion.

I would like for the Members of this body to consider what we are doing to ourselves. I have here a bar graph that is produced by the House Budget Office which illustrates the net interest paid on debt held by the public. The amount of interest on the debt since 1981 has increased from $50 billion to about $160 billion. That is $160 billion less that we have to assist the flood victims in South Carolina. It is $160 billion less that we have to attend to the education needs of our Nation. It is $160 billion less that we have to assist rural hospitals and to fund farm programs and provide for the priorities that are established by the U.S. Congress.

In effect, what this system is doing is to restrict the priorities and prerogatives of the U.S. Congress. It is unwitting in a sense, but in effect that is what we are doing to ourselves.

Now I have offered an amendment which was not made in order by the Committee on Rules that would redefine deficit to count it all, that is to say, the Federal funds deficit which reflects the true deficit which faces this Nation and faces our people. I will vote against this rule in order to make that point.

I think it is time for us to seize the initiative and deal with this issue in a meaningful way.

Much of the payment of our debt goes to foreign banks and if we do not get a handle on the situation about the only thing we will have to decide around here is which bank in Japan to send the interest check.

With this monster we call the deficit lurking in the shadows, we must always be looking over our shoulders, wondering when it is going to pounce and devour us all.

I certainly regret that this proposed rule does not make in order the amendment I proposed which would add to this bill an element of budget process reform. The bill does not now contain any such provisions.

My amendment would have required that for all purposes, except the gymnastics involved in the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings (G-R-H) exercise, the deficit be defined as the gap between Federal income, except that of trust funds, and Federal spending, excluding trust fund spending. Thus, the Federal deficit we focus on will be the real one—the Federal funds deficit.

If that definition had been in place, the American people would have been told that the 1988 Federal deficit was $252.9 billion. Instead, they were told the unified budget deficit was $155.1 billion. The answer was legally true. But, an unsound and dangerous accounting practice was used to get to that bottom line. It is reached by subtracting from the Federal funds deficit the surplus receipts of Federal trust funds, including those for Social Security and Medicare.

The change I propose does not alter the calculation of the deficit for purposes of comparison with the maximum deficit amount allowed under the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings scheme. But, it can be a step in the direction of focusing deficit control where it ought to be—on the Federal funds deficit.

But, making the facts about the real budget deficit—the Federal funds deficit—generally available to the American people would help bring about the necessary national commitment to bring budget deficit management into line with the program priorities studies say the American people want addressed.

Right now, congressional and Presidential assaults are not centered on the enemy in sight—the Federal funds deficit. They are concentrated on the G-R-H mirage advancing up the other side of the ridge.

The futility of such a deficit battle strategy is easily seen.

The G-R-H maximum deficit amounts do not have, and never have had, a realistic relationship to the real deficit, the Federal funds deficit. When the G-R-H deficit reduction scheme was written into law in December 1985, it set a fiscal year 1985 deficit of $171.9 billion. That was nearly 3 months after the fiscal year had ended with a Federal funds deficit of $266.4 billion. Before the scheme had been in effect for 2 years, even its backers were tinkering with Gramm-Rudman-Hollings, stretching out the time line for reaching a mythical budget balance year.

The demagogues in the G-R-H debate are nimble; but their deficit two-step shuffle it grows stale, and, meanwhile, the Federal funds deficit just grows.

The following table compares the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit for each year that the scheme has been in effect with the actual Federal funds deficit for that year and the G-R-H levels for the current and future years with the Congressional Budget Office's August estimate of the actual Federal funds deficit:

For the public, the debate becomes an even more tangled deficit jungle when you compare the Federal funds deficit with the unified budget deficit and the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings target maximum deficit amount.

Note.—The "Trust Funds" column includes surpluses in the following trust funds: Social Security, Medicare, Military Retirement, Civilian Retirement, Unemployment, Highway and Airports and Airways.

There are no yellow brick road solutions to the budget deficit battle. Given the growth in the Federal funds deficit—it was $85.8 billion in 1981—there is no route to reduction that is entirely safe. Inaction is not an option. Continuing to skirmish around hollow remedies such as Gramm-Rudman will almost certainly plunge us into the financial equivalent of a train wreck.

We must redefine deficit in a way that ends the public's isolation from fiscal reality so we can keep Presidential and congressional sights on the real deficit—the Federal funds deficit. That is the only clear route to practical Federal deficit management.

Mr. QUILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. HENRY].

Mr. HENRY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I want to comment on one aspect of the proposed rule, and explain its intent. Under the proposed rule, upon adoption of the rule a new section 3404 is added to H.R. 3299. Adding that section is necessary to insure that the child care portion of H.R. 3299 is "abortion neutral," that is, that it neither requires nor forbids providers who receive funds under subtitle E, the "Early Childhood Education and Development Act of 1989," to provide or pay for abortion related services.

Chapters II, III, IV, and V of subtitle E as reported by the Education and Labor Committee incorporate the sex discrimination provisions from the Head Start Act. Section 654 of the Head Start Act contains two separate subsections prohibiting sex discrimination, neither of which contains any limiting language regarding abortion.

My colleagues will recall the work that went into the Tauke-Danforth abortion neutral amendment to title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 during last year's debate over the Civil Rights Restoration Act. Rather than repeat that debate, the self-executing provision of the rule which adds section 3404 provides that any reference to section 654 of the Head Start Act in subtitle E shall be construed so as to be consistent with the title IX provision.

Mr. QUILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. CALLAHAN].

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the provisions of this legislation that lower the capital gains tax and simplify the rules for determining material participation.

I am particularly pleased that the Jenkins-Archer capital gains tax proposal includes timber, an asset that takes as long as 40 or more years to sell and recognize a gain. My colleagues on the Forestry 2000 Task Force and I have made capital gains for timber a very high priority and have worked with the authors of this measure to try to develop an acceptable plan. I commend their hard work and their success.

Mr. Speaker, in recent days we have heard the capital gains tax characterized as a benefit only to the rich. In truth, nearly three-fourths of all 1985 tax returns claiming capital gains were filed by taxpayers with incomes of less than $50,000. Indeed, as Lou Cannon noted in the Washington Post:

> Middle class and working-class Americans who bought a home or a stock years ago with pre-inflated dollars feel they ought to be able to sell their investments without having the proceeds gobbled up by taxes. They favor a capital gains tax.

I could not agree more. In addition to benefiting ordinary American taxpayers and investors, the capital gains tax will stimulate investment, create jobs, and enhance our economy.

Those of us with large numbers of small woodlot owners in our districts also support the inclusion in this bill of the Farm and Woodland Owners Tax Simplification Act. This legislation would amend the "passive loss" provisions of the 1986 Tax Reform Act which impose unreasonable material participation rules on small landowners. This legislation recognizes that tree farmers managing crops that may take 40 years to mature do not necessarily need to manage these crops on the same hourly basis as other crops must be managed.

Mr. Speaker, the cochairmen of the Forestry 2000 Task Force strongly urge other members of the task force to support the Jenkins-Archer amendment as approved by the Ways and Means Committee. In addition, I encourage all Members to support the committee-approved provisions.

Mr. QUILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a "yes" vote on reducing the capital gains tax. It is so important to create an incentive to put people back to work.

The argument of the Democrats is misguided because they know in their hearts it is not correct.

So I urge a vote in support of the capital gains tax cut.

I urge also a vote to strike the fairness doctrine when that comes to the floor of the House.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BARTLETT].

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule and to note that the very first amendment made in order is an amendment by Mrs. ROUKEMA of New Jersey, who is the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Labor-Management Relations, to strike the so-called Visclosky amendment that was added in about 60 seconds' time at a hurried-up markup by the Committee on Education and Labor with no hearings and very little opportunity for debate.

I want to bring to the attention of the Congress some facts about the Visclosky amendment, the damage it would do to pension beneficiaries throughout this country.

First, by way of background and backdrop, please remember that pension and profit-sharing plans are optional. They are voluntary, they can be established or terminated in the sole discretion of the employer.

There has in fact been a slow erosion of these plans in recent years. If we allow the Visclosky amendment to stay in this bill, that slow erosion will become a mass stampede.

There is no requirement that an employer have a pension or profit-sharing plan. They are considered an optional fringe benefit.

Those pension and profit-sharing plans are typically paid for entirely by the employer. The employers will simply choose not to pay them, not to start them or in fact choose to terminate the ones they have.

There are two reasons employers in fact will run away from pensions or profit-sharing plans if Visclosky stays in the bill.

First, for nonunion plans, which is most of them, it sets up a regulatory nightmare that will make section 89 pale by comparison.

In fact, what the Visclosky amendment contains is a Department of Labor-supervised election for nonunion companies, DOL-supervised elections to have an election for the trustees of the plan. Employers will run like crazy from that prospect.

Second, the Visclosky amendment separates the financial responsibility from the authority to make good investment decisions.

The employer is singularly and solely and completely responsible for the funding of that single employer pension plan or profit-sharing plan.

If you place trustees elected for political reasons into that trusteeship, then they have the authority to make the investment decisions but the losses accrue to the employer.

So an employer looking at that situation, understanding that he makes up for all the investment losses but has none of the decisions, will simply terminate the plans and the employees will lose.

I urge a vote for the Roukema amendment.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. MOODY].

Mr. MOODY. I thank the gentleman.

As we discuss the rule and consider the contents of the amendments that will be made in order under this rule I want to take a few moments to discuss several points regarding the capital gains feature of the bill. I also would comment briefly on some of the arguments that have been advanced in favor of the Bush-Jenkins proposal.

One of them which has been advanced is that it will create jobs. Now, if we had a 7-percent or a 9-percent unemployment rate, that might be persuasive but the fact is we are effectively near full employment.

If you talk to Alan Greenspan, or the people who manage our macroeconomics, I do not think they want to see a large stimulus to create jobs right now because it would be inherently inflationary.

So the jobs argument does not make a lot of sense because we are at a very low rate of unemployment, as it is.

The second point often alleged is that this will increase savings. Well, let me remind Members that savings do not depend very much at all on the aftertax rate for some specific uses of capital. Aggregate savings in the Nation is only running at 3 percent of net national product now. It is not really a function of the tax system, how that capital is allocated between uses. It is a function of how the Government taxes the different uses of the capital. However, the total amount of savings in a society is very much dependent on the national income and on a variety of other factors, not the Tax Code. The Tax Code has shown itself to be a very, very weak device for increasing total savings. A very powerful device for channeling savings, but not for increasing total savings. I think that argument is not valid and says we will substitute our knowledge, and the Tax Code, for the private market. The private market knows how to allocate capital between real estate and utilities, and steel plants and auto plants. For Members to use the Tax Code to push capital into different uses never seems to work very well, and it is very inefficient for Members to put a political spin on that allocation process.

The third point often alleged is that this will enhance capital markets. My friends, I think tax stability would enhance capital markets, and somebody joked the other day that tax reform would be tax stability. We are in a position where we are changing the Tax Code every single year, and one thing I hear from business friends in Wisconsin is, "Please leave the Tax Code alone for a while so we can plan." Capital gains, it is argued, would stimulate long-term planning, which we need in terms of efficiency in economy. Let us leave the Tax Code alone so people can plan, instead of changing it every year, as we have been doing.

Even worse in this bill, the 2-year window that the Bush-Jenkins plan creates would be more than just another change, it is inherently unstable. It creates a rush to market, and it will be very desirable to unload real estate and other assets quickly, while the 2-year window is open. That is hardly stabilizing our capital market. It will create a rush to market.

The fourth and final point I want to address, and most important by far, is what the Jenkins-Bush plan will do to the deficit. I am not going to talk about the distribution of benefits. That argument has been worked to death, but one thing overlooked is the effect on the deficit. If Members look at the chart, Members see that the deficit just literally explodes under the Bush-Jenkins plan starting in 1992. Now my friends, we have spent a lot of agony in this body trying to bring that deficit down. There is not the stomach on this side of the aisle for serious domestic cuts in spending, or that side of the aisle for cuts in military spending, to bring the deficit purely down on the cut side. Obviously, there is a political problem with raising taxes. Well, then, what are we doing by putting ourselves deeper in the hole and making it tougher to solve that problem? And here's the crucial point: the deficit we are about to enlarge if we pass Bush-Jenkins is a tax. The deficit is a tax. The deficit is a tax on capital markets, it's tax on all savings, it's tax on your capital market through the interest rate mechanism. Why do Members think interest rates in the United States are 2 or 3 points higher than Germany, Japan, and other countries? Because we have a huge deficit, including the Federal dissavings that wipes out almost our entire private savings, and therefore we have to borrow internationally to replace that money. That will be worse. Worse, not better, if the Bush-Jenkins plan is enacted. That is a tax.

If a person has a $50,000 mortgage, that is $1,000 per year tax. That 2-percent differential rate I mentioned, and it could be a 3-percent differential compared with some countries, is almost entirely attributable to the deficit, and is $1,000 a year on your mortgage. That is a tax.

You cannot tell me we will go for a no-tax scenario. There is no no-tax scenario. If you drive up the deficit, as this bill will do, you are taxing every American who finances a home or a car or anything else. It is easier to do it that way because the public isn't mad at the politicians, they will be mad at their banker, or they will be mad at some impersonal capital markets. But the fact is, we have to take responsibility for what we are doing, and what we are doing is raising taxes through the capital market system by adding 2 or 3 points onto interest rates.

So, there is no such thing as a no-tax scenario, my friends. If you adopt the Bush-Jenkins plan to cut capital gains, you will enlarge the deficit in 1992 and later years, primarily as a result of what I consider to be an irresponsible and avoidable step.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Bosco). The Chair would announce that the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. DERRICK] has 10 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. QUILLEN] has 15½ minutes remaining.

Mr. QUILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PORTER].

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, if the Congress were a savings and loan, Federal regulators would shut us down for mismanagement and bankruptcy. They wouldn't need to replace us, because we do not do anything.

We have not done anything all year. We have not tightened our ethics rules, addressed pay or honoraria, reformed campaign finance, extended the debt ceiling, or passed clean air. We have not enacted our 13 appropriations bills, passed budget reconciliation, repealed section 89 or catastrophic. And now it appears we have not avoided Gramm-Rudman cuts.

We live in a fantasy world. How else do you explain this reconciliation bill? It is a deficit reduction bill wherein we fight over competing versions of a tax cut? It is a deficit reduction bill with a massive child care entitlement. No, make that two, contradictory, child care entitlements. It also has two, contradictory, approaches to physician payment reform.

And, of course, this June 15 reconciliation bill arrives right on schedule on September 27, too late to stop Gramm-Rudman. And, of course, it is OK to put all these matters in one huge bill, although we can only manage it with several rules.

It is ridiculous, Mr. Speaker. It is downright silly. "Recon-silly-ation" is about the right word for it.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas [Mr. STENHOLM].

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the rule granted H.R. 3299, the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989.

This year's budget reconciliation measure includes an unprecedented potpourri of polemical problems, employee pension rights, of which the Roukema amendment is made in order. Capital gains, section 89, catastrophic health care, and child care, not to mention a bundle of smaller but nonetheless very important issues are all part of this monstrous bill. Crafting a rule that permitted free debate, without becoming unwieldly and interminable was no small feat.

When the House considers this crucial issue, you will have three options before you: First, the Republican substitute which enhances the earned income tax credit [EITC] for the working poor but does not directly address improving the quality and availability of child care services; second, the Stenholm/Shaw substitute which combines flexible grant programs with the enhanced EITC; or third, relinquishing the power of the House to work its will, and instead, sending the conflicting Hawkins and Downey child care provisions to conference, allowing others to make your decision for you.

We believe that the most reasonable, responsible, and truly constructive option you could choose would be to support the Stenholm/Shaw substitute.

I commend Chairman MOAKLEY and the entire Rules Committee for finding that appropriate balance in virtually all cases. Ideally, I would rather see each of these issues handled separately, outside of reconciliation. In the future, I hope that the House will remember the juggling headaches we are experiencing right now. However, since the Rules Committee was presented with the entire package and left to figure out the proper balance of debate and timeliness, they did what I truly believe was the best they could.

Many tough decisions lie before all of us in the next few days. While taking a position may at times cause us discomfort, I am grateful that the Rules Committee afforded us the opportunity to make those decisions and cast our votes on the wide variety of issues at hand.

I urge my colleagues to join me today in supporting the rule for this year's budget reconciliation package.

□ 1410

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes, for purposes of debate only, to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. TRAFICANT].

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, I am going to vote for the rule and find out what everybody has to say.

All I would like to say now is that we know there is an old saying that you never heard of anybody who committed suicide by jumping out of a basement window. That is the only consolation to America's working poor. Congress is saying, "Don't worry, things are going to get better. No one commits suicide by jumping out of a basement window. You'll stay in the basement, and look how safe you're going to be."

We cut taxes before, and we ended up with great amounts of red ink. We had tidal waves that did not raise all ships, but they flooded out the workers' basements.

Mr. Speaker, we have a new social class in America today. It is called the working poor. They cannot buy a home; they can only rent. They make $3.50 to $5.50 an hour, and they have two or three different jobs. They have no benefits. They cannot afford to get sick because they cannot afford insurance.

Now we are going to make more cuts. I stand here today and say that from what I understand, if it is a family of four that makes $200,000, under the Republican plan they will get a $25,000 tax break. If it is a family of four that makes $25,000 a year, they will get $15 a year under the Republican plan.

But what bothers me is the statement made yesterday by our colleague, the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. ANTHONY]. On the Democratic alternative of reinstating the IRA's, he said that 80 percent of the people who invest in IRA's make more than $100,000. Let us quit kidding ourselves. We keep cutting taxes, and we keep going further in the hole.

Why do we not just stabilize what we are doing so people can figure out a long-range tax program for America? We keep changing the rules so often. We snatch away the ITC, we snatch away the IRA's, and now we are going to throw them back in. Let us face it. Maybe we are cutting too much, and maybe Congress should not be discussing taxes as much as we are, but the only consolation again is that to those working poor out there we can say, "Hey, don't worry, we never heard of anybody committing suicide by jumping out of a basement window, and we know you're never going to be able to afford a highrise."

Mr. ROSTENKOWSKI. Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate Chairman MOAKLEY and the members of the Rules Committee for their work on the rule for the reconciliation bill. This legislation is about as substantively and politically complex as any bill I have seen in the House. The Rules Committee had the nearly impossible task of fashioning a rule that would accommodate all of the conflicting points of views represented in this bill and the amendments that will be offered. They accomplished that task in a fair manner. I want to thank the committee in particular for addressing a number of jurisdictional concerns of the Committee on Ways and Means regarding various provisions in the bill.

Nevertheless, I am compelled to vote against this rule—and I want to explain why. The fact is this is a reconciliation bill; a bill that is supposed to reduce the deficit. And yet, the rule waives Budget Act points of order against budget-busting amendments—points of order, such as 310(d) of the Budget Act—that would require the proponents of such amendments as the repeal of catastrophic health insurance and the repeal of section 89, to pay for their amendments. The Budget Act's discipline of deficit neutrality applied to all amendments during the markup of the Ways and Means Committee's reconciliation bill. The same rules and discipline should apply on the floor.

We have seen far too much budget gimmickry from the administration this year—from "slide-by" budgets, to "off-budget" financing to a temporary capital gains revenue surge—all in the face of a $130 billion deficit. Sooner or later the President and his economic advisors will have to face the tough decisions that real deficit reduction requires. Waiving points of order against budget busting amendments serves only to postpone the day when that responsibility will have to be met. For these reasons, I must vote no on this rule.

Mr. QUILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I urge the adoption of this rule.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Bosco). The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently, a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 371, nays 49, not voting 12, as follows:

SEC. 1001. SOYBEAN, SUNFLOWER, AND SAFFLOWER PLANTING PROGRAM AND FEED GRAIN ACREAGE LIMITATION PROGRAM.

(a) PLANTING OF SOYBEANS, SUNFLOWERS, AND SAFFLOWERS ON PERMITTED ACREAGE.—Effective only for the 1990 crops, the Agricultural Act of 1949 is amended by striking section 504(e) (7 U.S.C. 1464(e)) and inserting the following:

"(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act—

"(1) Effective for the 1990 crops, the Secretary shall, subject to paragraph (2), permit producers on a farm to plant soybeans, sunflowers, or safflowers on a portion specified by the producer (but in any event not more than 25 percent) of the producers' 1990 wheat, feed grain, upland cotton, extra long staple cotton, and rice permitted acreage, as determined by the Secretary.

"(2)(A) The Secretary shall establish a sign-up period during which the producers on a farm, participating in the 1990 crop wheat, feed grain, upland cotton, extra long staple cotton, or rice price support and production adjustment program, must state their intentions regarding use of the increased planting provision under paragraph (1).

"(B) After termination of the sign-up period under subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall estimate whether, based on the anticipated additional soybean, sunflower, and safflower plantings for the crop, the average market price for the 1990 crop of soybeans will be below 115 percent of the loan rate established for the 1989 crop of soybeans.

"(C) If the Secretary estimates that the average market price for the 1990 crop of soybeans will be below 115 percent of such loan rate, the Secretary shall reduce the percentage of permitted acreage on the farm that may be planted to soybeans, sunflowers, and safflowers to a level, or prohibit such plantings, as necessary to ensure that the average soybean market price does not fall below 115 percent of such loan rate.

"(D) The Secretary shall submit to the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate a statement setting forth the reasons for any reduction in the permitted planting percentage, or prohibition on such plantings, under this paragraph.

"(3)(A) For the purposes of determining the farm acreage base or the crop acreage bases for the farm, any acreage on the farm on which soybeans, sunflowers, or safflowers are planted under this subsection shall be considered to be planted to the program crop for which soybeans, sunflowers, or safflowers are substituted.

"(B) The Secretary may not make program benefits other than soybean or sunflower seed price support loans and purchases available to producers with respect to acreage planted to soybeans, sunflowers, or safflowers under this subsection and shall ensure that the crop acreage bases established for the farm and the farm acreage base are not increased due to such plantings.".

(b) FEED GRAIN ACREAGE LIMITATION PROGRAM.—Effective only for the 1990 crop of feed grains, section 105C(f)(1)(C) of the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1444e(f)(1)(C)) is amended—

(1) by striking "(C)", "1990", "(i)", and "(ii)", and inserting "(C)(i)", "1989", "(I)", and "(II)", respectively; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new clause:

"(ii) In the case of the 1990 crop of feed grains, if the Secretary estimates, not later than September 30, 1989, that the quantity of corn on hand in the United States on the first day of the marketing year for that crop (not including any quantity of corn of that crop) will be—

"(I) more than 2,000,000,000 bushels, the Secretary shall provide for an acreage limitation program (as described in paragraph (2)) under which the acreage planted to feed grains for harvest on a farm would be limited to the feed grain crop acreage base for the farm for the crop reduced by not less than 12½ percent nor more than 20 percent;

"(II) less than 2,000,000,000 bushels but more than 1,800,000,000 bushels, the Secretary shall provide for an acreage limitation program (as described in paragraph (2)) under which the acreage planted to feed grains for harvest on a farm would be limited to the feed grain crop acreage base for the farm for the crop reduced by not less than 10 percent nor more than 12½ percent; or

"(III) 1,800,000,000 bushels or less, the Secretary may provide for an acreage limitation program (as described in paragraph (2)) under which the acreage planted to feed grains for harvest on a farm would be limited to the feed grain crop acreage base for the farm for the crop reduced by not more than 10 percent.".

SEC. 1002. DEFICIENCY PAYMENT CALCULATIONS.

(a) RICE.—Effective only for the 1990 crop of rice, section 101A(c)(1) of the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1441-1(c)(1)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A)—

(A) by striking "(A) The Secretary", "(i)", "(ii)", and "(iii)" and inserting "(A)(i) The Secretary", "(I)", "(II)", and "(III)", respectively; and

(B) by adding at the end of subparagraph (A) the following new clause:

"(ii)(I) The Secretary shall, at the end of the first 5 months of the marketing year for such crop, estimate the amount of the payments due to producers under this paragraph for the 1990 crop. The Secretary shall make available to producers no later than the end of the first 6 months of the marketing year for such crop an interim deficiency payment in an amount not less than the amount determined by multiplying such estimate by 80 percent and then subtracting any amounts paid to the producer pursuant to section 107C for such crop.

TITLE IV—COMMITTEE ON ENERGY AND COMMERCE

Subtitle A—Medicare

PART A—PROVISIONS RELATING TO PART B OF MEDICARE

Subpart 1—Payment for Physicians' Services and Related Professional Services

SEC. 4001. APPLICATION OF RESOURCE-BASED RELATIVE VALUE SCALE TO PHYSICIANS' SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"RESOURCE-BASED RELATIVE VALUE SCALE FOR PHYSICIANS' SERVICES

"SEC. 1848. (a) APPLICATION DURING 1990 AFTER APRIL 1.—

"(1) TO ADJUSTMENT OF PREVAILING CHARGES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—For physicians' services specified under paragraph (2) which are furnished under this part during 1990 on or after April 1, 1990, the Secretary shall provide for an adjustment in the prevailing charge otherwise applied. Such adjustment shall be equal to an increase or decrease of ⅛ of the amount by which the applicable reference fee schedule amount (as determined under paragraph (3)(A)) with respect to each such service is greater or less, respectively, than the prevailing charge otherwise applied with respect to the service. The prevailing charge for such a service, as so adjusted, shall be treated, for purposes of this part for all subsequent periods, as the prevailing charge determined under this part for 1990.

"(B) TREATMENT OF EVALUATION AND MANAGEMENT SERVICES.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—In the case of the class of physicians' services consisting of evaluation and management services (as defined in clause (ii)), the Secretary shall provide for the application of subparagraph (A) in such a manner as will result in a percentage increase (or decrease) equal to the weighted average of such an increase (or decrease, respectively) that the Secretary estimates would have occurred if subparagraph (A) had applied to individual evaluation and management services (rather than to the class of such services).

"(ii) EVALUATION AND MANAGEMENT SERVICES.—In clause (i), the term 'evaluation and management services' means primary care services (as defined in section 1842(i)(4)) and also includes hospital medical services and consultations.

"(2) PHYSICIANS' SERVICES COVERED.—This subsection shall only apply to those physicians' services that are specified in Appendix A of the explanation of title IV (Committee on Energy and Commerce) contained in the report of the Committee on the Budget, House of Representatives, to accompany H.R. (the 'Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989'), 101st Congress, which specification is based on available data and the recommendations of the Physician Payment Review Commission.

"(3) APPLICATION OF REFERENCE FEE SCHEDULE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall apply a reference fee schedule covering each of the physicians' services to which this subsection applies. The applicable reference fee schedule amounts specified in such schedule with respect to a physicians' service furnished in a fee schedule area shall represent the product of—

"(i) the relative value for the service (specified under paragraph (4)),

"(ii) the national standard conversion factor (specified under paragraph (5)), and

"(iii) the geographic adjustment factor (specified under paragraph (6)(A)) for the service for the fee schedule area.

"(B) FEE SCHEDULE AREA DEFINED.—In this subsection, the term 'fee schedule area' means a locality used for purposes of computing payment amounts for physicians' services under section 1842(b).

"(4) DETERMINATION OF RELATIVE-VALUE.—

"(A) APPLICATION OF RELATIVE VALUE SCALE.—In applying this subsection, the Secretary shall use as the relative value for a physicians' service the sum of the relative values of the components for practice expenses and for physician work specified in Appendix A of the explanation of title IV (Committee on Energy and Commerce) contained in the report of the Committee on the Budget, House of Representatives, to accompany H.R. (the 'Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989'), 101st Congress for such service, which values are based on the relative resources used with respect to such expenses and such work.

"(B) DESCRIPTION OF COMPONENTS.—In this subsection:

"(i) PRACTICE EXPENSES.—The component relating to practice expenses is based on the relative expenses of items (such as office rent, wages of personnel, etc.) comprising practice expenses (as defined in subsection (k)(2)).

"(ii) PHYSICIAN WORK.—The component relating to physician work is based on the relative resources (reflecting such factors as relative time and effort) relating to physician work.

"(5) NATIONAL STANDARD CONVERSION FACTOR.—The Secretary shall, by not later than February 1, 1990, establish (and report to Congress concerning) the national standard conversion factor to be used under paragraph (3)(A)(ii). Such factor shall be established in a manner so that the aggregate payments for physicians' services furnished under this part on or after April 1, 1990, and before January 1, 1991, will be the same as the aggregate of payments for such services if this subsection had not applied. In establishing such a factor, the Secretary shall provide for appropriate adjustments to take into account, in the precise manner specified in Appendix B of the explanation of title IV (Committee on Energy and Commerce) contained in the report of the Committee on the Budget, House of Representatives, to accompany H.R. (the 'Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989'), 101st Congress, changes in the volume and distribution of physicians' services furnished under this part due to the impact of this subsection.

"(6) GEOGRAPHIC ADJUSTMENT FACTORS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of paragraph (3)(A)(iii), for each physicians' service for each fee schedule area there shall be a geographic adjustment factor equal to the sum of the geographic cost-of-practice adjustment factor (specified in subparagraph (B)) and the geographic physician work adjustment factor (specified in subparagraph (C)) for the service and the area.

"(B) GEOGRAPHIC COST-OF-PRACTICE ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the 'geographic cost-of-practice adjustment factor', for a service for a fee schedule area, is the product of—

"(i) the ratio of the relative value of the practice expense component for the service (specified in the Appendix A referred to in paragraph (4)(A)) to the total relative value for the service (as specified in such Appendix), and

"(ii) the geographic cost-of-practice index value for the area, based on the relative costs of a mix of goods and services comprising practice expenses in that fee schedule area for a typical physicians' service compared to the national average of such costs for the service, as specified in Appendix C of the explanation of title IV (Committee on Energy and Commerce) contained in the report of the Committee on the Budget, House of Representatives, to accompany H.R. (the 'Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989').

"(C) GEOGRAPHIC PHYSICIAN WORK ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the 'geographic physician work adjustment factor', for a service for a fee schedule area, is the product of—

"(i) 1, minus the ratio described in subparagraph (B)(i) for the service, and

"(ii) the geographic physician work index value for the area, based on ½ of the difference between the relative value of physicians' work effort in that fee schedule area and the national average relative value of such work effort, as specified in Appendix C of the explanation of title IV (Committee on Energy and Commerce) contained in the report of the Committee on the Budget, House of Representatives, to accompany H.R. (the 'Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989').

"(b) APPLICATION IN 1991.—

"(1) TO FURTHER ADJUSTMENT OF PREVAILING CHARGES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—For all physicians' services which are furnished under this part during 1991, the Secretary shall provide for an adjustment in the prevailing charge otherwise applied. Such adjustment shall be equal to an increase or decrease of ¼ of the amount by which the applicable reference fee schedule amount (as determined under paragraph (2)(A)) with respect to each service is greater or less, respectively, than the prevailing charge otherwise applied with respect to the service. The prevailing charge, as so adjusted, for such a service shall be treated, for purposes of this part for all subsequent periods, as the prevailing charge determined under this part for 1991 for the service.

"(B) TREATMENT OF EVALUATION AND MANAGEMENT SERVICES.—Subparagraph (B) of subsection (a)(1) shall apply to subparagraph (A) of this paragraph in the same manner as it applies to subsection (a)(1)(A).

"(C) COMPUTATION OF PREVAILING CHARGE LEVELS WITHOUT REGARD TO CUSTOMARY CHARGE LEVELS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this part (other than subparagraph (A)), the prevailing charge levels for physicians' services furnished during 1991 shall be the prevailing charge levels for such services furnished in 1990 increased by the percentage increase in the MEI applicable to 1991, and shall not be recomputed to reflect any change in the customary charges of physicians during any previous period.

"(2) ESTABLISHMENT OF REFERENCE FEE SCHEDULE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish, by October 1, 1990, a reference fee schedule covering each physicians' service. Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the applicable reference fee schedule amounts specified in such schedule with respect to a physicians' service furnished in a fee schedule area shall represent the product of—

"(i) the relative value for the service (determined under paragraph (3)),

"(ii) the national standard conversion factor (determined under paragraph (4)), and

"(iii) the geographic adjustment factor (determined under paragraph (5)(B)) for the service for the fee schedule area.

"(B) ANESTHESIA SERVICES.—In establishing a reference fee schedule for anesthesia services for which a relative value guide has been established under section 4048(b) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987, instead of the factors described in clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall use, to the extent practicable, such relative value guide, with appropriate adjustment of the conversion factor, in a manner to assure that the reference fee schedule amounts for anesthesia services in fee schedule areas are consistent with the reference fee schedule amounts for other services determined by the Secretary to be of comparable value in those areas. In applying the previous sentence, the Secretary shall adjust the reference fee schedule amounts by geographic adjustment factors in the same manner as such adjustment is made under subparagraph (A)(iii). The Secretary may provide for an overall percentage adjustment for anesthesia services under paragraph (1)(A) in a manner similar to the overall percentage adjustment provided for evaluation and management services under paragraph (1)(B).

"(C) FEE SCHEDULE AREA DEFINED.—In this subsection, the term 'fee schedule area' means a locality used for purposes of computing payment amounts for physicians' services under section 1842(b).

"(3) DETERMINATION OF RELATIVE VALUES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—

"(i) GENERAL RULE.—The Secretary shall determine, using the best available information and taking into account the recommendations of the Physician Payment Review Commission, a relative value for each physicians' service. Each such relative value shall be the sum of the relative values of the components of each physicians' service, which values are based on the relative resources utilized with respect to each component in furnishing particular physicians' services.

"(ii) NO VARIATION FOR SPECIALISTS.—With respect to the computation of the relative value for each component for a service, the Secretary may not vary the relative values, for the same physicians' service, based on whether the physician furnishing the service is a specialist or based on the type of specialty of the physician.

"(B) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN SERVICES.—

"(i) RADIOLOGY SERVICES.—In establishing the relative value for radiology services (including radiologist services, as defined in section 1834(b)(6)), the Secretary shall base the relative value on the relative value scale developed under section 1834(b)(1)(A), with appropriate modifications of the relative value to assure that the relative value established for radiology services which are similar or related to other physicians' services are consistent with the relative value established for those similar or related services.

"(ii) EXTRAPOLATION FOR OTHER SERVICES.—In the case of physicians' services for which specific data are not available, the Secretary may extrapolate relative values based on related services for which data are available and shall specifically take into account recommendations of the Physician Payment Review Commission and the results of consultations with organizations representing physicians who provide such services.

"(C) COMPONENTS.—In this subsection, each of the following is a separate 'component' with respect to a physicians' service:

"(i) PRACTICE EXPENSES.—A component relating to relative practice expenses, based on general categories of expenses (such as office rent, wages of personnel, etc.) comprising practice expenses.

"(ii) PHYSICIAN WORK.—A component relating to relative physician work (reflecting such factors as relative time and effort).

With respect to the computation of the relative values for the component for practice expenses described in clause (i), the Secretary shall base such computation on the best, readily available data, such as data from surveys covering such expenses.

"(4) NATIONAL STANDARD CONVERSION FACTOR.—The Secretary shall, by not later than October 1, 1990, establish (and report to Congress concerning) the national standard conversion factor to be used under paragraph (2)(A)(ii). Such factor shall be established in a manner so that the aggregate payments for physicians' services under this part during 1991 will be the same as the aggregate of payments for such services if this subsection had not applied. In establishing such a factor, the Secretary shall take into account the recommendations of the Physician Payment Review Commission and the percentage increase in the MEI (as defined in section 1842(i)(3)) and shall provide for appropriate adjustments to increase or decrease the conversion factor, to take into account projected changes in volume and distribution of physicians' services furnished under this part due to the impact of this subsection. The report of the Secretary under this paragraph shall identify and evaluate the components of such changes in the volume and distribution of services and shall explain the basis for any such adjustments.

"(5) GEOGRAPHIC ADJUSTMENT FACTORS.—

"(A) ESTABLISHMENT OF GEOGRAPHIC INDICES.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), the Secretary shall establish—

"(I) an index which reflects the relative costs of the mix of goods and services comprising practice expenses in the different fee schedule areas compared to the national average of such costs, and

"(II) an index which reflects ½ of the difference between the relative value of physicians' work effort in each of the different fee schedule areas and the national average of such work effort.

"(ii) CLASS-SPECIFIC GEOGRAPHIC COST-OF-PRACTICE INDICES.—The Secretary may establish more than one index under clause (i)(I) in the case of classes of physicians' services, if, because of differences in the mix of goods and services comprising practice expenses for the different classes of services, the application of a single index to different classes of such services would be substantially inequitable.

"(B) COMPUTATION OF GEOGRAPHIC ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For purposes of paragraph (2)(A)(iii), for all physicians' services for each fee schedule area the Secretary shall establish a geographic adjustment factor equal to the sum of the geographic cost-of-practice adjustment factor (specified in subparagraph (C)) and the geographic physician work adjustment factor (specified in subparagraph (D)) for the service and the area.

"(C) GEOGRAPHIC COST-OF-PRACTICE ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For purposes of subparagraph (B), the 'geographic cost-of-practice adjustment factor', for a service for a fee schedule area, is the product of—

"(i) the ratio of the relative value of the practice expense component for the service (as determined under paragraph (3)(A)) to the total relative value for the service (as determined under such paragraph), and

"(ii) the geographic cost-of-practice index value for the area for the service, based on the index established under subparagraph (A)(i)(I) or (A)(ii) (as the case may be).

"(D) GEOGRAPHIC PHYSICIAN WORK ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For purposes of subparagraph (B), the 'geographic physician work adjustment factor', for a service for a fee schedule area, is the product of—

"(i) 1, minus the ratio described in subparagraph (C)(i) for the service, and

"(ii) the geographic physician work index value for the area, based on the index established under subparagraph (A)(i)(II).

"(6) REQUIRING TRANSITIONAL CODING OF BILLS SUBMITTED.—In order to provide for the collection of data required to implement subsection (c)(1)(C), the Secretary may require, for bills submitted for physicians' services furnished during 1991, that the bills indicate the fee schedule area (described in subsection (c)(3)(C)(i)) and the classification and coding (described in subsection (c)(2)) with respect to the services.

"(c) APPLICATION IN 1992.—

"(1) PAYMENT ON BASIS OF FEE SCHEDULE AMOUNT, SUBJECT TO ADJUSTMENT WITH RESPECT TO PREVAILING CHARGE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this part, instead of payment under this part being based on an applicable percent (specified under section 1833(a) or (b)) of the reasonable charges for the services, for physicians' services furnished in 1992 payment shall be based on such applicable percent of the lesser of—

"(i) the actual charge for the services, or

"(ii) the fee schedule amount (determined under paragraph (3)(A)) for the service, as adjusted under subparagraph (B).

"(B) ADJUSTMENT WITH RESPECT TO PREVAILING CHARGE.—For purposes of subparagraph (A)(ii), the adjustment of a fee schedule amount under this subparagraph for a service shall be an increase or decrease by ½ of the amount by which the prevailing charge level (specified in subparagraph (C)) for the service is greater or less, respectively, than such fee schedule amount.

"(C) PREVAILING CHARGE LEVEL.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—In applying subparagraph (B), the prevailing charge level for a service shall be the prevailing charge level for that service furnished in 1991 (taking into account any affect of subsection (b)(1)(C)) increased by the percentage increase in the MEI applicable to 1992.

"(ii) ESTABLISHMENT OF PREVAILING CHARGE LEVEL WHERE RECLASSIFICATION OF SERVICE.—In the case of a physicians' service which is reclassified or recoded under paragraph (2) or otherwise and for which specific service a prevailing charge level was not established for 1991, the Secretary shall provide for the construction of such proxy prevailing charge level for 1991 as may be appropriate.

"(iii) ESTABLISHMENT OF PREVAILING CHARGE LEVEL FOR NEW FEE SCHEDULE AREAS.—If the fee schedule area in 1992 for a service is different from the fee schedule area in 1991 for that service, the Secretary shall provide for the computation of the prevailing charge level for the service for the new fee schedule area based on the weighted average of the prevailing charge levels that would otherwise have applied in the portions of the old fee schedule areas included in the new fee schedule area.

"(D) COMPUTATION OF PREVAILING AND CUSTOMARY CHARGES.—

"(i) NO RECOMPUTATION OF CUSTOMARY CHARGES.—The Secretary shall not require carriers to recompute customary charges for physicians' services, for purposes of payment with respect to such services furnished during or after 1992.

"(ii) PREVAILING CHARGES.—The Secretary shall not require carriers to recompute prevailing charges for physicians' services, for purposes of payment with respect to such services furnished after 1992.

"(2) UNIFORM CLASSIFICATION AND CODING OF SERVICES, GLOBAL SURGICAL CODES, AND CODING OF EVALUATION AND MANAGEMENT SERVICES BY TIME.—The Secretary shall make such changes in classification and coding of physicians' services furnished during or after 1992 as may be required—

"(A) to provide for uniform classification and coding of the same physicians' services in all fee schedule areas;

"(B) to classify and code, with a surgical procedure, related pre-operative and post-operative physicians' services; and

"(C) to take into account, in the classification and coding of evaluation and management services, the time used in providing different evaluation and management services.

"(3) FEE SCHEDULE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this subsection and succeeding subsections for a year, the Secretary shall establish, by not later than October 1 before the year, a fee schedule covering each physicians' services. Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the applicable fee schedule amounts specified in such schedule with respect to a physicians' service furnished in a fee schedule area shall represent the product of—

"(i) the relative value for the service (specified under paragraph (4)),

"(ii) the national standard conversion factor (specified in paragraph (5)), and

"(iii) the geographic adjustment factor for the service for the fee schedule area (specified in paragraph (6)(B)).

"(B) ANESTHESIA SERVICES.—In establishing a reference fee schedule for anesthesia services for which a relative value guide has been established under section 4048(b) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987, instead of the factors described in clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall use, to the extent practicable, such relative value guide, with appropriate adjustment of the conversion factor, in a manner to assure that the reference fee schedule amounts for anesthesia services in fee schedule areas are consistent with the reference fee schedule amounts for other services determined by the Secretary to be of comparable value in those areas. In applying the previous sentence, the Secretary shall adjust the reference fee schedule amounts by geographic adjustment factors in the same manner as such adjustment is made under subparagraph (A)(iii). In applying the previous sentence, the Secretary may provide for an overall percentage adjustment under paragraph (1)(A) a manner similar to the overall percentage adjustment provided for evaluation and management services under paragraph (1)(B).

"(C) FEE SCHEDULE AREAS DEFINED.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this subsection, a 'fee schedule area' shall be comprised of either—

"(I) each State (in its entirety), or

"(II) each metropolitan statistical area (or New England County Metropolitan area or comparable area recognized by the Secretary) and each portion of each State which is outside a metropolitan statistical area (or comparable area).

"(ii) RECOMMENDATIONS TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall report to Congress, by not later than July 1, 1991, on the Secretary's recommendation on whether fee schedule areas under this subsection should be the areas described in subclause (I) or subclause (II) of clause (i).

"(4) RELATIVE VALUES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in this paragraph, the Secretary shall determine relative values for each physicians' service in the same manner as such determination is made under subsection (b)(3).

"(B) COMPONENTS.—In this subsection, each of the following is a separate 'component' with respect to a physicians' service:

"(i) GENERAL PRACTICE EXPENSES.—A component relating to relative practice expenses (as defined in subsection (k)(2) (which excludes malpractice expenses)), based on general categories of expenses (such as office rent, wages of personnel, etc.) comprising practice expenses.

"(ii) MALPRACTICE EXPENSES.—A component relating to relative malpractice expenses, based on the risk category of the class of services furnished (or the specialty of physicians providing the services).

"(iii) PHYSICIAN WORK.—A component relating to relative physician work (reflecting such factors as relative time and effort).

"(5) NATIONAL STANDARD CONVERSION FACTOR.—The Secretary shall, by not later than October 1, 1991, establish (and report to Congress concerning) the national standard conversion factor to be used under paragraph (3)(A)(ii). Such factor shall be established in a manner so that the aggregate payments for physicians' services under this part during 1992 will be the same as the aggregate of payments for such services if this section had not applied. In establishing such a factor, the Secretary shall take into account the recommendations of the Physician Payment Review Commission and the percentage increase in the MEI (as defined in section 1842(i)(3)) and shall provide for appropriate adjustments to increase or decrease the conversion factor, to take into account projected changes in volume and distribution of physicians' services furnished under this part due to the impact of this subsection. The report of the Secretary under this paragraph shall identify and evaluate the components of such changes in the volume and distribution of services and shall explain the basis for any such adjustments.

"(A) ESTABLISHMENT OF GEOGRAPHIC INDICES.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), the Secretary shall establish—

"(I) an index which reflects the relative costs of the mix of goods and services comprising practice expenses (other than malpractice expenses) in the different fee schedule areas compared to the national average of such costs,

"(II) an index which reflects the relative costs of malpractice expenses in the different fee schedule areas compared to the national average of such costs, and

"(III) an index which reflects ½ of the difference between the relative value of physicians' work effort in each of the different fee schedule areas and the national average of such work effort.

"(ii) CLASS-SPECIFIC GEOGRAPHIC COST-OF-PRACTICE INDICES.—The Secretary may establish more than one index under clause (i)(I) in the case of classes of physicians' services, if, because of differences in the mix of goods and services comprising practice expenses for the different classes of services, the application of a single index under such clause to different classes of such services would be substantially inequitable.

"(B) COMPUTATION OF GEOGRAPHIC ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For purposes of paragraph (2)(A)(iii), for all physicians' services for each fee schedule area the Secretary shall establish a geographic adjustment factor equal to the sum of the geographic cost-of-practice adjustment factor (specified in subparagraph (C)), the geographic malpractice adjustment factor (specified in subparagraph (D)), and the geographic physician work adjustment factor (specified in subparagraph (E)) for the service and the area.

"(C) GEOGRAPHIC COST-OF-PRACTICE ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For purposes of subparagraph (B), the 'geographic cost-of-practice adjustment factor', for a service for a fee schedule area, is the product of—

"(i) the ratio of the relative value of the practice expense component for the service (as determined under paragraph (3)(A)) to the total relative value for the service (as determined under such paragraph), and

"(ii) the geographic cost-of-practice index value for the area for the service, based on the index established under subparagraph (A)(i)(I) or (A)(ii) (as the case may be).

"(D) GEOGRAPHIC MALPRACTICE ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For purposes of subparagraph (B), the 'geographic malpractice adjustment factor', for a service for a fee schedule area, is the product of—

"(i) the ratio of the relative value of the malpractice expense component for the service (as determined under paragraph (3)(A)) to the total relative value for the service (as determined under such paragraph), and

"(ii) the geographic malpractice index value for the area, based on the index established under subparagraph (A)(i)(II).

"(E) GEOGRAPHIC PHYSICIAN WORK ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For purposes of subparagraph (B), the 'geographic physician work adjustment factor', for a service for a fee schedule area, is the product of—

"(i) 1, minus the sum of the ratios described in subparagraphs (C)(i) and (D)(i) for the service, and

"(ii) the geographic physician work index value for the area, based on the index established under subparagraph (A)(i)(III).

"(d) APPLICATION IN 1993 AND SUCCEEDING YEARS.—The provisions of subsection (c) shall apply to physicians' services furnished during 1993 and succeeding years in the same manner as they apply to physicians' services furnished during 1992, except as follows:

"(1) PAYMENT ON BASIS OF FEE SCHEDULE AMOUNT.—In applying (by reference) subsection (c)(1)(A), there shall be no adjustment made under subparagraph (B) thereof (relating to an adjustment with respect to prevailing charge).

"(2) ADJUSTMENTS IN RELATIVE VALUES AND GEOGRAPHIC INDEX FACTORS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, taking into account recommendations made by the Physician Payment Review Commission and the views of appropriate organizations representing physicians and other interested parties, may provide—

"(i) from time to time for the establishment of relative values for physicians' services for which such values have not previously been established, and

"(ii) subject to subparagraph (B), annually for such adjustments in the relative values and in the geographic adjustment factors used for purposes of this subsection, as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

"(B) BUDGET NEUTRALITY IN ANNUAL ADJUSTMENTS.—The Secretary may not make adjustments under subparagraph (A)(ii) which are intended or designed to result in an overall increase or decrease in the aggregate amount of payments to be made under this part for physicians' services.

"(3) NATIONAL STANDARD CONVERSION FACTOR.—Instead of applying subsection (c)(5) (by reference), the Secretary shall, by not later than August 1 before the year involved, establish (and report to Congress concerning) the national standard conversion factor to be used for the year involved. Such factor for a year shall be the conversion factor established for the previous year adjusted by the projected percentage change, between the midpoint of the previous year and the midpoint of the year involved, in an appropriate index (established by the Secretary) that reflects the value of the resources (including practice expenses, malpractice expenses, and physician work effort) used in furnishing physicians' services. In establishing such index, the Secretary shall take into account the recommendations of the Physician Payment Review Commission and the views of appropriate organizations representing physicians and other interested parties.

"(1) is attributable—

"(A) to cerebral palsy or epilepsy,

"(3) is likely to continue indefinitely; and

"(4) results in substantial functional limitations in 3 or more of the following areas of major life activity: self-care, understanding and use of language, learning, mobility, self-direction, and capacity for independent living.".

(d) MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT.—Section 1903 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396b) is amended by inserting after subsection (g) the following new subsection:

"(h)(1) As a condition for the receipt of payment under subsection (a) with respect to medical assistance provided by a State for community habilitation and supportive services (other than under a waiver under section 1915(c)), the State shall report to the Secretary, with respect to each Federal fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1989) and in a format developed or approved by the Secretary, the amount of non-Federal funds obligated by the State (including funds obligated by localities in the State) with respect to the provision of such services (other than under such a waiver) for individuals with mental retardation or a related condition in that fiscal year.

"(2) In applying subsection (a)(1) with respect to the total amount expended by a State for calendar quarters in a fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1990) for community habilitation and supportive services for individuals with mental retardation or a related condition (other than under a waiver under section 1915(c)), such expenditures shall be reduced by the amount reported under paragraph (1) with respect to fiscal year 1989.".

(3) Section 1902(j) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396a(j)), as amended by section 4203(b)(2) of this subtitle, is amended by striking "(22)" and inserting "(23)".

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section apply to services furnished on or after July 1, 1990, without regard to whether or not final regulations to carry out such amendments have been promulgated by such date; except that—

(1) such amendments shall not apply to habilitation services furnished under a waiver which is in effect under section 1915(c) of the Social Security Act (as in effect on the date of the enactment of this Act) before July 1, 1990, until the date the next renewal of such a waiver takes effect, and

(2) such amendments shall not apply to services furnished before the end of the 30-day period beginning on the date the Secretary of Health and Human Services promulgates interim requirements described in section 1927(j)(1) of the Social Security Act (as added by section 4222(a) of this subtitle).

(g) NO ABROGATION OF FREEDOM OF CHOICE.—Nothing in the amendments made by this section shall be construed as abrogating the right of medicaid clients to freedom of choice, under section 1902(a)(23) of the Social Security Act, with respect to the providers from whom they can receive covered services.

SEC. 4222. QUALITY ASSURANCE FOR COMMUNITY HABILITATION AND SUPPORTIVE SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1927 of the Social Security Act, as inserted by section 4221(a) of this Act, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

"(b) INDEPENDENCE, PRODUCTIVITY, AND INTEGRATION.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The objectives of community habilitation and supportive services are to expand opportunities for independence, productivity, and integration into the community for individuals with mental retardation or a related condition.

"(2) APPLICATION TO CERTAIN WAIVERS.—

"(A) SECTION 1915(c).—The provisions of this section apply to community habilitation and supportive services provided under a waiver approved under section 1915(c), but such provisions do not apply to such a waiver in effect before July 1, 1990, until the date the next renewal of such a waiver takes effect or, if later, the end of the 30-day period beginning on the date the Secretary promulgates interim regulations described in subsection (j)(1).

"(B) SECTION 1115.—In the case of any State which is providing medical assistance under a waiver granted under section 1115(a) with respect to community habilitation and supportive services, the Secretary shall require the State to meet the requirements of this section in the same manner as the State would be required to meet such requirements if the State had in effect a plan approved under this title.

"(3) DEFINITIONS.—In this section and section 1928:

"(A) INDEPENDENCE.—The term 'independence' means the extent to which individuals with mental retardation or a related condition exert control and choice over their own lives.

"(B) PRODUCTIVITY.—The term 'productivity' means engagement by an individual with mental retardation or a related condition in income-producing work or work that contributes to a household or community.

"(C) INTEGRATION INTO THE COMMUNITY.—The term 'integration into the community' means, with respect to an individual with mental retardation or a related condition, the use of common facilities, participation in activities, and regular contact with other residents (who are not individuals with mental retardation or a related condition) of the community in which such individual resides.

"(c) INDIVIDUAL HABILITATION PLANS.—

"(1) REQUIREMENT.—Community habilitation and supportive services must be provided in accordance with an individual habilitation plan (in this section referred to as an 'IHP') which states specific objectives necessary to meet some or all of the client's needs, as identified in the comprehensive functional assessment conducted under subsection (d). In addition, the IHP shall include a description of the medical care service needs of the client, as identified by the client's physician. Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as requiring a State to make available medical assistance under this title for all types or elements of community habilitation and supportive services. If a State provides such medical assistance for some or all such types or elements and an IHP identifies such types or elements with respect to a client, the medical assistance shall be made available under this title for those types and elements for that client under the IHP.

"(2) PREPARATION.—Each IHP for a client shall be prepared, before the date community habilitation and supportive services are first provided to the client under this title, by an appropriate interdisciplinary team and shall be periodically reviewed and revised by such a team after each assessment under subsection (d). In preparing an IHP the team shall provide the client, the client's parents (if the client is a minor), and the client's legal guardian (if any) with notice of the rights described in subsection (e)(2).

"(3) REQUIRED PARTICIPATION IN DEVELOPMENT OF IHP.—In developing an IHP for a client, the team shall notify, and provide for and encourage the participation of, the client, the client's parents (if the client is a minor), and the client's legal guardian (if any) and the client's case manager.

"(4) PERMISSIVE PARTICIPATION OF PARENTS OF ADULT CLIENTS.—A parent (if the client is not a minor) who is not a legal guardian of the client may participate in developing the IHP unless the client has objected to the parent's participation.

"(5) AVAILABILITY.—A copy of each IHP must, consistent with the client's right to confidentiality described in subsection (e)(2)(D), be made accessible to all relevant providers, including other providers who work with the client, to the client's legal guardian (if any), and, unless the client objects, to the client's parents.

"(d) COMPREHENSIVE FUNCTIONAL ASSESSMENT.—

"(1) REQUIREMENT.—The State must provide that each individual who receives community habilitation and supportive services under the State plan under this title must have had a comprehensive functional assessment and must have such an assessment periodically reviewed. Such an assessment and review must be conducted by an interdisciplinary team. Such an assessment and review must identify each client's developmental and behavioral abilities and management needs. In the case of a client with a seizure disorder, the assessment must include a determination, by a professional with expertise in the diagnosis and treatment of such disorders, of the classification of the disorder in accordance with the most recent version of the International Classification of Epileptic Seizures.

"(2) FREQUENCY.—

"(A) ASSESSMENTS.—Such an assessment must be conducted before the receipt of community habilitation and supportive services under this title.

"(B) REVIEWS.—A review of each such assessment shall be performed in no case less often than once every 12 months.

"(3) USE.—The results of such an assessment or review shall be used in developing, reviewing, and revising the client's IHP under subsection (c).

"(e) MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS FOR SERVICES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Community habilitation and supportive services provided under this title must meet such requirements for the protection of health, safety, and welfare of clients, consistent with the objectives described in subsection (b), as are published or developed by the Secretary under subsection (j). Such requirements shall include—

"(A) minimum qualifications for individuals providing such services,

"(B) guidelines for such minimum compensation for personnel as will assure the availability and continuity of qualified personnel to provide such services for clients of various levels of impairment, and

"(C) the requirement that a provider of community habilitation and supportive services must protect and promote the rights of each client, including the rights specified in paragraph (2).

"(2) SPECIFIED RIGHTS.—The rights specified in this paragraph are as follows:

"(A) FREE FROM ABUSE.—The right to be free from physical, verbal, sexual, or psychological abuse, corporal or psychological punishment, aversive stimuli, and involuntary seclusion. Nothing in the previous sentence shall be construed to prohibit the use of 'time-out' rooms for periods of less than one hour, if the use of such a room is subject to review by the interdisciplinary team (described in subsection (c)(2)) to ensure the use of the least restrictive and most positive behavior management intervention and consistency with the objectives of the client's IHP.

"(B) FREE FROM RESTRAINTS.—The right to be free from any physical restraints or medications imposed for purposes of discipline or convenience of the provider or as a substitute for active treatment and not required to treat the client's medical symptoms. Any such imposition of such physical restraints or medications must be subject to review by the interdisciplinary team (described in subsection (c)(2)) to ensure protection of this right and consistency with the objectives of the client's IHP.

"(C) PRIVACY.—The right to privacy with regard to accommodations, medical treatment, written and telephonic communications, visits, and meetings of family and friends and of client groups.

"(D) CONFIDENTIALITY.—The right to confidentiality of personal and clinical records.

"(E) DIGNITY.—The right to be treated with dignity in a manner consistent with the client's chronological age.

"(F) GRIEVANCES.—The right to voice grievances with respect to treatment or care that is (or fails to be) furnished, without discrimination or reprisal (or threat of discrimination or reprisal) for voicing the grievances and the right to prompt efforts by the provider to resolve grievances the client may have, including those with respect to the behavior of other clients.

"(G) FREE CHOICE WITH RESPECT TO MEDICAL CARE AND TREATMENT.—The right to choose the provider of community habilitation and supportive services from which to receive such services, to be fully informed in advance about care and treatment, to be fully informed in advance of any changes in care or treatment that may affect the client's well-being, and to participate in planning care and treatment or changes in such care and treatment.

"(H) USE OF PSYCHOPHARMACOLOGIC DRUGS.—Psychopharmacologic drugs may be administered only on the orders of a physician and only as an integral part of a plan (included in the IHP) designed to eliminate or modify the symptoms or behaviors for which the drugs are prescribed and only if, at least annually, an independent, external consultant trained in the administration and interaction of psychopharmacologic drugs reviews the appropriateness of the drug plan of each client receiving such drugs.

"(I) OTHER RIGHTS.—Any other right established by the Secretary.

"(3) RIGHTS OF INCOMPETENT CLIENTS.—In the case of a client adjudged incompetent under the laws of a State, the rights of the client under this title shall devolve upon, and, to the extent judged necessary by a court of competent jurisdiction, be exercised by, a person appointed under State law to act on the client's behalf. For purposes of the previous sentence, the term 'person' includes an organization which is independent of a provider of community habilitation and supportive services.

"(f) MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS FOR RESIDENTIAL SETTINGS.—A residential setting in which one or more community habilitation or supportive services are provided must meet the following requirements, in order to protect the health, safety, and welfare of clients residing in such settings:

"(1) CLIENTS' RIGHTS.—A setting must meet the requirements of section 1928(c)(1) (relating to clients' rights) in the same manner as such requirements apply to habilitation facilities under such section.

"(2) ADMINISTRATION.—A setting must meet the requirements of section 1928(d) (relating to administration and other matters), other than paragraph (2)(B) thereof, in the same manner as such requirements apply to habilitation facilities under such section.

"(3) LIFE SAFETY CODE.—A setting must meet such provisions of such edition (as specified by the Secretary in regulation) of the Life Safety Code of the National Fire Protection Association as are applicable and appropriate to the residential setting; except that—

"(A) the Secretary may waive, for such periods as he deems appropriate, specific provisions of such Code which if rigidly applied would result in unreasonable hardship upon a setting, but only if such waiver would not adversely affect the health and safety of clients or personnel, and

"(B) the provisions of such Code shall not apply in any State if the Secretary finds that in such State there is in effect a fire and safety code, imposed by State law, which adequately protects clients of and personnel in residential settings.

"(4) DISCLOSURE OF OWNERSHIP AND CONTROL INTERESTS AND EXCLUSION OF REPEATED VIOLATORS.—A residential setting—

"(A) must disclose persons with an ownership or control interest (including such persons as defined in section 1124(a)(3)) in the setting, and

"(B) may not have, as a person with an ownership or control interest in the setting, any individual or person who has been excluded from participation in the program under this title or who has had such an ownership or control interest in one or more residential settings which have been found repeatedly to have provided care of substandard quality in the setting.

"(5) CONTINUATION OF ACTIVE TREATMENT FOR CERTAIN CLIENTS UPON CONVERSION FROM A HABILITATION FACILITY.—If part or all of a facility converts from an habilitation facility to a residential setting, each client who was a resident of the portion of the facility so converted at the time of the conversion and who, under the client's individual program plan at such time, required continuous active treatment (as defined in section 1928(b)(2)(B)), the residential setting must continue to provide for (or arrange for the provision of) continuous active treatment (as so defined) so long as such client resides in the setting and continues to require such active treatment. Nothing in section 1902(a)(10)(B) shall be construed as requiring medical assistance made available under the previous sentence to be made available to individuals not described in such sentence.

"(6) DOCUMENTATION OF RECEIPT OF MEDICAL CARE SERVICES.—A residential setting must include, in the clinical records of each client, documentation of the provision of medical care services to the client. Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as requiring a State to make available medical assistance under this title for all types or elements of medical care services for such clients.

In this section, the term 'residential setting' does not include a setting in which fewer than 3 unrelated adults reside.

"(g) STATE QUALITY ASSURANCE PROGRAM FOR SERVICES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Each State which elects to cover community habilitation and supportive services under this title shall establish a program for assuring the quality of community habilitation and supportive services provided, and for protecting and promoting the rights of clients receiving such services, under this title, consistent with the objectives described in subsection (b).

"(2) ELEMENTS OF PROGRAM.—A program under this subsection shall provide, in a manner specified by the State—

"(A) for identifying a State agency responsible for implementing the program;

"(B) for the publication of standards, relating to the quality of community habilitation and supportive services and relating to clients' rights, which are consistent with the objectives of independence, productivity, and integration into the community described in subsection (b);

"(C) for a system of periodic monitoring (through onsite, unannounced reviews and including measurement of client satisfaction) of compliance with standards, of investigation of complaints of violations of standards, and of public disclosure of results of such monitoring and investigations;

"(D) for a system of enforcement of standards, including specified remedies;

"(E) for public participation in the development of the program; and

"(F) for educational programs for providers of community habilitation and supportive services, clients, parents, and legal guardians, respecting the quality assurance program.

A State's program under this subsection may include incentives to reward, through public recognition, incentive payments, or both, providers of community habilitation and supportive services that provide the highest quality care to clients under this title.

"(3) NO SECRETARIAL REVIEW.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as authorizing the Secretary to review or approve a State quality assurance program established to meet the requirements of this subsection if the program, on its face, meets such requirements.

"(4) NO MATCHING PAYMENT AVAILABLE.—Notwithstanding section 1903, no Federal financial participation shall be available under section 1903(a) to a State with respect to its expenditures in establishing or carrying out its quality assurance program under this subsection.

"(h) SURVEY AND CERTIFICATION PROCESS.—

"(1) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE STATE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), under each State plan under this title, the State shall be responsible for certifying the compliance of providers of community habilitation and supportive services, and of residential settings in which such services are provided, with the requirements of subsections (e) and (f).

"(B) EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM.—Each State shall conduct periodic educational programs for the staff and clients in residential settings in which community habilitation and supportive services are provided, and the parents (if the client is a minor) and legal guardians (if any) of such clients, in order to present current regulations, procedures, and policies under this section.

"(C) INVESTIGATION OF ALLEGATIONS OF CLIENT NEGLECT AND ABUSE AND MISAPPROPRIATION OF CLIENT PROPERTY.—The State shall provide, through the agency responsible for surveys and certification of providers of community habilitation and supportive services and residential settings under this subsection, for a process for the receipt, review, and investigation of allegations of client neglect and abuse (including injuries of unknown source) by individuals providing such services and of misappropriation of client property by such individuals. The State shall, after notice to the individual involved and a reasonable opportunity for hearing for the individual to rebut allegations, make a finding as to the accuracy of the allegations. If the State finds that an individual has neglected or abused a client receiving community habilitation and supportive services or misappropriated such client's property, the State shall notify the individual against whom the finding is made. A State shall not make a finding that an individual has neglected a client if the individual demonstrates that such neglect was caused by factors beyond the control of the individual. The State shall provide for public disclosure of findings under this subparagraph upon request and for inclusion, in any such disclosure of such findings, of any brief statement (or of a clear and accurate summary thereof) of the individual disputing such findings. The findings relating to such allegations shall be made available, on request, to the State protection and advocacy system established under part C of the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act and to other appropriate agency or agencies with whom a client, parent, or guardian may file a complaint respecting client abuse and neglect and misappropriation of client property.

"(D) CONSTRUCTION.—The failure of the Secretary to issue regulations to carry out this subsection shall not relieve a State of its responsibility under this subsection.

"(2) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SECRETARY.—The Secretary shall be responsible for certifying the compliance of State providers of community habilitation and supportive services, and of State residential settings in which such services are provided, with the requirements of subsections (e) and (f).

"(3) FREQUENCY OF CERTIFICATIONS.—Certification of providers and settings under this subsection shall occur no less frequently than once every 12 months.

"(4) SURVEYS AND REVIEWS.—

"(A) SURVEYS OF RESIDENTIAL SETTINGS.—The certification under this subsection with respect to a setting must be based on a survey. Such survey for a residential setting must be conducted without prior notice to the setting. Any individual who notifies (or causes to be notified) a residential setting of the time or date on which such a survey is scheduled to be conducted is subject to a civil money penalty of not to exceed $2,000. The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply to a civil money penalty under the previous sentence in the same manner as such provisions apply to a penalty or proceeding under section 1128A(a). The Secretary shall review each State's procedures for scheduling and conducting such surveys to assure that the State has taken all reasonable steps to avoid giving notice of such a survey through the scheduling procedures and the conduct of the surveys themselves.

"(B) SURVEY PROTOCOL.—Surveys under this paragraph shall be conducted based upon a protocol which the Secretary has provided for under subsection (j).

"(C) PROHIBITION OF CONFLICT OF INTEREST IN SURVEY TEAM MEMBERSHIP.—A State and the Secretary may not use as a member of a survey team under this paragraph an individual who is serving (or has served within the previous 2 years) as a member of the staff of, or as a consultant to, the provider or residential setting being surveyed (or the person responsible for such setting) respecting compliance with the requirements of subsections (e) and (f) or who has a personal or familial financial interest in the provider or setting being surveyed.

"(D) TRAINING REQUIRED.—No individual shall serve on or after January 1, 1992, as a member of a survey team under this paragraph or paragraph (5) unless the individual has successfully completed a training and testing program in survey and certification techniques that has been approved by the Secretary under subsection (j)(3).

"(E) REVIEWS OF PROVIDERS.—The certification under this subsection with respect to a provider (other than with respect to a residential setting) must be based on a periodic review of the provider's performance.

"(5) VALIDATION SURVEYS AND REVIEWS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall conduct onsite surveys of a representative sample of residential settings in each State, within 2 months of the date of surveys conducted under paragraph (4) by the State, in a sufficient number to allow inferences about the adequacies of each State's surveys conducted under paragraph (4). In conducting such surveys, the Secretary shall use the same survey protocols as the State is required to use under paragraph (4). If the State has determined that an individual setting meets the requirements of subsection (e) and (f), but the Secretary determines that the setting does not meet such requirements, the Secretary's determination as to the setting's noncompliance with such requirements is binding and supersedes that of the State survey.

"(B) SPECIAL SURVEYS AND REVIEWS OF COMPLIANCE.—Where the Secretary has reason to question the compliance of a provider or setting with any of the requirements of subsections (e) and (f), the Secretary may conduct a survey of the setting or a review of the provider and, on the basis of that survey or review, make independent and binding determinations concerning the extent to which the setting or provider meets such requirements.

"(6) INVESTIGATION OF COMPLAINTS AND MONITORING.—Each State and the Secretary shall maintain procedures and adequate staff to investigate complaints of violations of requirements by providers of community habilitation and supportive services or by residential settings in which such services are provided.

"(7) DISCLOSURE OF RESULTS OF INSPECTIONS AND ACTIVITIES.—

"(A) PUBLIC INFORMATION.—Each State, and the Secretary, shall make available to the public—

"(i) information respecting all surveys, reviews, and certifications made under this subsection respecting providers and settings, including statements of deficiencies and plans of correction,

"(ii) copies of cost reports (if any) of such providers and settings filed under this title,

"(iii) copies of statements of ownership under section 1124, and

"(iv) information disclosed under section 1126.

"(B) NOTICE TO PROTECTION AND ADVOCACY SYSTEM.—Each State shall notify the agency responsible for the protection and advocacy system for developmentally disabled individuals established under part C of the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of the State's findings of noncompliance with any of the requirements of subsections (e) and (f) with respect to a provider or setting in the State.

"(C) ACCESS TO FRAUD CONTROL UNITS.—Each State shall provide its State medicaid fraud and abuse control unit (established under section 1903(q)) with access to all information of the State agency responsible for surveys, reviews, and certifications under this subsection.

"(D) NOTICE TO FAMILY.—If a State finds that a provider or setting has provided services of substandard quality, the State shall notify the parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any) of each client with respect to which such finding is made.

"(i) ENFORCEMENT PROCESS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—If a State finds, on the basis of a survey or review under subsection (f)(2) or otherwise, that a provider of community habilitation and supportive services or a residential setting in which such services are provided no longer meets the requirements of this section (other than standards developed by the State under subsection (g)), and further finds that the provider's or setting's deficiencies—

"(A) immediately jeopardize the health or safety of its clients, the State shall take immediate action to remove the jeopardy and correct the deficiencies through the remedy specified in paragraph (2)(A)(iii), or terminate the provider's or setting's participation under the State plan and may provide, in addition, for one or more of the other remedies described in paragraph (2); or

"(B) do not immediately jeopardize the health or safety of its clients, the State may—

"(i) terminate the provider's or setting's participation under the State plan,

"(ii) provide for one or more of the remedies described in paragraph (2), or

"(iii) do both;

but in any case in which the Secretary has not provided for a civil money penalty under paragraph (3)(C)(i), the State shall provide for a civil money penalty under paragraph (2)(A)(i) for each day in which the State finds that the provider or setting was not in compliance with such requirements. Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as restricting the remedies available to a State to remedy a provider's or setting's deficiencies. If the State finds that a provider or setting meets such requirements but, as of a previous period, did not meet such requirements, the State shall provide for a civil money penalty under paragraph (2)(A)(ii) for the days on which it finds that the provider or setting was not in compliance with such requirements.

"(2) SPECIFIED REMEDIES.—

"(A) LISTING.—Each State shall establish by law (whether statute or regulation) at least the following remedies:

"(i) Denial of payment under the State plan with respect to any individual admitted to a residential setting involved after such notice to the public and to the setting as may be provided for by the State.

"(ii) A civil money penalty assessed and collected, with interest, for each day in which the provider or setting is or was out of compliance with a requirement of this section. Funds collected by a State as a result of imposition of such a penalty (or as a result of the imposition by the State of a civil money penalty for activities described in subsection (h)(4)(A)) shall be applied to the protection of the health or property of clients of providers of community habilitation and supportive services that the State or the Secretary finds deficient, including payment for the costs of relocation of clients, maintenance of operation of a provider pending correction of deficiencies or closure, and reimbursement of clients for personal funds lost.

"(iii) The appointment of temporary management to oversee the operation of a residential setting and to assure the health and safety of the setting's clients, where there is a need for temporary management while—

"(I) there is an orderly closure of the setting, or

"(II) improvements are made in order to bring the setting into compliance with all the requirements of this section.

The temporary management under this clause shall not be terminated under subclause (II) until the State has determined that the setting has the management capability to ensure continued compliance with all the requirements of this section.

"(iv) The authority, in the case of an emergency, to close a residential setting, to transfer clients in that setting to other settings, or both.

The State also shall specify criteria, as to when and how each of such remedies is to be applied, the amounts of any fines, and the severity of each of these remedies, to be used in the imposition of such remedies. Such criteria shall be designed so as to minimize the time between the identification of violations and final imposition of the remedies and shall provide for the imposition of incrementally more severe fines for repeated or uncorrected deficiencies. In addition, the State may provide for other specified remedies.

"(B) DEADLINE AND GUIDANCE.—As a condition for approval of a State plan for calendar quarters in which the State plan provides for coverage of community habilitation and supportive services (including under a waiver approved under section 1915(c), pursuant to subsection (b)(2)(A)), each State shall have in effect the remedies described in clauses (i) through (iv) of subparagraph (A). The Secretary shall provide, through regulations or otherwise by not later than July 1, 1990, guidance to States in establishing such remedies; but the failure of the Secretary to provide such guidance shall not relieve a State of the responsibility for establishing such remedies.

"(C) ASSURING PROMPT COMPLIANCE.—If a residential setting has not complied with any of the requirements of this section within 3 months after the date the setting is found to be out of compliance with such requirements, the State shall impose the remedy described in subparagraph (A)(i) for all individuals who are admitted to the setting after such date.

"(D) FUNDING.—The reasonable expenditures of a State to provide for temporary management and other expenses associated with implementing the remedies described in clauses (iii) and (iv) of subparagraph (A) shall be considered, for purposes of section 1903(a)(7), to be necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the State plan.

"(3) SECRETARIAL AUTHORITY.—

"(A) FOR STATE PROVIDERS AND SETTINGS.—With respect to a State provider of community habilitation and supportive services and a State residential setting in which such services are provided, the Secretary shall have the authority and duties of a State under this subsection, including the authority to impose the remedies described in clauses (i) and (ii) of paragraph (2)(A), except that the remedy described in subparagraph (C)(i) shall be substituted for the remedy described in paragraph (2)(A)(ii).

"(B) OTHER PROVIDERS AND SETTINGS.—With respect to any other provider of community habilitation and supportive services and any other residential setting in which such services are provided in a State, if the Secretary finds that a provider or setting no longer meets a requirement of this section (other than a standard developed by the State under subsection (g)) and further finds that the provider's or setting's deficiencies—

"(i) immediately jeopardize the health or safety of its clients, the Secretary shall take immediate action to remove the jeopardy and correct the deficiencies through the remedy specified in subparagraph (C)(ii), or terminate the provider's or setting's participation under the State plan and may provide, in addition, for the remedy described in subparagraph (C)(i); or

"(ii) do not immediately jeopardize the health or safety of its clients, the Secretary may impose either or both of the remedies described in subparagraph (C);

but in any case the Secretary shall provide for a civil money penalty under paragraph (2)(A)(i) for each day in which the Secretary finds that the provider or setting was not in compliance with such requirements. Nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed as restricting the remedies available to the Secretary to remedy a provider's or setting's deficiencies. If the Secretary finds that a provider or setting meets such requirements but, as of a previous period, did not meet such requirements, the Secretary shall provide for a civil money penalty under subparagraph (C)(i) for the days on which he finds that the provider or setting was not in compliance with such requirements.

"(C) SPECIFIED REMEDIES.—If the Secretary finds that a provider or setting has not met an applicable requirement:

"(i) AUTHORITY WITH RESPECT TO CIVIL MONEY PENALTIES.—The Secretary shall impose a civil money penalty in an amount not to exceed $10,000 for each day of noncompliance. The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply to a civil money penalty under the previous sentence in the same manner as such provisions apply to a penalty or proceeding under section 1128A(a).

"(ii) APPOINTMENT OF TEMPORARY MANAGEMENT.—In consultation with the State, the Secretary may appoint temporary management to oversee the operation of a residential setting and to assure the health and safety of the setting's clients, where there is a need for temporary management while—

"(I) there is an orderly closure of the setting, or

"(II) improvements are made in order to bring the setting into compliance with all the requirements of this section.

The temporary management under this clause shall not be terminated under subclause (II) until the Secretary has determined that the setting has the management capability to ensure continued compliance with all the requirements of this section.

The Secretary shall specify criteria, as to when and how each of such remedies is to be applied, the amounts of any fines, and the severity of each of these remedies, to be used in the imposition of such remedies. Such criteria shall be designed so as to minimize the time between the identification of violations and final imposition of the remedies and shall provide for the imposition of incrementally more severe fines for repeated or uncorrected deficiencies.

"(4) EFFECTIVE PERIOD OF DENIAL OF PAYMENT.—A finding to deny payment under this subsection shall terminate when the State or Secretary (or both, as the case may be) finds that the provider or setting is in compliance with all the requirements of this section.

"(j) SECRETARIAL RESPONSIBILITIES.—

"(1) PUBLICATION OF INTERIM AND FINAL REQUIREMENTS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall publish, by July 1, 1990, an interim regulation, and by October 1, 1991, a final regulation, that sets forth interim and final requirements, respectively, consistent with subparagraph (B), to protect the health, safety, and welfare of clients receiving community habilitation and supportive services, including—

"(i) the requirements of subsection (e) (relating to providers of community habilitation and supportive services) and subsection (f) (relating to residential settings), and

"(ii) survey protocols for residential settings and guidelines for reviews of providers (for use under subsection (h)) which relate to such requirements.

In developing such protocols for residential settings, the Secretary shall take into account the type of residential setting.

"(B) MINIMUM PROTECTIONS.—Interim and final requirements under subparagraph (A) shall assure, through methods other than reliance on State licensure processes or the State quality assurance programs under subsection (g), that—

"(i) individuals receiving community habilitation and supportive services are protected from neglect, physical and sexual abuse, and financial exploitation;

"(ii) a provider of community habilitation and supportive services and a residential setting may not use individuals who have been convicted of child or client abuse, neglect, or mistreatment or of a felony involving physical harm to an individual and shall take all reasonable steps to determine whether applicants for employment by the provider or in the setting have histories indicating involvement in child or client abuse, neglect, or mistreatment or a criminal record involving physical harm to an individual;

"(iii) individuals or entities delivering such services are not unjustly enriched as a result of abusive financial arrangements (such as owner lease-backs); and

"(iv) individuals or entities delivering such services to clients, or relatives of such individuals, are prohibited from being named beneficiaries of life insurance policies purchased by (or on behalf of) such clients.

"(C) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as authorizing the Secretary to develop standards relating to the quality of community habilitation and supportive services beyond the scope of the minimum requirements for the protection of the health, safety, and welfare of clients under subsections (e) and (f).

"(2) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary shall make available to States, providers of community habilitation and supportive services, and clients (and their representatives) technical assistance with respect to the implementation of this section, including, upon request of a State, such assistance with respect to the development and operation of State quality assurance programs under subsection (g).

"(3) APPROVAL OF TRAINING PROGRAMS.—The Secretary shall provide, by not later than October 1, 1990, for the approval of comprehensive training programs of State and Federal surveyors in the conduct of surveys under paragraphs (4) and (5) of subsection (h).

"(4) NO DELEGATION TO STATES.—The Secretary's authority under this subsection shall not be delegated to States.

"(5) NO PREVENTION OF MORE STRINGENT REQUIREMENTS BY STATES.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing States from imposing requirements that are more stringent than the requirements published or developed by the Secretary under this subsection.

"(k) DENIAL OF PAYMENT FOR SERVICES OR SETTINGS FAILING TO MEET MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS.—No payment may be made under section 1903(a) for community habilitation and supportive services furnished on and after October 1, 1991, including such services furnished under section 1915(c) or 1905(a)(22), if the services, or the residential setting (if any) in which the services are provided, do not meet the minimum requirements described in subsections (e) and (f).

"(l) NONDUPLICATION OF PAYMENTS.—Payments made to a habilitation facility for providing community habilitation or supportive services shall not include payment for any services for which payment is otherwise made under this title to such facility.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to community habilitation and supportive services furnished on or after July 1, 1990.

(c) WAIVER OF PAPERWORK REDUCTION, ETC.—Chapter 35 of title 44, United States Code, and Executive Order 12291 shall not apply to information and regulations required for purposes of carrying out this subpart and implementing the amendments made by this subpart.

SEC. 4223. ELIMINATING PRIOR INSTITUTIONALIZATION REQUIREMENT UNDER WAIVER AUTHORITY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1915(c)(5) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396n(c)(5)) is amended by striking ", with respect to" and all that follows through "retarded".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section with respect to waivers approved or renewed on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, without regard to whether or not final regulations to carry out such amendments have been promulgated by such date.

SEC. 4224. ANNUAL REPORT AND EVALUATION OF OUTCOME-ORIENTED INSTRUMENTS AND METHODS.

(a) ANNUAL REPORT.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to the Congress annually on the extent to which providers of community habilitation and supportive services and residential settings in which such services are provided are complying with the requirements of subsections (e) and (f) of section 1927 of the Social Security Act (as added by the amendments made by this subpart) and the number and type of enforcement actions taken by States and the Secretary under section 1927(h) of such Act (as added by such amendments).

(b) EVALUATION OF OUTCOME-ORIENTED INSTRUMENTS AND METHODS.—The Secretary shall study the effectiveness of existing outcome-oriented instruments and methods in evaluating and assuring the quality of community habilitation and supportive services and shall report to Congress, by not later than January 1, 1992, such recommendations as the Secretary deems appropriate respecting the use of such instruments and methods (or the development of other instruments and methods) for evaluating and assuring the quality of community habilitation and supportive services furnished under title XIX of the Social Security Act.

Subpart 2—Quality Assurance for Habilitation Facility Services

SEC. 4231. REQUIREMENTS FOR HABILITATION FACILITIES.

(a) SPECIFICATION OF FACILITY REQUIREMENTS.—Title XIX of the Social Security Act, as amended by section 303(a) of the Family Support Act of 1988 (Public Law 100-485) and as amended by sections 4204(b) and 4221(b) of this subtitle, is amended by inserting after section 1927 the following new section:

"REQUIREMENTS FOR HABILITATION FACILITIES

"SEC. 1928. (a) DEFINITIONS AND APPLICATION OF SECTION.—

"(1) DEFINITIONS.—

"(A) HABILITATION FACILITY.—In this title, the term 'habilitation facility' means an institution (or a distinct part of an institution) which—

"(i) is primarily engaged in providing health or habilitation services to individuals with mental retardation or a related condition and is not primarily for the care and treatment of mental diseases; and

"(ii) meets the requirements for an habilitation facility described in subsections (b), (c), and (d) of this section.

"(B) CLIENT.—In this section, the term 'client' means, with respect to an habilitation facility, an individual with mental retardation or a related condition who is admitted to the facility.

"(2) APPLICATION TO WAIVERS UNDER SECTION 1115.—In the case of any State which is providing medical assistance under a waiver granted under section 1115(a) with respect to habilitation facility services, the Secretary shall require the State to meet the requirements of this section in the same manner as the State would be required to meet such requirements if the State had in effect a plan approved under this title.

"(b) REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO PROVISION OF SERVICES.—

"(1) QUALITY OF LIFE.—An habilitation facility must care for its clients in such a manner and in such an environment as will promote maintenance or enhancement of the quality of life, independence, productivity, and integration into the community of each client.

"(2) SCOPE OF SERVICES AND ACTIVITIES UNDER INDIVIDUAL PROGRAM PLAN.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—An habilitation facility must provide each client, in accordance with an individual program plan, with continuous active treatment (as defined in subparagraph (B)) which is coordinated and monitored by a qualified mental retardation professional.

"(B) ACTIVE TREATMENT DEFINED.—In this section, the term 'active treatment' means services directed towards—

"(i) the acquisition of behaviors and skills necessary for the client to function with as much self-determination, independence, productivity, and integration into the community as possible, and

"(ii) the prevention or deceleration of regression or loss of current optimal functional status.

Such term includes aggressive, consistent implementation of a program of specialized and generic training, treatment, and health services. Such term does not include services to maintain generally independent clients who are able to function with little supervision or in the absence of a continuous active treatment program.

"(3) INDIVIDUAL PROGRAM PLAN.—

"(A) DEVELOPMENT OF IPPS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—An habilitation facility must develop (or provide for the development of), not later than 30 days after the date of admission of each client, an individual program plan (in this section referred to as an 'IPP') which states specific objectives necessary to meet the client's needs, as identified in the comprehensive functional assessment conducted under paragraph (4).

"(ii) PREPARATION BY AN INTERDISCIPLINARY TEAM.—Each IPP shall be prepared by an appropriate interdisciplinary team and shall be periodically reviewed and revised by such a team after each assessment under paragraph (4). Such team shall include, in the case of a client who has a seizure disorder, a professional with expertise in the diagnosis and treatment of seizure disorders. Such team shall include, in the case of an IPP which provides for physical or chemical restraints, a person who has expertise in positive behavioral interventions.

"(iii) REQUIRED PARTICIPATION IN DEVELOPMENT OF IPP.—In developing an IPP for a client, the facility shall notify, and provide for and encourage the participation of, the client, the client's parents (if the client is a minor), and the client's legal guardian (if any).

"(iv) PERMISSIVE PARTICIPATION OF PARENTS OF ADULT CLIENTS.—A parent (if the client is not a minor) who is not a legal guardian of the client may participate in developing the IPP unless the client objects to the parent's participation.

"(B) AVAILABILITY.—A copy of each IPP must, consistent with subsection (c)(1)(A)(iv), be made accessible to all relevant staff, including staffs of other agencies who work with the client, the client's legal guardian (if any), and, unless the client objects, to the client's parents.

"(C) MEDICAL CARE PLAN.—The IPP shall include a formalized plan for the provision of physician, licensed nursing care, and related medical care services (including access to appropriate medical specialists) if the client's physician determines that the client requires such a plan. In the case of an IPP under which drug therapy is provided for a client with a seizure disorder, the plan must provide for periodic reviews of the client's response to such therapy.

"(4) COMPREHENSIVE FUNCTIONAL ASSESSMENT.—

"(A) REQUIREMENT.—An habilitation facility must provide for comprehensive functional assessments, and review of such assessments, of each client by an interdisciplinary team. Such an assessment and review must identify each client's developmental and behavioral abilities and management needs. In the case of a client with a seizure disorder, the assessment must include a determination, by a professional with expertise in the diagnosis and treatment of such disorders, of the classification of the type of disorder in accordance with the most recent version of the International Classification of Epileptic Seizures.

"(B) FREQUENCY.—

"(i) ASSESSMENTS.—Such an assessment must be conducted promptly upon (but no later than 30 days after the date of) admission for each client admitted on or after January 1, 1991, and by not later than January 1, 1992, for each client of the facility on that date.

"(ii) REVIEWS.—A review of each such assessment shall be performed in no case less often than once every 12 months.

"(C) USE.—The results of such an assessment or review shall be used in developing, reviewing, and revising the client's IPP under paragraph (3).

"(D) REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO PREADMISSION SCREENING FOR INDIVIDUALS WITH MENTAL RETARDATION OR A RELATED CONDITION.—An habilitation facility must not admit, on or after January 1, 1991, any new client who is an individual with mental retardation or a related condition (as defined in section 1905(s)) unless the State mental retardation or developmental disability authority has determined prior to admission, based on an independent evaluation performed by a person or entity other than the facility, that the individual requires the level of services provided by an habilitation facility. Such determination shall not affect an individual's eligibility for services other than habilitation facility services.

"(5) PROVISION OF SERVICES AND ACTIVITIES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—To the extent needed to fulfill all IPPs described in paragraph (3), an habilitation facility must provide (or arrange for the provision of)—

"(i) physician services 24 hours a day;

"(ii) annual physical examinations (including vision and hearing examination, routine immunizations and tuberculosis control, and routine laboratory examinations);

"(iii) licensed nursing services sufficient to meet health needs of clients;

"(iv) comprehensive dental diagnostic services, including—

"(I) a complete extraoral and intraoral examination, not later than one month after the date of admission to the facility (unless such an examination was completed within 12 months before admission), and

"(II) periodic examination and diagnosis performed at least annually;

"(v) comprehensive dental treatment services, including—

"(I) provision of emergency dental treatment on a 24-hour-a-day basis by a licensed dentist, and

"(II) dental care needed for relief of pain and infections, restoration of teeth, and maintenance of dental health;

"(vi) routine and emergency drugs and biologicals for clients and procedures that assure the accurate acquiring, receiving, dispensing, and administering of all drugs and biologicals and that assure the accurate recording of the administration by staff of drugs and biologicals to clients and of the self-administration of drugs and biologicals by clients;

"(vii) professional program services needed to implement the active treatment plan defined in each client's IPP; and

"(viii) meal services, including at least 3 meals daily, and food and nutrition services that assure that the meals meet the daily nutritional and special dietary needs of each client.

The services provided or arranged by the facility must meet professional standards of quality. The facility may, to the extent permitted by State law, utilize physician assistants and nurse practitioners to provide services described in clauses (i) and (ii).

"(B) QUALIFIED PERSONS PROVIDING SERVICES.—Services described in subparagraph (A) must be provided by qualified persons in accordance with each client's IPP.

"(C) FACILITY STAFFING.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—An habilitation facility must have, or arrange for the provision of, sufficient direct care staff to meet the needs of clients at the facility.

"(ii) NO DEPENDENCE ON VOLUNTEERS.—An habilitation facility may not use a client or volunteer to meet the requirements of this subparagraph.

"(iii) NO USE OF CERTAIN INDIVIDUALS.—An habilitation facility may not use individuals in the facility who have been convicted of child or client abuse, neglect, or mistreatment or of a felony involving physical harm to an individual. The facility must take all reasonable steps to determine whether applicants for employment at the facility have histories indicating involvement in child or client abuse, neglect, or mistreatment or a criminal record involving physical harm to an individual and, if an applicant has such a history, not to use the applicant in the facility.

"(6) PHYSICIAN SUPERVISION.—An habilitation facility must—

"(A) require that the health care of every client be provided under the supervision of a physician, and

"(B) provide for having a physician available to furnish necessary medical care in case of emergency.

"(7) RECORDS.—An habilitation facility must maintain records on all clients, which records include clinical records, IPPs (described in paragraph (3)), and the clients' comprehensive functional assessments (described in paragraph (4)), as well as the findings of any preadmission screen.

"(c) REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO CLIENTS' RIGHTS.—

"(1) GENERAL RIGHTS.—

"(A) SPECIFIED RIGHTS.—An habilitation facility must protect and promote the rights of each client, including each of the following rights:

"(i) FREE FROM ABUSE.—The right to be free from physical, verbal, sexual, or psychological abuse, corporal or psychological punishment, aversive stimuli, and involuntary seclusion. Nothing in the previous sentence shall be construed to prohibit the use of 'time-out' rooms for periods of less than one hour, if the use of such a room is subject to review by the interdisciplinary team (described in subsection (b)(4)) to ensure the use of the least restrictive and most positive behavior management intervention and consistency with the objectives of the client's IPP.

"(ii) FREE FROM RESTRAINTS.—The right to be free from any physical restraints or medications imposed for purposes of discipline or convenience of the staff or as a substitute for active treatment and not required to treat the client's medical symptoms. Any such imposition of such physical restraints or medications must be subject to review by the interdisciplinary team (described in subsection (b)(4)) to ensure protection of this right and consistency with the objectives of the client's IPP.

"(iii) PRIVACY.—The right to privacy with regard to accommodations, medical treatment, written and telephonic communications, visits, and meetings of family and friends and of client groups.

"(iv) CONFIDENTIALITY.—The right to confidentiality of personal and clinical records.

"(v) ACCOMMODATION OF NEEDS.—The right—

"(I) to reside and receive services with reasonable accommodations of individual needs and preferences (including the right of a husband and wife living in the same facility to share a room and including the right to retain and use personal possessions and clothing), except where the health or safety of the individual or other clients would be endangered, and

"(II) to receive adequate notice and explanation of the reasons therefor before the room or roommate of the client in the facility is changed and, other than in extraordinary circumstances, to disapprove such a change.

"(vi) DIGNITY.—The right to be treated with dignity in a manner consistent with the client's chronological age.

"(vii) GRIEVANCES.—The right to voice grievances with respect to treatment or care that is (or fails to be) furnished, without discrimination or reprisal (or threat of discrimination or reprisal) for voicing the grievances and the right to prompt efforts by the facility to resolve grievances the client may have, including those with respect to the behavior of other clients.

"(viii) PARTICIPATION IN CLIENT AND FAMILY GROUPS.—The right of the client to organize and participate in client groups in the facility and the right of the client's family to meet in the facility with the families of other clients in the facility. Nothing in this clause shall be construed as requiring a facility to provide for a room specifically designed to accommodate meetings under this clause.

"(ix) PARTICIPATION IN OTHER ACTIVITIES.—The right of the client to participate in social, religious, and community activities that do not interfere with the rights of other clients in the facility.

"(x) EXAMINATION OF SURVEY RESULTS.—The right to examine, upon reasonable request, the results of the most recent survey of the facility conducted by the Secretary or a State with respect to the facility and any plan of correction in effect with respect to the facility.

"(xi) FREE CHOICE WITH RESPECT TO MEDICAL CARE AND TREATMENT.—The right to choose a personal attending physician and to choose a qualified mental retardation professional or case manager, to be fully informed in advance about care and treatment, to be fully informed in advance of any changes in care or treatment that may affect the client's well-being, and to participate in planning care and treatment or changes in such care and treatment.

"(xii) VOLUNTARY SERVICES.—The right not to be compelled to perform services for the facility and, if the client chooses to perform such services, to be compensated for such services at prevailing wages commensurate with the client's productivity.

"(xiii) OTHER RIGHTS.—Any other right established by the Secretary.

Clause (v) shall not be construed as requiring the provision of a private room.

"(B) NOTICE OF RIGHTS.—A habilitation facility must—

"(i) inform each client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any), orally and in writing at the time of admission to the facility, of the client's legal rights during the stay at the facility; and

"(ii) make available to each client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any), upon reasonable request, a written statement of such rights (which statement is updated upon changes in such rights).

The written description of legal rights under this subparagraph shall include a description of the protection of personal funds under paragraph (6) and the mailing address, contact person, and telephone number of the State protection and advocacy system (established under part C of the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act) or other appropriate agency with whom the client, parent, or guardian may file a complaint respecting client abuse and neglect and misappropriation of client property in the facility.

"(C) RIGHTS OF INCOMPETENT CLIENTS.—In the case of a client adjudged incompetent under the laws of a State, the rights of the client under this title shall devolve upon, and, to the extent judged necessary by a court of competent jurisdiction, be exercised by, a person appointed under State law to act on the client's behalf. For purposes of the previous sentence, the term 'person' includes an organization which is independent of a facility.

"(D) USE OF PSYCHOPHARMACOLOGIC DRUGS.—Psychopharmacologic drugs may be administered only on the orders of a physician and only as an integral part of a plan (included in the IPP) designed to eliminate or modify the symptoms or behaviors for which the drugs are prescribed and only if, at least annually, an independent, external consultant trained in the administration and interaction of psychopharmacologic drugs reviews the appropriateness of the drug plan of each client receiving such drugs.

"(2) TRANSFER AND DISCHARGE RIGHTS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—A habilitation facility must permit each client to remain in the facility and must not transfer or discharge the client from the facility unless—

"(i) the transfer or discharge is necessary to meet the client's welfare and the client's welfare cannot be met in the facility;

"(ii) the transfer or discharge is appropriate because the client no longer requires continuous active treatment;

"(iii) the safety of individuals in the facility is endangered;

"(iv) the health of individuals in the facility would otherwise be endangered; or

"(v) the facility ceases to operate or the transfer or discharge is pursuant to a court order or under a reduction plan approved by the Secretary under subsection (i).

In each of the cases described in clauses (i) through (iv), the basis for the transfer or discharge must be documented in the client's clinical record. In the cases described in clauses (i) and (ii), the documentation must be made by a qualified mental retardation professional in consultation with the appropriate interdisciplinary team that developed the client's IPP, and in the case described in clause (iv) the documentation must be made by a physician. A facility may not transfer or discharge a client under clause (i) or (ii) unless the service needs of the client recommended under subparagraph (C)(ii) will be met in the client's new living environment. A facility may not transfer or discharge a client under clause (iii) or (iv) unless adequate arrangements have been made for an alternative placement.

"(B) PRETRANSFER AND PREDISCHARGE NOTICE.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Before effecting a transfer or discharge of a client (including such a transfer or discharge under a reduction plan under subsection (i)), a habilitation facility must—

"(I) notify the client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any) of the transfer or discharge and the reasons therefor,

"(II) record the reasons in the client's clinical record (including any documentation required under subparagraph (A)), and

"(III) include in the notice the items described in clause (iii).

"(ii) TIMING OF NOTICE.—The notice under clause (i)(I) must be made at least 60 days in advance of the client's transfer or discharge except—

"(I) in a case described in clause (iii) or (iv) of subparagraph (A);

"(II) in a case described in clause (i) of subparagraph (A), where a more immediate transfer or discharge is necessitated by the client's urgent medical needs; or

"(III) in a case where a client has not resided in the facility for 60 days.

In the case of such exceptions, notice must be given as many days before the date of the transfer or discharge as is practicable.

"(iii) ITEMS INCLUDED IN NOTICE.—Each notice under clause (i) must include—

"(I) for transfers or discharges effected on or after January 1, 1991, notice of the client's right to appeal the transfer or discharge under the State process established under subsection (e)(5)(B), and

"(II) in the case of clients with developmental disabilities, the mailing address, contact person, and telephone number of the agency responsible for the protection and advocacy system for developmentally disabled individuals established under part C of the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act.

"(C) SUMMARY, POST-DISCHARGE PLAN, AND ORIENTATION.—If a client is to be either transferred or discharged (including such a transfer or discharge under a reduction plan under subsection (i)), the facility must—

"(i) provide a final summary of the client's developmental, behavioral, social, health, and nutritional status and skills at the time for the discharge that is available for release to authorized persons and agencies, with the consent of the client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any),

"(ii) provide recommendations relating to the service needs of the client in the client's new living environment; and

"(iii) provide the client with sufficient preparation and orientation (taking into account the client's length of stay at the facility) to ensure safe and orderly transfer or discharge from the facility.

"(3) ACCESS AND VISITATION RIGHTS.—A habilitation facility must—

"(A) permit immediate access to any client by any representative of the Secretary, by any representative of the State, by the protection and advocacy system described in paragraph (2)(B)(iii)(II), or by the client's physician or qualified mental retardation professional;

"(D) permit reasonable access to a client by any other entity or individual that provides health, social, legal, or other services to the client or that is a friend of the client, subject to the right of the client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any) to deny or withdraw consent at any time;

"(E) permit representatives of the State protection and advocacy system (described in paragraph (2)(B)(iii)(II)), with the permission of the client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any) and consistent with State law, to examine a client's records; and

"(F) permit representatives of such State protection and advocacy system to have access to any client and to examine the client's records, in the case of any client—

"(i) who, by reason of the client's mental or physical condition, is unable to authorize such examination,

"(ii) who does not have a legal guardian, conservator, or other legal representative, or for whom the legal guardian is the State, and

"(iii) with respect to whom a complaint has been received by such system or with respect to whom there is probable cause to believe that such client has been subject to abuse and neglect.

"(4) EQUAL ACCESS TO QUALITY CARE.—A habilitation facility must establish and maintain identical policies and practices regarding the admission, transfer, and discharge of, and the provision of services required under the State plan for, all individuals regardless of source of payment.

"(5) ADMISSIONS POLICY.—With respect to admissions practices, an habilitation facility must—

"(A)(i) not require individuals applying to reside or residing in the facility to waive their rights to benefits under this title, (ii) not require oral or written assurance that such individuals are not eligible for, or will not apply for, benefits under this title, and (iii) provide to such individuals (and their representatives) oral and written information about how to apply for and use such benefits and how to receive refunds for previous payments covered by such benefits;

"(B) not require a third party guarantee of payment to the facility as a condition of admission (or expedited admission) to, or continued stay in, the facility; and

"(C) in the case of an individual who is entitled to medical assistance for habilitation facility services, not charge, solicit, accept, or receive, in addition to any amount otherwise required to be paid under the State plan under this title, any gift, money, donation, or other consideration as a precondition of admitting (or expediting the admission of) the individual to the facility or as a requirement for the individual's continued stay in the facility.

"(6) MANAGEMENT OF CLIENT FUNDS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The habilitation facility—

"(i) whether or not a client deposits personal funds with the facility, must allow individual clients to manage their financial affairs and teach them to do so to the extent of their capabilities, and

"(ii) upon the written authorization of the client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any), must hold, safeguard, and account for such personal funds under a system established and maintained by the facility in accordance with this paragraph.

"(B) FACILITY MANAGEMENT OF PERSONAL FUNDS.—Upon a facility's acceptance of written authorization under subparagraph (A)(ii), the facility must manage and account for the personal funds of the client deposited with the facility as follows:

"(i) DEPOSIT.—The facility must deposit any amount of personal funds in excess of $50 with respect to a client in an interest bearing account (or accounts) that is separate from any of the facility's operating accounts and credit all interest earned on such separate account to such account. With respect to any other personal funds, the facility must maintain such funds in a noninterest bearing account or petty cash fund.

"(ii) ACCOUNTING AND RECORDS.—The facility must assure a full and complete separate accounting of each such client's personal funds, maintain a written record of all financial transactions involving the personal funds of a client deposited with the facility, and afford the client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any) reasonable access to such record.

"(iii) NOTICE OF CERTAIN BALANCES.—The facility must notify each client receiving medical assistance under this title or the parent (if the client is a minor) or legal guardian (if any), when the amount in the client's account reaches $200 less than the dollar amount determined under section 1611(a)(3)(B) and the fact that if the amount in the account (in addition to the value of the client's other nonexempt resources) reaches the amount determined under such section the client may lose eligibility for such medical assistance or for benefits under title XVI.

"(iv) CONVEYANCE UPON DEATH.—Upon the death of a client with such an account, the facility must convey promptly the client's personal funds (and a final accounting of such funds) to the individual administering the client's estate.

"(C) ASSURANCE OF FINANCIAL SECURITY.—The facility must purchase a surety bond, or otherwise provide assurance satisfactory to the Secretary, to assure the security of all personal funds of clients deposited with the facility.

"(D) LIMITATION ON CHARGES TO PERSONAL FUNDS.—The facility may not impose a charge against the personal funds of a client for any item or service for which payment is made under this title.

"(E) NO FACILITY BORROWING OF PERSONAL FUNDS.—The facility may not borrow, or use as security for any indebtedness, personal funds deposited with the facility.

"(d) REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO ADMINISTRATION AND OTHER MATTERS.—

"(B) LIFE SAFETY CODE.—An habilitation facility must meet such provisions of such edition (as specified by the Secretary in regulation) of the Life Safety Code of the National Fire Protection Association as are applicable to health care occupancies or residential board and care occupancies; except that—

"(i) the Secretary may waive, for such periods as he deems appropriate, specific provisions of such Code which if rigidly applied would result in unreasonable hardship upon a facility, but only if such waiver would not adversely affect the health and safety of clients or personnel, and

"(ii) the provisions of such Code shall not apply in any State if the Secretary finds that in such State there is in effect a fire and safety code, imposed by State law, which adequately protects clients of and personnel in habilitation facilities.

"(3) SANITATION AND INFECTION CONTROL AND PHYSICAL ENVIRONMENT.—An habilitation facility must—

"(A) establish and maintain an infection control program designed to provide a safe, sanitary, and comfortable environment in which clients reside and to help prevent the development and transmission of disease and infection, and

"(B) be designed, constructed, equipped, and maintained in a manner to protect the health and safety of clients, personnel, and the general public.

"(4) MISCELLANEOUS.—

"(A) COMPLIANCE WITH FEDERAL, STATE, AND LOCAL LAWS AND PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS.—An habilitation facility must operate and provide services in compliance with all applicable Federal, State, and local laws and regulations (including the requirements of section 1124) and with accepted professional standards and principles which apply to professionals providing services in such a facility.

"(B) OTHER.—An habilitation facility must meet such other requirements relating to the health and safety of clients or relating to the physical facilities thereof as the Secretary may find necessary.".

"(1) GENERAL RESPONSIBILITY.—It is the duty and responsibility of the Secretary to assure that requirements which govern the provision of care in habilitation facilities under State plans approved under this title, and the enforcement of such requirements, are adequate to protect the health, safety, welfare, and rights of clients and to promote the effective and efficient use of public moneys.

"(2) OPERATIONAL DEFINITION OF CONTINUOUS ACTIVE TREATMENT.—The Secretary shall establish, by not later than January 1, 1991, an operational definition of continuous active treatment that promotes a consistent assessment of whether an habilitation facility is in compliance with the requirements of subsection (b)(2)(A) and clarifies the manner in which a program of interventions and services is considered to be continuous.

"(3) FEDERAL GUIDELINES FOR STATE APPEALS PROCESS FOR TRANSFERS AND DISCHARGES.—For purposes of subsections (c)(2)(B)(iii) and (e)(5)(B), by not later than July 1, 1990, the Secretary shall establish guidelines for minimum standards which State appeals processes under subsection (e)(5)(B) must meet to provide a fair mechanism for hearing appeals on transfers and discharges of clients from habilitation facilities. The guidelines shall provide, upon the request of a client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any), for the participation of a representative of the State protection and advocacy system (described in subsection (c)(2)(B)(iii)(II)) in the appeals process with respect to that client.

SEC. 4232. SURVEY AND CERTIFICATION PROCESS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1928 of the Social Security Act, as inserted by section 4231(a), is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(g) SURVEY AND CERTIFICATION PROCESS.—

"(1) STATE AND FEDERAL RESPONSIBILITY.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Under each State plan under this title, the State shall be responsible for certifying, in accordance with surveys conducted under paragraph (2), the compliance of habilitation facilities (other than facilities of the State) with the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d). The Secretary shall be responsible for certifying, in accordance with surveys conducted under paragraph (2), the compliance of State habilitation facilities with the requirements of such subsections.

"(B) EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM.—Each State shall conduct periodic educational programs for the staff and clients in habilitation facilities, and for the parents (if the client is a minor) and legal guardians (if any) of such clients, in order to present current regulations, procedures, and policies under this section.

"(C) INVESTIGATION OF ALLEGATIONS OF CLIENT NEGLECT AND ABUSE AND MISAPPROPRIATION OF CLIENT PROPERTY.—The State shall provide, through the agency responsible for surveys and certification of habilitation facilities under this subsection, for a process for the receipt, review, and investigation of allegations of client neglect and abuse (including injuries of unknown source) by staff and of misappropriation of client property by staff in an habilitation facility. The State shall, after notice to the individual involved and a reasonable opportunity for hearing for the individual to rebut allegations, make a finding as to the accuracy of the allegations. If the State finds that an individual has neglected or abused a client receiving habilitation facility services or misappropriated such client's property, the State shall notify the individual against whom the finding is made. A State shall not make a finding that an individual has neglected a client if the individual demonstrates that such neglect was caused by factors beyond the control of the individual. The State shall provide for public disclosure of findings under this subparagraph upon request and for inclusion, in any such disclosure of such findings, of any brief statement (or of a clear and accurate summary thereof) of the individual disputing such findings. The findings relating to such allegations shall be made available, on request, to the State protection and advocacy system (described in subsection (c)(2)(B)(iii)(II)) and to other appropriate agency or agencies with whom a client, parent, or guardian may file a complaint respecting client abuse and neglect and misappropriation of client property in the facility.

"(D) CONSTRUCTION.—The failure of the Secretary to issue regulations to carry out this subsection shall not relieve a State of its responsibility under this subsection.

"(2) ANNUAL SURVEYS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Each habilitation facility shall be subject to an annual survey, to be conducted without any prior notice to the facility. Any individual who notifies (or causes to be notified) an habilitation facility of the time or date on which such a survey is scheduled to be conducted is subject to a civil money penalty of not to exceed $2,000. The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply to a civil money penalty under the previous sentence in the same manner as such provisions apply to a penalty or proceeding under section 1128A(a). The Secretary shall review each State's procedures for scheduling and conduct of annual surveys to assure that the State has taken all reasonable steps to avoid giving notice of such a survey through the scheduling procedures and the conduct of the surveys themselves.

"(B) CONTENTS.—Each annual survey shall include—

"(i) a review, based on a representative sample of clients and IPPs, of the quality, appropriateness, and effectiveness of active treatment provided, and

"(ii) a review of compliance with all requirements under this section.

"(C) FREQUENCY.—Each habilitation facility shall be subject to an annual survey not later than 15 months after the date of the previous annual survey conducted under this subparagraph. The Statewide average interval between annual surveys of habilitation facilities shall not exceed 12 months.

"(D) SURVEY PROTOCOL.—Annual surveys shall be conducted—

"(i) based upon a protocol which the Secretary has developed, tested, and validated by not later than October 1, 1990, and

"(ii) by individuals, of a survey team, who meet such minimum qualifications as the Secretary establishes by not later than such date.

The failure of the Secretary to develop, test, or validate such protocols or to establish such minimum qualifications shall not relieve any State of its responsibility (or the Secretary of the Secretary's responsibility) to conduct surveys under this subsection.

"(E) CONSISTENCY OF SURVEYS.—Each State shall implement programs to measure and reduce inconsistency in the application of survey results among surveyors.

"(F) SURVEY TEAMS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Surveys under this subsection shall be conducted by a multidisciplinary team of professionals.

"(ii) PROHIBITION OF CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—A State may not use as a member of a survey team under this subsection an individual who is serving (or has served within the previous 2 years) as a member of the staff of, or as a consultant to, the facility surveyed respecting compliance with the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d), or who has a personal or familial financial interest in the facility being surveyed.

"(iii) TRAINING.—The Secretary shall provide for the comprehensive training of State and Federal surveyors in the conduct of annual surveys under this subsection, including the auditing of client assessments and IPPs. No individual shall serve as a member of a survey team unless the individual has successfully completed a training and testing program in survey and certification techniques that has been approved by the Secretary.

"(3) VALIDATION SURVEYS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall conduct onsite surveys of a representative sample of habilitation facilities in each State, within 2 months of the date of surveys conducted under paragraph (2) by the State, in a sufficient number to allow inferences about the adequacies of each State's surveys conducted under paragraph (2). In conducting such surveys, the Secretary shall use the same survey protocols as the State is required to use under paragraph (2). If the State has determined that an individual habilitation facility meets the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d), but the Secretary determines that the facility does not meet such requirements, the Secretary's determination as to the facility's noncompliance with such requirements is binding and supersedes that of the State survey.

"(B) REDUCTION IN ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR SUBSTANDARD PERFORMANCE.—If the Secretary finds, on the basis of such surveys, that a State has failed to perform surveys as required under paragraph (2) or that a State's survey and certification performance otherwise is not adequate, the Secretary may provide for the training of survey teams in the State and shall provide for a reduction of the payment otherwise made to the State under section 1903(a)(2)(D) with respect to a quarter equal to 33 percent multiplied by a fraction, the denominator of which is equal to the total number of clients in habilitation facilities surveyed by the Secretary that quarter and the numerator of which is equal to the total number of clients in habilitation facilities which were found pursuant to such surveys to be not in compliance with any of the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d). A State that is dissatisfied with the Secretary's findings under this subparagraph may obtain reconsideration and review of the findings under section 1116 in the same manner as a State may seek reconsideration and review under that section of the Secretary's determination under section 1116(a)(1).

"(C) SPECIAL SURVEYS OF COMPLIANCE.—Where the Secretary has reason to question the compliance of an habilitation facility with any of the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d), the Secretary may conduct a survey of the facility and, on the basis of that survey, make independent and binding determinations concerning the extent to which the habilitation facility meets such requirements.

"(4) INVESTIGATION OF COMPLAINTS AND MONITORING HABILITATION FACILITY COMPLIANCE.—Each State and the Secretary shall maintain procedures and adequate staff to—

"(A) investigate complaints of violations of requirements by habilitation facilities, and

"(B) monitor, onsite, on a regular, as needed basis, an habilitation facility's compliance with the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d), if—

"(i) the facility has been found not to be in compliance with such requirements and is in the process of correcting deficiencies to achieve such compliance;

"(ii) the facility was previously found not to be in compliance with such requirements, has corrected deficiencies to achieve such compliance, and verification of continued compliance is indicated; or

"(iii) the State or the Secretary, respectively, has reason to question the compliance of the facility with such requirements.

"(5) DISCLOSURE OF RESULTS OF INSPECTIONS AND ACTIVITIES.—

"(A) PUBLIC INFORMATION.—Each State, and the Secretary, shall make available to the public—

"(i) information respecting all surveys and certifications made respecting habilitation facilities, including statements of deficiencies and plans of correction,

"(ii) copies of cost reports of such facilities filed under this title,

"(iii) copies of statements of ownership under section 1124, and

"(iv) information disclosed under section 1126.

"(B) NOTICE TO PROTECTION AND ADVOCACY SYSTEM.—Each State shall notify the agency responsible for the protection and advocacy system for developmentally disabled individuals established under part C of the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of the State's findings of noncompliance with any of the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d), with respect to an habilitation facility in the State.

"(C) NOTICE TO FAMILY.—If a State finds that an habilitation facility has provided services of substandard quality, the State shall notify the parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian (if any) of each client with respect to which such finding is made.

"(D) ACCESS TO FRAUD CONTROL UNITS.—Each State shall provide its State medicaid fraud and abuse control unit (established under section 1903(q)) with access to all information of the State agency responsible for surveys and certifications under this subsection.".

(b) DISSEMINATION OF SURVEY RESULTS.—Section 1928(d)(4) of such Act, as added by section 4231 of this part, is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(C) DISSEMINATION OF SURVEY RESULTS.—An habilitation facility must—

"(i) make the results of the most recent survey of the facility conducted under subsection (g) available to anyone upon request, and

"(ii) mail promptly an accurate summary of the results of each such survey to the parent (if the client is a minor), legal guardian (if any), or other legal representative of each client.".

SEC. 4233. ENFORCEMENT PROCESS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1928 of the Social Security Act, as inserted by section 4231 and amended by section 4232, is further amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

"(h) ENFORCEMENT PROCESS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—If a State finds, on the basis of an annual survey under subsection (g)(2) or otherwise, that an habilitation facility no longer meets a requirement of subsection (b), (c), or (d), and further finds that the facility's deficiencies—

"(A) immediately jeopardize the health or safety of its clients, the State shall take immediate action to remove the jeopardy and correct the deficiencies through the remedy specified in paragraph (2)(A)(iii), or terminate the facility's participation under the State plan and may provide, in addition, for one or more of the other remedies described in paragraph (2); or

"(B) do not immediately jeopardize the health or safety of its clients, the State may—

"(i) terminate the facility's participation under the State plan,

"(ii) provide for one or more of the remedies described in paragraph (2), or

"(iii) do both.

Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as restricting the remedies available to a State to remedy an habilitation facility's deficiencies. If a State finds that an habilitation facility meets the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d), but, as of a previous period, did not meet such requirements, the State may provide for a civil money penalty under paragraph (2)(A)(ii) for the days in which it finds that the facility was not in compliance with such requirements.

"(2) SPECIFIED REMEDIES.—

"(A) LISTING.—Each State shall establish by law (whether statute or regulation) at least the following remedies:

"(i) Denial of payment under the State plan with respect to any individual admitted to the habilitation facility involved after such notice to the public and to the facility as may be provided for by the State.

"(ii) A civil money penalty assessed and collected, with interest, for each day in which the facility is or was out of compliance with a requirement of subsection (b), (c), or (d). Funds collected by a State as a result of imposition of such a penalty (or as a result of the imposition by the State of a civil money penalty for activities described in subsection (g)(2)(A)) shall be applied to the protection of the health or property of clients of habilitation facilities that the State or the Secretary finds deficient, including payment for the costs of relocation of clients, maintenance of operation of a facility pending correction of deficiencies or closure, and reimbursement of clients for personal funds lost.

"(iii) In cases where a correction or reduction plan has not been approved under subsection (i), the appointment of temporary management to oversee the operation of the facility and to assure the health and safety of the facility's clients, where there is a need for temporary management while—

"(I) there is an orderly closure of the facility, or

"(II) improvements are made in order to bring the facility into compliance with all the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d).

The temporary management under this clause shall not be terminated under subclause (II) until the State has determined that the facility has the management capability to ensure continued compliance with all the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d).

"(iv) The authority, in the case of an emergency, to close the facility, to transfer clients in that facility to other facilities, or both.

The State also shall specify criteria, as to when and how each of such remedies is to be applied, the amounts of any fines, and the severity of each of these remedies, to be used in the imposition of such remedies. Such criteria shall be designed so as to minimize the time between the identification of violations and final imposition of the remedies and shall provide for the imposition of incrementally more severe fines for repeated or uncorrected deficiencies. In addition, the State may provide for other specified remedies, such as plans of correction and reduction plans under subsection (i).

"(B) DEADLINE AND GUIDANCE.—As a condition for approval of a State plan for calendar quarters (beginning on or after January 1, 1991) in which the State plan provides for coverage of habilitation facility services, each State shall have in effect the remedies described in clauses (i) through (iv) of subparagraph (A). The Secretary shall provide, through regulations or otherwise by not later than July 1, 1990, guidance to States in establishing such remedies; but the failure of the Secretary to provide such guidance shall not relieve a State of the responsibility for establishing such remedies.

"(C) ASSURING PROMPT COMPLIANCE.—If an habilitation facility has not complied with any of the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d), within 3 months after the date the facility is found to be out of compliance with such requirements, and a reduction plan has not been approved with respect to the facility under subsection (i), the State shall impose the remedy described in subparagraph (A)(ii) and the remedy described in subparagraph (A)(i) for all individuals who are admitted to the facility after such date.

"(D) REPEATED NONCOMPLIANCE.—In the case of an habilitation facility which, on 3 consecutive annual surveys conducted under subsection (g)(2), has been found not to provide continuous active treatment of adequate quality and effectiveness, the State shall (regardless of what other remedies are provided)—

"(i) impose the remedies described in clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (A), and until the facility has demonstrated, to the satisfaction of the State, that it is in compliance with the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d), and that it will remain in compliance with such requirements. Under clause (i), the remedy described in subparagraph (A)(ii) shall be applied with respect to each day of noncompliance covered under any of such 3 annual surveys.

"(ii) monitor the facility under subsection (g)(4)(B),

"(E) FUNDING.—The reasonable expenditures of a State to provide for temporary management and other expenses associated with implementing the remedies described in clauses (iii) and (iv) of subparagraph (A) shall be considered, for purposes of section 1903(a)(7), to be necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the State plan.

"(F) INCENTIVES FOR HIGH QUALITY CARE.—In addition to the remedies specified in this paragraph, a State may establish a program to reward, through public recognition, incentive payments, or both, habilitation facilities that provide the highest quality care to clients who are entitled to medical assistance under this title. For purposes of section 1903(a)(7), proper expenses incurred by a State in carrying out such a program shall be considered to be expenses necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the State plan under this title.

"(3) SECRETARIAL AUTHORITY.—

"(A) FOR STATE HABILITATION FACILITIES.—With respect to a State habilitation facility, the Secretary shall have the authority and duties of a State under this subsection, including the authority to impose remedies described in clauses (i), (ii), and (iii) of paragraph (2)(A), except that the remedy described in subparagraph (C)(ii) shall be substituted for the remedy described in paragraph (2)(A)(ii).

"(B) OTHER HABILITATION FACILITIES.—With respect to any other habilitation facility in a State, if the Secretary finds that an habilitation facility no longer meets a requirement of subsection (b), (c), or (d), and further finds that the facility's deficiencies—

"(i) immediately jeopardize the health or safety of its clients, the Secretary shall take immediate action to remove the jeopardy and correct the deficiencies through the remedy specified in subparagraph (C)(iii), or terminate the facility's participation under the State plan and may provide, in addition, for one or more of the other remedies described in subparagraph (C); or

"(ii) do not immediately jeopardize the health or safety of its clients, the Secretary may impose any of the remedies described in subparagraph (C).

Nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed as restricting the remedies available to the Secretary to remedy an habilitation facility's deficiencies. If the Secretary finds that an habilitation facility meets such requirements but, as of a previous period, did not meet such requirements, the Secretary may provide for a civil money penalty under subparagraph (C)(ii) for the days on which he finds that the facility was not in compliance with such requirements.

"(C) SPECIFIED REMEDIES.—The Secretary may take the following actions with respect to a finding that a facility has not met an applicable requirement:

"(i) DENIAL OF PAYMENT.—The Secretary may deny any further payments to the State for medical assistance furnished by the facility to all individuals in the facility or to individuals admitted to the facility after the effective date of the finding.

"(ii) AUTHORITY WITH RESPECT TO CIVIL MONEY PENALTIES.—The Secretary may impose a civil money penalty in an amount not to exceed $10,000 for each day of noncompliance. The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply to a civil money penalty under the previous sentence in the same manner as such provisions apply to a penalty or proceeding under section 1128A(a).

"(iii) APPOINTMENT OF TEMPORARY MANAGEMENT.—In consultation with the State, the Secretary may appoint temporary management to oversee the operation of the facility and to assure the health and safety of the facility's clients, where there is a need for temporary management while—

"(I) there is an orderly closure of the facility, or

"(II) improvements are made in order to bring the facility into compliance with all the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d).

The temporary management under this clause shall not be terminated under subclause (II) until the Secretary has determined that the facility has the management capability to ensure continued compliance with all the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d).

The Secretary shall specify criteria, as to when and how each of such remedies is to be applied, the amounts of any fines, and the severity of each of these remedies, to be used in the imposition of such remedies. Such criteria shall be designed so as to minimize the time between the identification of violations and final imposition of the remedies and shall provide for the imposition of incrementally more severe fines for repeated or uncorrected deficiencies.

"(D) CONTINUATION OF PAYMENTS PENDING REMEDIATION.—The Secretary may continue payments, over a period of not longer than 6 months after the effective date of the findings, under this title with respect to an habilitation facility not in compliance with a requirement of subsection (b), (c), or (d), if—

"(i) the State survey agency finds that it is more appropriate to take alternative action to assure prompt compliance of the facility with the requirements than to terminate the certification of the facility,

"(ii) the State has submitted a plan and timetable for corrective action to the Secretary for approval and the Secretary approves the plan of corrective action, and

"(iii) the State agrees to repay to the Federal Government payments received under this subparagraph if the corrective action is not taken in accordance with the approved plan and timetable.

The Secretary shall establish guidelines for the approval of corrective actions requested by States under this subparagraph.

"(E) CONTINUATION OF PAYMENTS UNDER REDUCTION PLANS.—The Secretary may continue payments in the case of habilitation facilities under the terms and conditions of a reduction plan approved under subsection (i), but only with respect to services provided on or after the date of such approval.

"(4) EFFECTIVE PERIOD OF DENIAL OF PAYMENT.—A finding to deny payment under this subsection shall terminate when the State or Secretary (or both, as the case may be) finds that the facility is in compliance with all the requirements of subsections (b), (c), and (d).

"(5) IMMEDIATE TERMINATION OF PARTICIPATION FOR FACILITY WHERE STATE OR SECRETARY FINDS NONCOMPLIANCE AND IMMEDIATE JEOPARDY.—If either the State or the Secretary finds that an habilitation facility has not met a requirement of subsection (b), (c), or (d), and finds that the failure immediately jeopardizes the health or safety of its clients, the State or the Secretary—

"(A) shall notify the other of such finding, and

"(B) shall take immediate action to remove the jeopardy and correct the deficiencies through the remedy specified in paragraph (2)(A)(iii) or (3)(C)(iii), or terminate the facility's participation under the State plan.

If the facility's participation in the State plan is terminated by either the State or the Secretary, the State shall provide for the safe and orderly transfer of the clients eligible under the State plan consistent with the requirements of subsection (c)(2).

"(6) SHARING OF INFORMATION.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, all information concerning habilitation facilities required by this section to be filed with the Secretary or a State agency shall be made available to Federal or State employees for purposes consistent with the effective administration of programs established under this title, including investigations by State medicaid fraud control units.

"(i) REDUCTION PLANS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—If there is a finding under subsection (h)(1)(B) (including a similar finding under subsection (h)(3)(A)) or (h)(3)(B)(ii) that an habilitation facility has any deficiency that does not immediately jeopardize the health or safety of its clients, the State may elect in accordance with this subsection to submit to the Secretary a written plan—

"(A) for permanently reducing the number of certified beds, within 36 months after the effective date of the findings, so that, by the end of such period, the facility no longer has such deficiency, and

"(B) for providing services to clients of the facility who will not continue to receive habilitation facility services at the affected facility after such reduction, including (for clients not in an habilitation facility) community services.

"(2) APPROVAL OF PLANS.—The Secretary may not approve a plan submitted under paragraph (1) unless—

"(A) the State has provided for a hearing on the plan at the facility involved at least 30 days before the date of submission of the plan, after reasonable notice thereof to the staff and clients of the facility, members of the clients' families, and the public,

"(B) the State demonstrates that, with respect to clients described in paragraph (1)(B), the State has successfully provided services similar to the services to be provided to such clients under the plan,

"(C) the plan meets the requirements of paragraph (3), and

"(D) the State meets the requirements of subsection (j).

"(3) REQUIREMENTS OF REDUCTION PLANS.—The requirements of this paragraph for a reduction plan with respect to a facility are as follows:

"(A) The plan must—

"(i) identify the clients described in paragraph (1)(B),

"(ii) describe each such client's needs for services described in that paragraph and a timetable for providing such services,

"(iii) provide for continuous active treatment for such clients under the clients' IPPs after their discharge from the facility,

"(iv) identify necessary safeguards (including adequate standards for provider participation) to be taken to protect the health and welfare of such clients, and

"(v) provide sufficient preparation and orientation to facilitate their safe and orderly transfer to another habilitation facility or integration into the community; however, individually identifiable information identified under this subparagraph and respecting a client shall be treated as confidential and not made available to the public.

"(B) The plan must permit each client of the facility who would continue to be eligible for medical assistance while a client of such a facility the option of remaining a client of such a facility or a similar facility.

"(C) The plan must specify the actions to be taken, including maintenance of adequate ratios of qualified staff to clients, to protect the health and safety of, and to provide for continuous active treatment under the clients' IPPs for, clients who remain at the facility while the reduction plan is in effect.

"(4) SEMIANNUAL REVIEW OF COMPLIANCE.—The Secretary shall, at 6-month intervals, review compliance of States with reduction plans approved under this subsection. If the Secretary determines in such a review that the State has failed to comply with the requirements of paragraph (3) or the assurances described in subsection (j), the Secretary shall—

"(A) terminate the facility's participation under the State plan, or

"(A)(i) is established by a qualified community care case manager in face-to-face consultation with (and with notice to) the individual and based upon a visit to the individual in the individual's residence and the most recent comprehensive functional assessment of such individual conducted under subsection (c)(2);

"(ii) is periodically reviewed and (as appropriate) revised by such a manager in face-to-face consultation with (and with notice to) the individual and based upon a visit to the individual in the individual's residence and the most recent comprehensive functional assessment of such individual conducted under subsection (c)(2);

"(B) reflects, consistent with subparagraph (C), the needs and preferences of the individual and, to the extent feasible, allows for and promotes the direction and oversight of community care by the individual;

"(C) specifies, within any amount, duration, and scope limitations imposed on community care provided under the State plan, the community care to be provided to such individual under the plan;

"(D) does not include community care for which payment is made by the individual or on the individual's behalf; and

"(E) may specify services (other than those to be provided to the individual under the plan) required by such individual.

Nothing in this section shall be construed as authorizing an ICCP or the State to restrict the specific persons or individuals (who are competent to provide community care under the State plan) who will provide the community care described in subparagraph (C).

"(2) QUALIFIED COMMUNITY CARE CASE MANAGER DEFINED.—In this section, the term 'qualified community care case manager' means a nonprofit or public agency or organization which—

"(A) has experience in establishing, and in periodically reviewing and revising, assessments or individual community care plans and in the provision of case management services to the elderly;

"(B) is responsible (i) for assuring that community care covered under the State plan and specified in the ICCP is being provided and (ii) for visiting each individual receiving such care at the individual's residence not less often than once every 90 days;

"(C) in the case of a non-public organization, does not provide community care or nursing facility services and does not have a direct or indirect ownership or control interest in, or direct or indirect affiliation or relationship with, an entity that provides, community care or nursing facility services;

"(D) has procedures for assuring the quality of case management services it provides; and

"(E) meets such other standards, established by the Secretary, as assure that—

"(i) such a manager is competent to perform case management functions,

"(ii) individuals whose community care they manage are not at risk of financial exploitation due to such a manager, and

"(3) APPEAL PROCEDURES.—Each State which elects to provide community care under this section must have in effect an appeals process for individuals who disagree with the ICCP established under this subsection.

"(e) CEILING ON PAYMENT AMOUNTS AND MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT.—

"(1) CEILING ON PAYMENT AMOUNTS.—Payments may not be made under section 1903(a) to a State for community care provided under this section in a quarter to the extent that the medical assistance for such care in the quarter exceeds 30 percent of the product of—

"(A) the average number of individuals in the quarter receiving such care under this section,

"(B) the average per diem rate of payment which the Secretary has determined (before the beginning of the quarter) will be payable under title XVIII (without regard to coinsurance) for extended care services to be provided in the State during such quarter, and

"(C) the number of days in such quarter.

"(2) MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT.—

"(A) ANNUAL REPORTS.—As a condition for the receipt of payment under section 1903(a) with respect to medical assistance provided by a State for community care (other than under a waiver under section 1915(c)) to functionally disabled elderly individuals, the State shall report to the Secretary, with respect to each Federal fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1989) and in a format developed or approved by the Secretary, the amount of non-Federal funds obligated by the State (including funds obligated by localities in the State) with respect to the provision of community care (other than under such a waiver) to functionally disabled elderly individuals in that fiscal year.

"(B) REDUCTION IN PAYMENT IF FAILURE TO MAINTAIN EFFORT.—In applying section 1903(a)(1) with respect to the total amount expended by a State for calendar quarters in a fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1990) for community care to the functionally disabled elderly individuals (other than under a waiver under section 1915(c)), such expenditures shall be reduced by the amount reported under subparagraph (A) with respect to fiscal year 1989.

"(3) DIRECT PAYMENT TO PROVIDERS OF COMMUNITY CARE.—Nothing in this title shall be construed as authorizing a State to permit payment for community care to be made through a qualified community care case manager.

"(f) MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS FOR COMMUNITY CARE.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Community care provided under this section must meet such requirements for individuals' rights and quality as are published or developed by the Secretary under subsection (j). Such requirements shall include—

"(A) the requirement that individuals providing community care are competent to provide such care,

"(B) guidelines for such minimum compensation for individuals providing such care as will assure the availability and continuity of competent individuals to provide such care for functionally disabled individuals who have functional disabilities of varying levels of severity, and

"(C) the rights specified in paragraph (2).

Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing competent individuals (other than members of the family of an individual) from providing, and being paid directly for, community care.

"(2) SPECIFIED RIGHTS.—The rights specified in this paragraph are as follows:

"(A) FREE CHOICE.—The right to be fully informed in advance about care and treatment, to be fully informed in advance of any changes in care or treatment that may affect the individual's well-being, and (except with respect to an individual adjudged incompetent) to participate in planning care and treatment or changes in care and treatment.

"(B) FREE FROM RESTRAINTS.—The right to be free from physical or mental abuse, corporal punishment, involuntary seclusion, and any physical or chemical restraints imposed for purposes of discipline or convenience and not required to treat the individual's medical symptoms. Restraints may only be imposed—

"(i) to ensure the physical safety of the individual or other individuals, and

"(ii) only upon the written order of a physician that specifies the duration and circumstances under which the restraints are to be used (except in emergency circumstances specified by the Secretary until such an order could reasonably be obtained).

"(C) PRIVACY.—The right to privacy with regard to accommodations, medical treatment, written and telephonic communications, visits, and meetings of family and friends and of groups.

"(D) CONFIDENTIALITY.—The right to confidentiality of personal and clinical records.

"(E) GRIEVANCES.—The right to voice grievances with respect to treatment or care that is (or fails to be) furnished, without discrimination or reprisal (or threat of discrimination or reprisal) for voicing the grievances and the right to prompt efforts by the provider to resolve grievances the individual may have, including those with respect to the behavior of other individuals.

"(F) OTHER RIGHTS.—Any other right established by the Secretary.

"(g) MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS FOR COMMUNITY CARE SETTINGS.—

"(1) COMMUNITY CARE SETTING DEFINED.—In this section, the term 'community care setting' means—

"(A) a nonresidential setting, or

"(B) a residential setting (including a foster home, board-and-care facility, or other group living arrangement, but not including a setting to the extent it is a nursing facility) in which more than 2 unrelated adults reside and in which personal services (other than merely board) are provided in conjunction with residing in the setting, in which community care under this section is provided.

"(2) MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS.—A community care setting in which community care is provided under this section must meet the following requirements:

"(A) SECRETARIAL REQUIREMENTS.—A setting must meet such requirements as are published or developed by the Secretary under subsection (j).

"(B) SPECIFIED RIGHTS, RIGHTS OF INCOMPETENT RESIDENTS, USE OF PSYCHOPHARMACOLOGIC DRUGS, ACCESS AND VISITATION RIGHTS, PROTECTION OF RESIDENT FUNDS.—A setting must meet the requirements of subparagraphs (A), (C), and (D) of paragraph (1), paragraph (3), and paragraph (6) of section 1919(c), to the extent applicable to such a setting.

"(C) NOTICE OF RIGHTS.—A setting must inform each individual receiving community care under this section in the setting, orally and in writing at the time the individual first receives community care in the setting, of the individual's legal rights with respect to such a setting and the care provided in the setting.

"(D) LICENSING.—A setting must be licensed under applicable State and local law.

"(E) LIFE SAFETY CODE.—A setting must meet such provisions of such edition (as specified by the Secretary in regulation) of the Life Safety Code of the National Fire Protection Association as are applicable and appropriate to the community care setting; except that—

"(i) the Secretary may waive, for such periods as he deems appropriate, specific provisions of such Code which if rigidly applied would result in unreasonable hardship upon a setting, but only if such waiver would not adversely affect the health and safety of clients or personnel, and

"(ii) the provisions of such Code shall not apply in any State if the Secretary finds that in such State there is in effect a fire and safety code, imposed by State law, which adequately protects clients of and personnel in community care settings.

"(F) SANITARY AND INSPECTION CONTROL AND MAINTENANCE OF PHYSICAL ENVIRONMENT.—A setting must—

"(i) establish and maintain infection control standards designed to provide a safe, sanitary, and comfortable environment in which residents reside and to help prevent the development and transmission of disease and infection, and

"(ii) be maintained in a manner to protect the health and safety of residents, personnel, and the general public.

"(3) DISCLOSURE OF OWNERSHIP AND CONTROL INTERESTS AND EXCLUSION OF REPEATED VIOLATORS.—A community care setting—

"(A) must disclose persons with an ownership or control interest (including such persons as defined in section 1124(a)(3)) in the setting, and

"(B) may not have, as a person with an ownership or control interest in the setting, any individual or person who has been excluded from participation in the program under this title or who has had such an ownership or control interest in one or more community care settings which have been found repeatedly to be substandard or to have failed to meet the requirements of paragraph (2).

"(h) SURVEY AND CERTIFICATION PROCESS.—

"(A) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE STATE.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Under each State plan under this title, the State shall be responsible for certifying the compliance of providers of community care and community care settings with the applicable requirements of subsections (f) and (g).

"(ii) CONSTRUCTION.—The failure of the Secretary to issue regulations to carry out this subsection shall not relieve a State of its responsibility under this subsection.

"(B) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SECRETARY.—The Secretary shall be responsible for certifying the compliance of State providers of community care, and of State community care settings in which such care is provided, with the requirements of subsections (f) and (g).

"(C) FREQUENCY OF CERTIFICATIONS.—Certification of providers and settings under this subsection shall occur no less frequently than once every 12 months.

"(2) REVIEWS OF PROVIDERS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The certification under this subsection with respect to a provider of community care must be based on a periodic review of the provider's performance in providing the care required under ICPP's in accordance with the requirements of subsection (f). Such periodic review shall be conducted, not less often than annually, by an agency (other than the single State agency described in section 1902(a)(5)) and shall be based on information that includes the views of qualified community care case managers whose clients have received community care from such providers and from a sample of individuals receiving community care from such providers.

"(B) SPECIAL REVIEWS OF COMPLIANCE.—If the Secretary has reason to question the compliance of a provider of community care with any of the requirements of subsection (f), the Secretary may conduct a review of the provider and, on the basis of that review, make independent and binding determinations concerning the extent to which the provider meets such requirements.

"(3) SURVEYS OF COMMUNITY CARE SETTINGS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The certification under this subsection with respect to a community care setting must be based on a survey. Such survey for such a setting must be conducted without prior notice to the setting. Any individual who notifies (or causes to be notified) a community care setting of the time or date on which such a survey is scheduled to be conducted is subject to a civil money penalty of not to exceed $2,000. The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply to a civil money penalty under the previous sentence in the same manner as such provisions apply to a penalty or proceeding under section 1128A(a). The Secretary shall review each State's procedures for scheduling and conducting such surveys to assure that the State has taken all reasonable steps to avoid giving notice of such a survey through the scheduling procedures and the conduct of the surveys themselves.

"(B) SURVEY PROTOCOL.—Surveys under this paragraph shall be conducted based upon a protocol which the Secretary has provided for under subsection (j).

"(C) PROHIBITION OF CONFLICT OF INTEREST IN SURVEY TEAM MEMBERSHIP.—A State and the Secretary may not use as a member of a survey team under this paragraph an individual who is serving (or has served within the previous 2 years) as a member of the staff of, or as a consultant to, the community care setting being surveyed (or the person responsible for such setting) respecting compliance with the requirements of subsection (g) or who has a personal or familial financial interest in the setting being surveyed.

"(D) VALIDATION SURVEYS OF COMMUNITY CARE SETTINGS.—The Secretary shall conduct onsite surveys of a representative sample of community care settings in each State, within 2 months of the date of surveys conducted under subparagraph (A) by the State, in a sufficient number to allow inferences about the adequacies of each State's surveys conducted under subparagraph (A). In conducting such surveys, the Secretary shall use the same survey protocols as the State is required to use under subparagraph (B). If the State has determined that an individual setting meets the requirements of subsection (g), but the Secretary determines that the setting does not meet such requirements, the Secretary's determination as to the setting's noncompliance with such requirements is binding and supersedes that of the State survey.

"(E) SPECIAL SURVEYS OF COMPLIANCE.—If the Secretary has reason to question the compliance of a community care setting with any of the requirements of subsection (g), the Secretary may conduct a survey of the setting and, on the basis of that survey, make independent and binding determinations concerning the extent to which the setting meets such requirements.

"(4) INVESTIGATION OF COMPLAINTS AND MONITORING OF PROVIDERS AND SETTINGS.—Each State and the Secretary shall maintain procedures and adequate staff to investigate complaints of violations of applicable requirements imposed on providers of community care or on community care settings under subsections (f) and (g).

"(5) INVESTIGATION OF ALLEGATIONS OF INDIVIDUAL NEGLECT AND ABUSE AND MISAPPROPRIATION OF INDIVIDUAL PROPERTY AND PUBLIC DISCLOSURE OF FINDINGS.—The State shall provide, through the agency responsible for surveys and certification of providers of community care and community care settings under this subsection, for a process for the receipt, review, and investigation of allegations of individual neglect and abuse (including injuries of unknown source) by individuals providing such care or in such setting and of misappropriation of individual property by such individuals. The State shall, after notice to the individual involved and a reasonable opportunity for hearing for the individual to rebut allegations, make a finding as to the accuracy of the allegations. If the State finds that an individual has neglected or abused an individual receiving community care or misappropriated such individual's property, the State shall notify the individual against whom the finding is made. A State shall not make a finding that a person has neglected an individual receiving community care if the person demonstrates that such neglect was caused by factors beyond the control of the person. The State shall provide for public disclosure of findings under this paragraph upon request and for inclusion, in any such disclosure of such findings, of any brief statement (or of a clear and accurate summary thereof) of the individual disputing such findings.

"(6) DISCLOSURE OF RESULTS OF INSPECTIONS AND ACTIVITIES.—

"(A) PUBLIC INFORMATION.—Each State, and the Secretary, shall make available to the public—

"(i) information respecting all surveys, reviews, and certifications made under this subsection respecting providers of community care and community care settings, including statements of deficiencies,

"(ii) copies of cost reports (if any) of such providers and settings filed under this title,

"(iii) copies of statements of ownership under section 1124, and

"(iv) information disclosed under section 1126.

"(B) NOTICES OF SUBSTANDARD CARE.—If a State finds that—

"(i) a provider of community care has provided care of substandard quality with respect to an individual, the State shall make a reasonable effort to notify promptly (I) an immediate family member of each such individual and (II) individuals receiving community care from that provider under this title, or

"(ii) a community care setting is substandard, the State shall make a reasonable effort to notify promptly (I) individuals receiving community care in that setting, and (II) immediate family members of such individuals.

"(C) ACCESS TO FRAUD CONTROL UNITS.—Each State shall provide its State medicaid fraud and abuse control unit (established under section 1903(q)) with access to all information of the State agency responsible for surveys, reviews, and certifications under this subsection.

"(i) ENFORCEMENT PROCESS FOR PROVIDERS OF COMMUNITY CARE.—

"(1) STATE AUTHORITY.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—If a State finds, on the basis of a review under subsection (h)(2) or otherwise, that a provider of community care no longer meets the requirements of this section and further finds that the provider's deficiencies—

"(i) immediately jeopardize the health or safety of individuals receiving its services, the State shall take immediate action to remove the jeopardy and correct the deficiencies or terminate the provider's participation under the State plan and may, in addition, provide for a civil money penalty, or

"(ii) do not immediately jeopardize the health or safety of such individuals, the State may—

"(I) terminate the provider's participation under the State plan,

"(II) provide for a civil money penalty, or

"(III) do both.

Nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed as restricting the remedies available to a State to remedy a provider's deficiencies. If the State finds that a provider meets such requirements but, as of a previous period, did not meet such requirements, the State may provide for a civil money penalty under subparagraph (B) for the period during which it finds that the provider was not in compliance with such requirements.

"(B) CIVIL MONEY PENALTY.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Each State shall establish by law (whether statute or regulation) at least the following remedy: A civil money penalty assessed and collected, with interest, for each day in which the provider is or was out of compliance with a requirement of this section. Funds collected by a State as a result of imposition of such a penalty (or as a result of the imposition by the State of a civil money penalty under subsection (h)(3)(A)) may be applied to reimbursement of individuals for personal funds lost due to a failure of community care providers to meet the requirements of this section. The State also shall specify criteria, as to when and how this remedy is to be applied and the amounts of any penalties. Such criteria shall be designed so as to minimize the time between the identification of violations and final imposition of the penalties and shall provide for the imposition of incrementally more severe penalties for repeated or uncorrected deficiencies.

"(ii) DEADLINE AND GUIDANCE.—Each State which elects to provide community care under this section must establish the civil money penalty remedy described in clause (i) applicable to all providers of community care covered under this section. The Secretary shall provide, through regulations or otherwise by not later than July 1, 1990, guidance to States in establishing such remedy; but the failure of the Secretary to provide such guidance shall not relieve a State of the responsibility for establishing such remedy.

"(2) SECRETARIAL AUTHORITY.—

"(A) FOR STATE PROVIDERS.—With respect to a State provider of community care, the Secretary shall have the authority and duties of a State under this subsection, except that the civil money penalty remedy described in subparagraph (C) shall be substituted for the civil money remedy described in paragraph (1)(B)(i).

"(B) OTHER PROVIDERS.—With respect to any other provider of community care in a State, if the Secretary finds that a provider no longer meets a requirement of this section and further finds that the provider's deficiencies—

"(i) immediately jeopardize the health or safety of individuals receiving its services, the Secretary shall take immediate action to remove the jeopardy and correct the deficiencies or terminate the provider's participation under the State plan and may, in addition, provide for a civil money penalty under subparagraph (C), or

"(ii) do not immediately jeopardize the health or safety of such individuals, the Secretary may—

"(I) terminate the provider's participation under the State plan,

"(II) provide for a civil money penalty under subparagraph (C), or

"(III) do both.

If the Secretary finds that a provider meets such requirements but, as of a previous period, did not meet such requirements, the Secretary may provide for a civil money penalty under subparagraph (C) for the period during which the Secretary finds that the provider was not in compliance with such requirements.

"(C) CIVIL MONEY PENALTY.—If the Secretary finds on the basis of a review under subsection (h)(2) or otherwise that a community care provider no longer meets the requirements of this section, the Secretary shall impose a civil money penalty in an amount not to exceed $10,000 for each day of noncompliance. The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply to a civil money penalty under the previous sentence in the same manner as such provisions apply to a penalty or proceeding under section 1128A(a). The Secretary shall specify criteria, as to when and how this remedy is to be applied and the amounts of any penalties. Such criteria shall be designed so as to minimize the time between the identification of violations and final imposition of the penalties and shall provide for the imposition of incrementally more severe penalties for repeated or uncorrected deficiencies.

"(j) SECRETARIAL RESPONSIBILITIES.—

"(1) PUBLICATION OF INTERIM REQUIREMENTS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall publish, by July 1, 1990, an interim regulation that sets forth interim requirements, consistent with subparagraph (B), for the provision of community care and for community care settings, including—

"(i) the requirements of subsection (c)(2) (relating to comprehensive functional assessments, including the use of assessment instruments), of subsection (d)(2)(E) (relating to qualifications for qualified community care case managers), of subsection (f) (relating to minimum requirements for community care), and of subsection (g) (relating to minimum requirements for community care settings), and

"(ii) survey protocols (for use under subsection (h)(3)(A)) which relate to such requirements.

"(B) MINIMUM PROTECTIONS.—Interim requirements under subparagraph (A) and final requirements under paragraph (2) shall assure, through methods other than reliance on State licensure processes, that individuals receiving community care are protected from neglect, physical and sexual abuse, financial exploitation, inappropriate involuntary restraint, and the provision of health care services by individuals in community care settings who are not competent to provide such care.

"(2) DEVELOPMENT OF FINAL REQUIREMENTS.—The Secretary shall develop, by not later than October 1, 1991—

"(A) final requirements, consistent with paragraph (1)(B), respecting the provision of appropriate, quality community care and respecting community care settings under this section, and including at least the requirements referred to in paragraph (1)(A)(i), and

"(B) survey protocols and methods for evaluating and assuring the quality of community care settings.

The Secretary may, from time to time, revise such requirements, protocols, and methods.

"(3) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as authorizing the Secretary to develop standards respecting the quality of community care and standards respecting community care settings beyond the scope of the interim and final requirements specified under paragraphs (1) and (2).

"(4) NO DELEGATION TO STATES.—The Secretary's authority under this subsection shall not be delegated to States.

"(5) NO PREVENTION OF MORE STRINGENT REQUIREMENTS BY STATES.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing States from imposing requirements that are more stringent than the requirements published or developed by the Secretary under this subsection.

"(k) APPLICABILITY IN STATES OPERATING UNDER DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS.—In the case of any State which is providing medical assistance under a waiver granted under section 1115(a) with respect to community care, the Secretary shall require the State to meet the requirements of this section in the same manner as the State would be required to meet such requirements if the State had in effect a plan approved under this title and had elected to cover community care under this section.".

(9) GENERAL FORFEITURES.—Subsection (b) of section 503 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 503(b)) is amended—

(A) by inserting "(1)" after "(b)" at the beginning of such subsection; and

(B) by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following:

"(2)(A) If the violator is (i) a broadcast station licensee or permittee, (ii) a cable television operator, or (iii) an applicant for any broadcast or cable television operator license, permit, certificate, or other instrument or authorization issued by the Commission, the amount of any forfeiture penalty determined under this section shall not exceed $25,000 for each violation or each day of a continuing violation, except that the amount assessed for any continuing violation shall not exceed a total of $250,000 for any single act or failure to act described in paragraph (1) of this subsection.

"(B) If the violator is a common carrier subject to the provisions of this Act or an applicant for any common carrier license, permit, certificate, or other instrument of authorization issued by the Commission, the amount of any forfeiture penalty determined under this subsection shall not exceed $100,000 for each violation or each day of a continuing violation, except that the amount assessed for any continuing violation shall not exceed a total of $1,000,000 for any single act or failure to act described in paragraph (1) of this subsection.

"(C) In any case not covered in subparagraph (A) or (B), the amount of any forfeiture penalty determined under this subsection shall not exceed $10,000 for each violation or each day of a continuing violation, except that the amount assessed for any continuing violation shall not exceed a total of $75,000 for any single act or failure to act described in paragraph (1) of this subsection.

"(D) The amount of such forfeiture penalty shall be assessed by the Commission, or its designee, by written notice. (b) APPLICATION TO FAIRNESS DOCTRINE.—

(1) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(A) despite technological advances, the electromagnetic spectrum remains a scarce and valuable public resource;

(B) there are still substantially more people who want to broadcast than there are frequencies to allocate;

(C) a broadcast license confers the right to use a valuable public resource and a broadcaster is therefore required to utilize that resource as a trustee for the American people;

(D) there is a substantial governmental interest in conditioning the award or renewal of a broadcast license on the requirement that the licensee assure that widest possible dissemination of information from diverse and antagonistic sources by presenting a reasonable opportunity for the discussion of conflicting views on issues of public importance;

(E) while new video and audio services have been proposed and introduced, many have not succeeded and even those that are operating reach a far smaller audience than broadcast stations;

(F) even when and where new video and audio services are available, they do not provide meaningful alternatives to broadcast stations for the dissemination of news and public affairs;

(G) for more than 30 years, the Fairness Doctrine and its corollaries, as developed by the Federal Communications Commission on the basis of the provisions of the Communications Act of 1934, have enhanced free speech by securing the paramount right of the broadcast audience to robust debate on issues of public importance;

(H) because the Fairness Doctrine only requires more speech, it has no chilling effect on broadcasters; and

(I) the Fairness Doctrine (i) fairly reflects the statutory obligation of broadcasters under that Act to operate in the public interest, (ii) was given statutory approval by the Congress in making certain amendments to that Act in 1959, and (iii) strikes a reasonable balance among the first amendment rights of the public, broadcast licensees, and speakers other than owners of broadcast facilities.

(2) CODIFICATION OF FAIRNESS DOCTRINE.—Section 315 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 315) is amended—

(A) by redesignating subsections (a) through (d) as subsections (b) through (e), respectively; and

(B) by inserting before subsection (b) the following new subsection:

"(a)(1) A broadcast licensee shall afford reasonable opportunity for the discussion of conflicting views on issues of public importance.

"(2) The enforcement and application of the requirement imposed by this subsection shall be consistent with the rules and policies of the Commission in effect on January 1, 1987. Such rules and policies shall not be construed to authorize the application of any criminal sanction pursuant to section 501 of this Act.".

(3) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 503(b) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 503(b)) is further amended—

(A) by striking "317(c) or" in paragraph (1)(C) and inserting "315(a), 317(c), or"; and

(B) by inserting "or in the case of a violation of section 315(a)," after "subparagraph (A) or (B)," in paragraph (2)(C).

(c) RESTORATION AND CORRECTION OF DIAL-A-PORN SANCTIONS.—

(1) AMENDMENT.—Section 223 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 223) is amended by striking subsection (b) and inserting the following:

"(b)(1) Whoever knowingly—

"(A) within the United States, by means of telephone, makes (directly or by recording device) any obscene communication for commercial purposes to any person, regardless of whether the maker of such communication placed the call; or shall be fined in accordance with title 18, United States Code, or imprisoned not more than two years, or both.

"(B) permits any telephone facility under such person's control to be used for an activity prohibited by subparagraph (A),

"(2) Whoever knowingly—

"(A) within the United States, by means of telephone, makes (directly or by recording device) any indecent communication for commercial purposes to any person under 18 years of age or to any other person without that person's consent, regardless of whether the maker of such communication placed the call; or

"(B) permits any telephone facility under such person's control to be used for an activity prohibited by subparagraph (A), shall be fined not more than $50,000 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both.

"(3) It is a defense to a prosecution under paragraph (2) of this subsection that the defendant restricted access to the prohibited communication to persons 18 years of age or older in accordance with subsection (c) of this section and with such procedures as the Commission may prescribe by regulation.

"(4) In addition to the penalties under paragraph (1), whoever, within the United States, intentionally violates paragraph (1) or (2) shall be subject to a fine of not more than $50,000 for each violation. For purposes of this paragraph, each day of violation shall constitute a separate violation.

"(5)(A) In addition to the penalties under paragraphs (1), (2), and (4), whoever, within the United States, violates paragraph (1) or (2) shall be subject to a civil fine of not more than $50,000 for each violation. For purposes of this paragraph, each day of violation shall constitute a separate violation.

"(B) A fine under this paragraph may be assessed either—

"(i) by a court, pursuant to a civil action by the Commission or any attorney employed by the Commission who is designated by the Commission for such purposes, or

"(ii) by the Commission after appropriate administrative proceedings.

"(6) The Attorney General may bring a suit in the appropriate district court of the United States to enjoin any act or practice which violates paragraph (1) or (2). An injunction may be granted in accordance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

"(c)(1) A common carrier shall not, to the extent technically feasible, provide access to a communication specified in subsection (b) from the telephone of any subscriber who has not previously requested of the carrier access to such communication if the carrier collects from subscribers an identifiable charge for such communication that the carrier remits, in whole or in part, to the provider of such communication.

"(2) Except as provided in paragraph (3), no cause of action may be brought in any court or administrative agency against any common carrier, or any of its affiliates, including their officers, directors, employees, agents, or authorized representatives on account of—

"(A) any action which the carrier demonstrates was taken in good faith to restrict access pursuant to paragraph (1) of this subsection, or

"(B) any access permitted—

"(i) in good faith reliance upon the lack of any representation by a provider of communications that communications provided by that provider are communications specified in subsection (b), or

"(ii) because a specific representation by the provider did not allow the carrier, acting in good faith, a sufficient period to restrict access to communications described in subsection (b).

"(3) Notwithstanding paragraph (2) of this subsection, a provider of communications services to which subscribers are denied access pursuant to paragraph (1) of this subsection may bring an action for a declaratory judgment or similar action in a court or before the Commission. Any such action shall be limited to the question of whether the communications which the provider seeks to provide fall within the category of communications to which the carrier will provide access only to subscribers who have previously requested such access.".

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 2(b) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 152(b)) is amended by striking "section 224" and inserting "sections 223 and 224".

(3) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall take effect 150 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

Subtitle B—Tongass Timber Reform

SEC. 6101. SHORT TITLE AND DEFINITION.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This subtitle may be cited as the "Tongass Timber Reform Act".

(b) DEFINITION.—As used in this subtitle, the term "the Act" means the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act (Public Law 96-487).

PART 1—ALASKA NATIONAL INTEREST LANDS CONSERVATION ACT AMENDMENTS

SEC. 6111. TO REQUIRE ANNUAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR TIMBER MANAGEMENT AND RESOURCE CONSERVATION ON THE TONGASS NATIONAL FOREST.

Section 705(a) of the Act (16 U.S.C. 539d(a)) is repealed effective October 1, 1989.

SEC. 6112. IDENTIFICATION OF LANDS UNSUITABLE FOR TIMBER PRODUCTION.

Section 705(d) of the Act (16 U.S.C. 539d(d)) is hereby repealed.

SEC. 6113. FUTURE REPORTS ON THE TONGASS NATIONAL FOREST.

(a) MONITORING.—Section 706(a) of the Act (16 U.S.C. 539e(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking "the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs" and inserting "the Committee on Agriculture and the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs"; and

(2) by striking the second sentence and inserting the following new sentence: "This report shall include a complete analysis of the losses or gains sustained by the United States Government with respect to long-term, short-term, and total sales of timber from the Tongass National Forest using information from the statement on revenues and expenses of the Timber Sale Program Information Reporting System and shall display total costs, unit costs (per thousand board feet of timber sold or released) and associated revenues, for the current and previous two years of operations.".

(b) STATUS.—Section 706(b) of the Act (16 U.S.C. 539e(b)) is amended as follows:

(1) Strike out "and (4)" and insert in lieu thereof "(4)".

(2) Strike out the period at the end of the section and insert in lieu thereof ", (5) the impact of timber management on subsistence resources, wildlife, and fisheries habitats, and (6) the steps taken by the Secretary of Agriculture under section 6141(c) of the Tongass Timber Reform Act.".

(c) CONSULTATION.—Section 706(c) of the Act (16 U.S.C. 539e(c)) is amended by striking out "and the Alaska Land Use Council" and inserting in lieu thereof "the southeast Alaska commercial fishing industry, and the Alaska Land Use Council".

SEC. 6114. ADMINISTRATION.

Section 705 (16 U.S.C. 539d) of the Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(e) FISHERIES PROTECTION.—In order to assure protection of riparian habitat, the Secretary of Agriculture shall maintain a buffer zone of a minimum of 100 feet in width within which logging shall be prohibited on each side of all anadromous fish streams in the Tongass National Forest, and their tributaries, except those tributaries with no resident fish populations which are intermittent in flow, or have flow of inadequate magnitude to directly influence downstream fish habitat.

"(f) TENAKEE SPRINGS ROAD PROHIBITION.—A vehicular access road connecting the Indian River and Game Creek roads may not be constructed, and the Secretary of Agriculture shall not engage in any further efforts to connect the city of Tenakee Springs with the logging road system on Chichagof Island.".

PART 2—TERMINATION OF LONG-TERM TIMBER SALE CONTRACTS IN ALASKA

SEC. 6121. TERMINATION.

Title V of the Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"SEC. 508. TERMINATION OF LONG-TERM TIMBER SALE CONTRACTS IN ALASKA.

"(a) FINDING.—The Congress hereby finds and declares that it is in the national interest to assure that valuable public resources in the Tongass National Forest are protected and wisely managed. Termination of the long-term timber sale contracts is necessary because the contracts prevent proper Forest Service management, allow the holders to concentrate logging in the rare, high-volume old growth forest most valuable for fish and wildlife habitat, threaten natural resource dependent communities and industries, and undermine competition within the southeast Alaska timber industry.

"(b) TERMINATION OF LONG-TERM TIMBER SALE CONTRACTS.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this section, the Secretary of Agriculture shall terminate the long-term timber sale contracts numbered 12-11-010-1545 and A10fs-1042 between the United States and Alaska Pulp Corporation, and between the United States and Ketchikan Pulp Company, respectively.

"(c) SUBSTITUTION OF SHORT-TERM TIMBER SALES.—The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to make available sufficient volumes of timber to meet actual market demand as determined pursuant to planning process specified in section 6 of the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resource Planning Act of 1974 and other applicable laws. Timber sales shall be offered for competitive bid and administered consistent with standard, short-term timber sales on other national forests.".

PART 3—WILDERNESS

PART 4—IMPROVEMENT OF THE MANAGEMENT OF THE TONGASS NATIONAL FOREST

SEC. 6141. MANAGEMENT OF THE TONGASS NATIONAL FOREST.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) the commercial fishing, recreation, timber, and tourism industries each make a substantial contribution to the economy of southeast Alaska and their ability to contribute in the future depends upon balanced planning and management of the Tongass National Forest; and

(2) the Secretary of Agriculture should plan and manage the Tongass National Forest in a manner that adequately protects and enhances fish, wildlife, and recreation resources, as well as timber, and should act in the long-term best interests of all natural resources dependent industries and subsistence communities in southeast Alaska.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to require the Secretary of Agriculture to—

(1) assess the extent to which planning and management of the Tongass National Forest prior to the enactment of this subtitle has differed from planning for, and management of, other national forests; and

(2) change, in conformance with laws applicable to the National Forest System, planning and management priorities regarding the Tongass National Forest so as to assure that greater emphasis is given to the long-term best interests of the commercial fishing, recreation, and tourism industries, subsistence communities in southeast Alaska, and the national interest in the fish and wildlife and other natural resources in the Tongass National Forest.

(c) DIRECTIVE.—The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed to take such steps as are necessary in current management practices and in revisions of the Tongass land management plan to achieve the purposes described in subsection (b).

(d) OLD-GROWTH FOREST MANAGEMENT.—In developing the land management plan for the Tongass National Forest pursuant to section 6 of the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, the Secretary shall—

(1) provide for sustained production of old-growth forest resources within the Tongass National Forest; and

(2) upon completion of the draft of such plan, which shall be completed in any event not later than one year after the date of enactment of this subtitle, report to the Committees on Agriculture and on Interior and Insular Affairs of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate on provisions incorporated into such plan to meet the objective set forth in paragraph (1). The report shall include—

(A) the definition of the term "old-growth forest" used for purposes of such plan;

(B) the quantity and distribution of old-growth forest in the Tongass National Forest;

(C) the management objectives and guidelines incorporated into such plan to provide for sustained production of old-growth forest resources;

(D) the criteria used to determine how to integrate old-growth forest management objectives into the plan; and

(E) the relationship between old-growth forest management objectives and other resource management goals affecting timber, fish, and wildlife, water quality, recreation, subsistence uses, and aesthetics.

Subtitle C—Oil Shale Claims Reform

SEC. 6201. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that:

(1) Certain oil shale mining claims were located pursuant to the General Mining Act of May 10, 1872, before enactment of the Mineral Leasing Act of February 25, 1920, which provides for the leasing of that mineral.

(2) Section 37 of the Mineral Leasing Act permitted oil shale claims that were "maintained in compliance with the laws under which initiated" to be perfected under such laws.

(3) The holders of those oil shale claims that have not been patented have been afforded ample opportunity to apply for patents over the last 69 years but have failed to take such action.

(4) Both the Mining Act of 1872 and the Mineral Leasing Act were intended to accomplish the development of the mineral resources of the Nation, including oil shale.

(5) Almost none of the oil shale claims have been developed for their oil shale in the intervening 69 years.

(6) The continued existence of these oil shale claims restricts the lands from the development of other minerals which may exist on the claimed lands.

(7) The continued existence of these oil shale claims interferes with the effective management of Federal lands.

(8) Issuing patents at this time for claims for which a right to patent has not vested would likely result in non-mineral development contrary to the intent of the Mining Act of 1872 and the Mineral Leasing Act.

(9) The lands embraced in an unpatented claim remain subject to the disposing power of the Congress until all conditions imposed by law for issuance of a patent are fully satisfied.

(10) Either the conversion of valid oil shale claims to leases or requiring diligent work toward production on such claims, together with the cancellation of invalid claims, would promote mineral development including for oil shale.

(11) It is in the public interest for these claims to be brought to some final resolution so that Federal lands affected may be properly managed for their mineral and other values in accordance with the laws and policies of the United States.

SEC. 6202. AMENDMENT TO THE MINERAL LEASING ACT.

Section 37 of the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 193) is amended by inserting "(a)" before the first sentence and by adding the following new subsections at the end thereof:

"(b)(1) The Secretary of the Interior shall undertake an expedited program to determine the validity of all unpatented oil shale claims referred to in subsection (a). The expedited program shall include an examination of all unpatented oil shale claims, including those for which a patent application has not been filed. If a claim is determined to be invalid, the Secretary shall promptly declare the claim to be null and void and cancel it.

"(2) Not later than 30 days after the enactment of this subsection the Secretary shall publish proposed regulations in the Federal Register containing standards and criteria for determining the validity of all unpatented oil shale claims referred to in subsection (a). Final regulations shall be promulgated within 180 days after the date such proposed regulations are published. The Secretary shall make a determination with respect to the validity of each such claim within 2 years after the promulgation of such final regulations. In making such determinations the Secretary shall give priority to those claims which meet the requirements of paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (c) and subsection (f).

"(c) Except as provided in subsection (f), after January 24, 1989, no patent shall be issued by the United States for any oil shale claim referred to in subsection (a) unless the Secretary of the Interior determines that, for the claim concerned—

"(1) a patent application was filed with the Secretary on or before January 24, 1989, and

"(2) all requirements established under sections 2329, 2330, 2331, 2333 of the Revised Statutes (30 U.S.C. 35, 36, and 37) were fully complied with by that date.

"(d)(1) The holder of each oil shale claim for which no patent may be issued by reason of subsection (c) shall make an election under paragraph (2) or paragraph (3) of this subsection. Not later than 30 days after the enactment of this subsection, the Secretary shall notify the holder of each such claim of the requirement to make such election. The holder shall make the election by certified mail within 60 days after receiving such notification. Failure to make an election within such period, shall be deemed conclusively to constitute a forfeiture of the claim and the claim shall be null and void.

"(2) The holder of a claim required to make an election under this subsection may elect to apply to the Secretary for a lease under section 21. The Secretary shall promptly provide a lease application to any claimholder who makes such election and the claimholder shall file an application for lease within 90 days after receiving such application. Upon receiving such an application the Secretary shall issue a lease to the holder of such claim for the area covered by the claim if the claim is determined to be valid. A lease under this paragraph shall be issued in accordance with the provisions of section 21 except as follows:

"(A) The term of the lease shall be 20 years and for so long thereafter as oil shale or associated minerals are produced annually in commercial quantities from the lease.

"(B) The acreage limitations contained in section 21(a) shall not apply.

"(C) The first and second provisos of section 21(a) shall not apply.

"(D) The limitation on the number of leases to be granted to any one person, association, or corporation contained in section 21(a) shall not apply.

"(E) The phrase 'oil shale and gilsonite' in the first sentence of section 21(a) shall be construed to include oil shale and all other associated minerals.

"(3)(A) The holder of a claim making an election under this subsection may elect to maintain the claim by complying with such requirements as the Secretary shall prescribe, by rule, to assure that, during each year that oil shale or associated minerals are not being produced from the claim in commercial quantities, the holder of such claim either makes payments in lieu of diligent development under subparagagph (B) or expends an amount annually which—

"(i) represents diligent efforts toward the production of oil shale or associated minerals (or both),

"(ii) includes substantial work on the claim, and

"(iii) represents not less than $5,000 worth of expenditure on the claim.

"(B) In lieu of making the expenditure described in clauses (i), (ii), and (iii) in any year, the holder of such claim may pay the Secretary an amount equal to $5,000 for the claim for that year. Moneys received by the Secretary under this subparagraph shall be disposed of in the same manner as moneys received pursuant to section 35, except that 50 percent of such moneys shall be transferred to the States and 50 percent shall be deposited in the General Fund of the Treasury.

"(C) The Secretary shall promulgate a final rule under this paragraph within 90 days after the enactment of this subsection. The annual expenditure requirement under such rule shall take effect on the first day of the first month of September which occurs more than 90 days after the enactment of this subsection.

"(D) The Secretary shall review the expenditures made for each such claim not less frequently than annually.

"(E) In applying the provisions of section 314 of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1744), the holder of a claim for which an election under this paragraph has been made shall comply with the provisions of subsection (a)(1) thereof only by filing (as provided in such provisions) an affidavit that the annual expenditure (or annual payments in lieu of diligent development) requirements of this paragraph have been met with respect to such claim or that oil shale or associated minerals are being produced from the claim in commercial quantities.

"(F) Failure to comply with the requirements of this paragraph and the requirements of such section 314(a)(1) shall be deemed conclusively to constitute a forfeiture of the claim and the claim shall be null and void. In addition, the Secretary shall declare a claim to be null and void and cancel it on the earlier of the following:

"(i) The date on which the Secretary determines that oil shale and associated minerals are exhausted.

"(ii) The date 100 years after the date of location of the claim.

On the date referred to in clause (ii), the Secretary shall make a determination under this subparagraph and if the Secretary determines that oil shale or associated minerals are being produced in commercial quantities there shall be substituted for such date the date on which the Secretary determines that oil shale or associated minerals cease to be produced from the claim in commercial quantities.

"(G) The provisions of sections 4 and 6 of the Act of August 13, 1954 (30 U.S.C. 524 and 526), popularly known as the Multiple Minerals Development Act, and the provisions of section 4 of the Act of July 23, 1955 (30 U.S.C. 612), popularly known as the Surface Resources Act, shall apply to claims for which an election under this paragraph has been made in the same manner and to the same extent as such provisions apply to the mining claims referred to therein.

"(e) In addition to other applicable requirements, any person who holds a lease pursuant to paragraph (2) of subsection (d) or who maintains a claim pursuant to paragraph (3) of subsection (d) or pursuant to subsection (f) shall be required, by regulation, to reclaim the site subject to such lease or claim and to post a surety bond or provide other types of financial guarantee satisfactory to the Secretary before disturbance of the site to insure such reclamation. The Secretary shall promulgate such regulations as may be necessary to implement this subsection.

"(f)(1) If a patent application was filed with the Secretary before January 24, 1989, for an oil shale claim referred to in subsection (a) but all requirements established under sections 2329, 2330, 2331, 2333 of the Revised Statutes (30 U.S.C. 35, 36, and 37) were not fully complied with by that date, the Secretary may issue a patent under this subsection notwithstanding the failure to meet those requirements by that date if such requirements are subsequently met and the Secretary determines the claim to be valid (after review as provided in subsection (c)). The patent shall be limited to the oil shale and associated minerals on such claim. Upon compliance with such requirements, such patent may be issued upon payment to the Secretary of $2,000 per acre.

"(2) Any patent under this subsection shall be subject to an express reservation of the surface of the affected lands, and the provisions of sections 4 and 6 of the Act of August 13, 1954 (30 U.S.C. 524 and 526), popularly known as the Multiple Minerals Development Act, and of section 4 of the Act of July 23, 1955 (30 U.S.C. 612), popularly known as the Surface Resources Act, shall apply to such claim in the same manner and to the same extent as such provisions apply to the unpatented mining claims referred to in such provisions.

"(3) No claimholder having a claim described in this subsection shall be required to make an election under subsection (d).".

(A) the Panamanian Defense Forces have ceased the harassment of persons in the public areas of Panama, and the President shall certify the finding to the Congress.

(2) TERMINATION OF AUTHORITY.—The President may terminate the authority described in subsection (b) on or after the later of—

(A) the end of the 90-day period beginning on the date on which a certification to the Congress under paragraph (1) has been made, or

SEC. 10121. REDUCTION IN PAYMENTS FOR CERTAIN PROCEDURES.

(a) REDUCTION IN PAYMENTS FOR IDENTIFIED OVERPRICED PROCEDURES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 1842(b) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395u(b)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(14)(A) In determining the reasonable charge for a physicians' service specified in subparagraph (C)(i) and furnished during the 9-month period beginning on April 1, 1990, the prevailing charge for such service shall be the prevailing charge otherwise recognized for such service for 1989 reduced by 15 percent or, if less, ½ of the percent (if any) by which the prevailing charge otherwise applied in the locality in 1989 exceeds the locally-adjusted reduced prevailing amount (as determined under subparagraph (B)(i)) for the service.

"(B) For purposes of this paragraph:

"(i) The 'locally-adjusted reduced prevailing amount' for a locality for a physicians' service is equal to the product of (I) the reduced national weighted average prevailing charge for the service (specified under clause (ii)) and (II) the adjustment factor (specified under clause (iii) for the locality.

"(ii) The 'reduced national weighted average prevailing charge' for a physicians' service is equal to the national weighted average prevailing charge for the service (specified under subparagraph (C)(ii)) reduced by the percentage change (specified under subparagraph (C)(iii)) for the service.

"(iii) The 'adjustment factor' for a locality is .54 plus the product of .46 and the geographic practice cost index value (specified under subparagraph (C)(iv)) for the locality.

"(C) For purposes of this paragraph:

"(i) The physicians' services specified in this clause are the physicians' services specified in the Appendix A of the explanation of subtitle B of title X (Committee on Ways and Means) contained in the report of the Committee on the Budget, House of Representatives, to accompany H.R. (the 'Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989'), 101st Congress, which specification is of physicians' services that have been identified as overpriced by at least 15 percent based on a comparison of payments for such services under a resource-based relative value scale and of the national average prevailing charges under this part.

"(ii) The 'national weighted average prevailing charge' specified in this clause, for a physicians' service specified in clause (i), is the national weighted average prevailing charge for the service in 1989 as determined by the Secretary using the best data available.

"(iii) The 'percent change' specified in this clause, for a physicians' service specified in clause (i), is the percent change specified for the service in the Appendix referred in clause (i).

"(iv) The geographic practice cost index value specified in this clause for a locality is such value specified for the locality in the Appendix referred to in clause (i).

"(D) In the case of a reduction in the prevailing charge for a physicians' service under subparagraph (A), if a nonparticipating physician furnishes the service to an individual entitled to benefits under this part, after the effective date of such reduction, the physician's actual charge is subject to a limit under subsection (j)(1)(D).".

(2) SPECIAL LIMITS ON ACTUAL CHARGES.—Section 1842(j)(1)(D) of such Act is amended—

(A) in clause (ii)(II), by inserting "or (b)(14)(A)" after "(b)(10)(A)", and

(1) REDUCTION IN CONVERSION FACTORS IN LOCALITIES UNDER FEE SCHEDULES.—Section 1834(b)(4) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395m(b)(4)) is amended—

(A) by redesignating subparagraphs (C) and (D) as subparagraphs (D) and (E), respectively, and

(B) by inserting after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

"(C) UPDATING FOR 1990.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), for radiologist services furnished during 1990 after March 31, the fee schedules shall be the fee schedules established for 1989.

"(ii) REDUCTION IN LOCAL CONVERSION FACTORS.—If the conversion factor for a locality otherwise applied under this subsection for services furnished during 1990 after March 31 (taking into account clause (i)) (in this clause referred to as the 'base conversion factor') exceeds the locally-adjusted conversion factor (as determined under clause (iii)) for the locality, the conversion factor shall be reduced to such locally-adjusted conversion factor, except that in no case shall such reduction exceed 15 percent of the amount of the base conversion factor. However, such reduction shall not apply to portable xray services.

"(iii) LOCALLY-ADJUSTED CONVERSION FACTOR.—For purposes of clause (ii), the locally-adjusted conversion factor for a locality is equal to the product of—

"(I) 92 percent of the national weighted average conversion factor for services furnished in 1989 (as estimated by the Secretary based on the best data available), and

"(II) the adjustment factor (specified under section 1842(b)(14)(B)(iii)) for the locality.".

(2) REDUCTIONS IN PREVAILING CHARGES FOR RADIOLOGY SERVICES NOT INCLUDED UNDER FEE SCHEDULES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Section 1842(b) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395u(b)), as amended by subsection (a), is further amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(15)(A) In determining the reasonable charge for radiology services (other than radiologist services as defined in section 1834(b)(6)) furnished during the 9-month period beginning on April 1, 1990, the prevailing charge for such services may not exceed the fee schedule amount for the services (determined under section 1834(b)).

"(B) In the case of a limitation on a prevailing charge for a radiology service under subparagraph (A), if a nonparticipating physician furnishes the service to an individual entitled to benefits under this part, after the effective date of such limitation, the physician's actual charge is subject to a limit under subsection (j)(1)(D).".

(B) SPECIAL LIMITS ON ACTUAL CHARGES.—Section 1842(j)(1)(D) of such Act, as amended by subsection (a)(2) of this section, is further amended—

(i) in clause (ii)(IV), by inserting "or (b)(15)(A)" before the comma at the end, and

(ii) in clause (iii)(II), by striking "or (b)(14)(A)" and inserting "(b)(14)(A), or (b)(15)(A)".

(3) STUDY OF PAYMENT FOR PORTABLE XRAY SERVICES.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall conduct a study of the costs of furnishing, and payments for, portable xray services under part B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act. Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall report to Congress on the results of such study and shall include a recommendation respecting whether payment for such services should be made in the same manner as for radiologists' services or on the basis of a separate fee schedule.

(c) COUNTING ACTUAL TIME UNITS FOR ANESTHESIOLOGY SERVICES AND CODIFICATION OF PREVIOUS AUTHORITY.—Section 1842 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395u) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(q)(1) The Secretary, in consultation with groups representing physicians who furnish anesthesia services, shall establish by regulation a relative value guide for use in all carrier localities in making payment for physician anesthesia services furnished under this part. Such guide shall be designed so as to result in expenditures under this title for such services in an amount that would not exceed the amount of such expenditures which would otherwise occur.

"(2) For purposes of payment for anesthesia services (whether furnished by physicians or by certified registered nurse anesthetists) under this part, the time units shall be counted based on actual time rather than rounded to full time units.".

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to services furnished on or after April 1, 1990. The addition of subsection (q)(1) to section 1842 of the Social Security Act (by the amendment made by subsection (c)) shall not be construed as requiring the Secretary of Health and Human Services to establish a relative value guide other than the one established under section 4048(b) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987.

SEC. 10122. REDUCTION IN PERCENTAGE INCREASE IN THE MEDICARE ECONOMIC INDEX.

(a) DELAYING MEI UPDATE UNTIL APRIL 1.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to the amendments made by this section, any increase or adjustment in prevailing or customary charges, fee schedule amounts, maximum allowable actual charges, and other limits on actual charges with respect to physicians' services and other items and services described in paragraph (2) under part B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act which would otherwise occur as of January 1, 1990, shall be delayed so as to occur as of April 1, 1990, and, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the amount of payment under such part for such items and services which are furnished during the period beginning on January 1, 1990, and ending on March 31, 1990, shall be determined on the same basis as the amount of payment for such services furnished on December 31, 1989.

(2) ITEMS AND SERVICES COVERED.—The items and services described in this paragraph are items and services (other than ambulance services) for which payment is made under part B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act on the basis of reasonable charge or on the basis of a fee schedule if the fee schedule is subject to an annual adjustment based on the percentage increase in the MEI (as defined in section 1842(i)(3) of such Act).

(3) EXTENSION OF PARTICIPATION AGREEMENTS AND RELATED PROVISIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law—

(A) subject to the last sentence of this paragraph, each participation agreement in effect on December 31, 1989, under section 1842(h)(1) of the Social Security Act shall remain in effect for the 3-month period beginning on January 1, 1990;

(B) the effective period for such agreements under such section entered into for 1990 shall be the 9-month period beginning on April 1, 1990, and the Secretary shall provide an opportunity for physicians and suppliers to enroll as participating physicians and suppliers before April 1, 1990;

(C) instead of publishing, under section 1842(h)(4) of the Social Security Act, at the beginning of 1990, directories of participating physicians and suppliers for 1990, the Secretary shall provide for such publication, at the beginning of the 9-month period beginning on April 1, 1990, of such directories of participating physicians and suppliers for such period; and

(D) instead of providing to nonparticipating physicians under section 1842(b)(3)(G) of the Social Security Act at the beginning of 1990, a list of maximum allowable actual charges for 1990, the Secretary shall provide, at the beginning of the 9-month period beginning on April 1, 1990, such physicians such a list for such 9-month period.

An agreement with a participating physician or supplier described in subparagraph (A) in effect on December 31, 1989, under section 1842(h)(1) of the Social Security Act shall not remain in effect for the period described in subparagraph (A) if the participating physician or supplier requests on or before December 31, 1989, that the agreement be terminated.

(the 'Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989'), 101st Congress,

"(II) 2 percent for other services (other than primary care services), and

"(III) such percentage increase in the MEI (as defined in subsection (i)(3)) as would be otherwise determined for primary care services (as defined in subsection (i)(4)).".

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"PAYMENT FOR PHYSICIANS' SERVICES BASED ON A RESOURCE-BASED RELATIVE VALUE FEE SCHEDULE

"SEC. 1848. (a) PAYMENT BASED ON RELATIVE VALUE FEE SCHEDULE.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Effective for all physicians' services (as defined in subsection (j)(3)) furnished under this part during a year (beginning with 1991, but only including, for 1991, services furnished on or after October 1), for which payment is otherwise made on the basis of a reasonable charge or on the basis of a fee schedule under section 1834(b), payment under this part shall instead be based on the lesser of—

"(A) the actual charge for the service, or

"(B) subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), the amount determined under the fee schedule established under subsection (b) for services furnished for any period during that year (in this subsection referred to as the 'fee schedule amount').

"(2) LIMITING REDUCTIONS AND INCREASES TO 15 PERCENT IN ANY YEAR.—

"(A) LIMIT ON INCREASES.—Subject to paragraph (3), in the case of a service in a locality (as defined in subparagraph (C)(ii)) for which the historical payment basis (as defined in subparagraph (C)(i)) is less than 85 percent of the fee schedule amount for 1991—

"(i) for services furnished in 1991 or 1992, there shall be substituted for the fee schedule amount 115 percent of the historical payment basis, and

"(ii) for services furnished in 1993, 1994, or 1995, there shall be substituted for the fee schedule amount 115 percent of the amount substituted under this subparagraph for services furnished in the previous year, but in no case shall the amount substituted under this clause exceed the fee schedule amount otherwise applicable.

"(B) LIMIT IN REDUCTIONS.—Subject to paragraph (3), in the case of a service in a locality for which the historical payment basis exceeds 115 percent of the fee schedule amount for 1991—

"(i) for services furnished in 1991 or 1992, there shall be substituted for the fee schedule amount 85 percent of the historical payment basis, and

"(ii) for services furnished in 1993, 1994, or 1995, there shall be substituted for the fee schedule amount 85 percent of the amount substituted under this subparagraph for services furnished in the previous year, but in no case shall the amount substituted under this clause be less than the fee schedule amount otherwise applicable.

"(C) DEFINITIONS.—In this paragraph:

"(i) HISTORICAL PAYMENT BASIS.—The term 'historical payment basis' means, with respect to a physicians' service furnished in a locality, the weighted average prevailing charge applied in the locality for the service in 1991 (as determined by the Secretary without regard to physician specialty and as adjusted to reflect payments for services with charges below the prevailing charge).

"(ii) LOCALITY.—The term 'locality' means such an area established under section 1842(b), as of the date of the enactment of this section, for purposes of payment for physicians' services under this part.

"(3) DIFFERENTIAL FOR NONPARTICIPATING PHYSICIANS.—In applying paragraph (1)(B) in the case of a nonparticipating physician, the fee schedule amount (or the amount substituted for such amount under paragraph (2)) shall be 95 percent of such amount otherwise determined.

"(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF NATIONAL FEE SCHEDULE.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish, by not later than October 1, 1991, a fee schedule that establishes payment amounts for all physicians' services furnished in all physician payment areas (as defined in subsection (j)(2)) in a year. Except as provided in paragraphs (2) and (3), each such payment amount shall be equal to the sum of the following 3 amounts:

"(A) WORK PAYMENT AMOUNT.—An amount equal to the product of—

"(i) the number of work relative value units for the service (determined under subsection (c)(2)(A)), and

"(ii) the work conversion factor established under subsection (d) for the year for the category of services.

"(B) OVERHEAD PAYMENT AMOUNT.—An amount equal to the product of—

"(i) the number of overhead relative value units for the service (determined under subsection (c)(2)(B)),

"(ii) the overhead conversion factor established under subsection (d) for the year for the category of services, and

"(iii) the geographic overhead index value (established under subsection (e)(1)) for services furnished in the payment area.

"(C) MALPRACTICE PAYMENT AMOUNT.—An amount equal to the product of—

"(i) the number of malpractice relative value units for the service (determined under subsection (c)(2)(C)),

"(ii) the malpractice conversion factor established under subsection (d) for the year for the category of services, and

"(iii) the geographic malpractice index value (established under subsection (e)(2)) for services furnished in the payment area.

"(2) TREATMENT OF RADIOLOGIST SERVICES AND ANESTHESIA SERVICES.—With respect to radiologist services for which payment may (but for this section) be made under section 1834(b) and anesthesia services for which a relative value guide has been established under section 4048(b) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987, the Secretary may waive the application of paragraph (1) or adjust the application of such paragraph in a manner so as to take into account the special schedules and guide developed for payment for such services.

"(c) DETERMINATION OF RELATIVE VALUE UNITS FOR COMPONENTS OF PHYSICIAN'S SERVICES.—

"(1) DIVISION OF PHYSICIANS' SERVICES INTO COMPONENTS.—In this section, with respect to a physician's service:

"(A) WORK COMPONENT DEFINED.—The term 'work component' means the portion of the resources used in furnishing the service that reflects physician time and intensity in furnishing the service. Such portion shall—

"(i) include activities before and after direct patient contact, and

"(ii) be defined, with respect to surgical procedures, to reflect a global definition including pre-operative and post-operative physicians' services.

"(B) OVERHEAD COMPONENT DEFINED.—The term 'overhead component' means the portion of the resources used in furnishing the service that reflects the overhead (as defined by the Secretary), other than overhead associated with malpractice expenses, in furnishing the service.

"(C) MALPRACTICE COMPONENT DEFINED.—The term 'malpractice component' means the portion of the resources used in furnishing the service that reflects malpractice expenses in furnishing the service.

"(2) DETERMINATION OF RELATIVE VALUE UNITS FOR EACH COMPONENT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (3), for purposes of this section for each physician's service—

"(i) WORK RELATIVE VALUE UNITS.—The Secretary shall determine a number of work relative value units for the service based on the relative resources incorporating physician time and intensity required in furnishing the service.

"(ii) OVERHEAD RELATIVE VALUE UNITS.—The number of overhead relative value units is equal to the product of—

"(I) the base allowed charges (as defined in subparagraph (D)) for the service, and

"(II) the overhead percentage for the service (as determined under paragraph (4)(C)(ii)).

"(iii) MALPRACTICE RELATIVE VALUE UNITS.—The number of malpractice relative value units is equal to the product of—

"(I) the base allowed charges (as defined in subparagraph (D)) for the service, and

"(II) the malpractice percentage for the service (as determined under paragraph (4)(C)(iii)).

"(B) EXTRAPOLATION.—The Secretary may use extrapolation and other techniques to determine the number of relative value units for low volume services and other services for which adequate data are not available, and to determine practice costs for specialties for which adequate practice cost data are not available.

"(C) ANCILLARY POLICIES.— The Secretary may establish ancillary policies (such as regarding the use of modifiers and local codes) as may be required to implement this subsection.

"(D) BASE ALLOWED CHARGES DEFINED.—In this paragraph, the term 'base allowed charges' means, with respect to a physician's service, the national average allowed charges for the service under this part for services furnished during the first 9 months of 1991, as estimated by the Secretary using the most recent data available, consistent with practice-cost data.

"(3) ADJUSTMENTS IN RELATIVE VALUE UNITS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may, from time to time, provide for the adjustment of the relative value units established under paragraph (2) to take into account changes in medical practice, coding changes, or new data on relative value components.

"(B) ADJUSTMENT FOR CERTAIN SERVICES.—The relative value units otherwise established under paragraph (2) are subject to adjustment by the Secretary under subsection (d)(2)(D) (to take into account excessive growth in volume and intensity or inadequate access).

"(4) COMPONENT PERCENTAGES.—For purposes of paragraph (2), for each physician's service or class of physicians' services, the Secretary shall determine a work percentage, an overhead percentage, and a malpractice percentage as follows:

"(A) DIVISION OF SERVICES BY SPECIALTY.—For each physician's service or class of physicians' services, the Secretary shall determine the average percentage of each such service or class of services that is performed, nationwide, under this part by physicians in each of the different physician specialties (as identified by the Secretary).

"(B) DIVISION OF SPECIALTY BY COMPONENT.—The Secretary shall determine the average percentage division of resources, among the work component, the overhead component, and the malpractice component, used by physicians in each of such specialties in furnishing physicians' services. Such percentages shall be based on national data that describe the elements of physician practice costs and revenues, by physician specialty.

"(C) DETERMINATION OF COMPONENT PERCENTAGES.—

"(i) WORK PERCENTAGE.—The work percentage for a service (or class of services) is equal to the sum (for all physician specialties) of—

"(I) the average percentage division for the work component for each physician specialty (determined under subparagraph (B)), multiplied by

"(II) the proportion (determined under subparagraph (A)) of such service (or services) performed by physicians in that specialty.

"(ii) OVERHEAD PERCENTAGE.—The overhead percentage for a service (or class of services) is equal to the sum (for all physician specialties) of—

"(I) the average percentage division for the overhead component for each physician specialty (determined under subparagraph (B)), multiplied by

"(II) by the proportion (determined under subparagraph (A)) of such service (or services) performed by physicians in that specialty.

"(iii) MALPRACTICE PERCENTAGE.—The malpractice percentage for a service (or class of services) is equal to the sum (for all physician specialties) of—

"(I) the average percentage division for the malpractice component for each physician specialty (determined under subparagraph (B)), multiplied by

"(II) by the proportion (determined under subparagraph (A)) of such service (or services) performed by physicians in that specialty.

"(D) PERIODIC RECOMPUTATION.—The Secretary may, from time to time, provide for the recomputation of work percentages, overhead percentages, and malpractice percentages determined under this paragraph.

"(5) CODING.—The Secretary shall establish a uniform procedure coding system for the coding of all physicians' services. The Secretary shall provide for an appropriate coding structure for visits and consultations. Such structure may incorporate the use of time in the coding for visits and consultations.

"(6) NO VARIATION FOR SPECIALISTS.—The Secretary may not vary the number of relative value units and conversion factors for the same physicians' service based on whether the physician furnishing the service is a specialist or based on the type of specialty of the physician.

"(d) ESTABLISHMENT OF CONVERSION FACTORS.—

"(1) FACTORS FOR 1991.— The Secretary shall, by not later than September 1, 1991, establish (and report to Congress concerning) the conversion factors to be used under subsection (b)(1)(A) for categories of services furnished on or after October 1, 1991. The conversion factors for each component shall be established in a manner so that the aggregate amount of payments under this part for each component of physicians' services furnished under this part during the last 3 months of 1991 will be the same as the aggregate amount of payments under this part for that component of such services if this section had not applied.

"(2) CHANGE IN CONVERSION FACTORS FOR SUBSEQUENT YEARS.—

"(A) INITIAL RECOMMENDATION.—By not later than February 1 of each year (beginning with 1991), the Secretary shall transmit to the Congress a recommendation on the appropriate change in the conversion factors for categories (as defined in subsection (j)(1)) of physicians' services to be applied in the following year. In making the recommendation, the Secretary shall consider the elements described in subclauses (I) and (II) of subparagraph (C)(ii), changes in volume or access to services, and such other factors as the Secretary deems appropriate. The Secretary also may recommend changes in the number of relative value units to be applied in the case of physicians' services (or classes of such services) for which the Secretary finds there has been an excessive growth in volume or intensity or inadequate access. In making recommendations for the conversion factors for a category of services, the Secretary shall consider how the rate of increase in expenditures under this part for such category of services compares to the target rate of increase in expenditures (as defined in subsection (f)(1)) for such category of services.

"(B) PHYSPRC REVIEW.—The Physician Payment Review Commission shall review the recommendation submitted under subparagraph (A) in a year and shall make its recommendation to Congress, by not later than May 1 of the year, respecting the changes in conversion factors (and any change in relative value units) for the following year.

"(C) PUBLICATION OF CONVERSION FACTORS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall cause to have published in the Federal Register, during the first 15 days of November of each year (beginning with 1991), the conversion factors which will apply under subsection (b)(1)(A) in the following year for each category of physicians' services.

"(ii) COMPUTATION.—Unless Congress otherwise provides, such factor for a year (beginning in a fiscal year) for a category of services shall be the conversion factor established under this subsection for the previous year for such category of services—

"(I) increased by the Secretary's estimate of the percentage increase in the appropriate update index (as defined in clause (iii)) for that following year,

"(II) increased or decreased by the same percentage by which percentage increase in the actual expenditures for the category of physicians' services under this part for the previous fiscal year was less or greater, respectively, than the target rate of increase in expenditures (as defined in subsection (f)(1)) for such category of services for that previous fiscal year; and

"(III) increased or decreased by such amount as the Secretary determines to be necessary so as to offset, in the aggregate amount of payments made under this part, any decrease of increase, respectively, in the relative value units made under subparagraph (D).

"(iii) APPROPRIATE UPDATE INDEX DEFINED.—In this subparagraph, the term 'appropriate update index' means, for services for which prevailing charges in 1989 were subject to a limit under the fourth sentence of section 1842(b)(3), the medicare economic index (referred to in that sentence), and for other services, such index (such as the consumer price index) that was applicable under this part in 1989 to increases in the payment amounts recognized under this part with respect to such services.

"(D) CHANGES IN RELATIVE VALUE UNITS FOR SERVICES WITH EXCESS GROWTH IN VOLUME OR INTENSITY OR FOR INADEQUATE ACCESS.—In the publication under subparagraph (C), the Secretary may specify changes to be made in the relative value units for specific physicians' services (or classes of such services) for which the Secretary has determined that there has been an excessive growth of volume or intensity or inadequate access.

"(e) GEOGRAPHIC PRACTICE-COST INDEX (GPCI) VALUES FOR OVERHEAD AND MALPRACTICE.—The Secretary shall establish—

"(1) FOR FISCAL YEAR 1990.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), for purposes of this section, the 'target rate of increase in expenditures' for a category of services for fiscal year 1990 is equal to the Secretary's estimate of the current baseline percentage increase (as defined in subparagraph (C)(i)), reduced by the OBRA-1989 percentage savings (as defined in subparagraph (C)(ii)), and further reduced by ½ percentage point.

"(B) ADJUSTMENT FOR HMO ENROLLMENT.—The Secretary shall adjust the target rates of increase in expenditures under subparagraph (A) so as to reflect differences in the actual proportion of HMO enrollees (as defined in paragraph (6)(B)) in fiscal year 1990 compared to such proportion in fiscal year 1989.

"(i) CURRENT BASELINE PERCENTAGE INCREASE.—The term 'current baseline percentage increase' means, for a category of services, the Secretary's estimate (based on the law in effect before the enactment of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989) of the percentage by which (I) the total actual expenditures under this part for such category of services furnished during fiscal year 1990, will exceed (II) the total actual expenditures under this part for such category of services furnished during fiscal year 1989.

"(ii) OBRA-1989 PERCENTAGE SAVINGS.—The term 'OBRA percentage savings' means, for a category of services, the Secretary's estimate of the percentage by which the current baseline percentage increase (as defined in clause (i)) exceeds such an increase if it were determined instead based on the law in effect after the enactment of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989.

(i) Physicians would be required to submit periodic reports of costs, which would include detailed information on practice expenses for, malpractice premiums for, and charges imposed for, and revenues received from, medicare covered services and other services.

(ii) Payment for the malpractice component would be paid, quarterly or annually, based on the proportion of each physician's malpractice premiums that corresponds to the portion of total revenues that are revenues from medicare covered services.

(B) means to assure that such organizations do not underserve their patients or shift care outside the organization (in order to exceed the target rates of increase in expenditures).

(d) WAIVERS.—

(1) AUTHORITY.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall, with respect to the demonstration project under this section, waive any requirement of part A or F of title IV of the Social Security Act that, if applied, would prevent the State from (i) carrying out the project in accordance with subsection (b), or (ii) effectively achieving its purposes, but only to the extent necessary to enable the State to carry out the project.

For purposes of such section 403(i), payments made by the State under the project shall be treated as payments made under the State plan approved under section 402(a) of such Act.

The evaluation plan shall include groups of project participants and control groups assigned at random in the field trial conducted in accordance with subsection (b)(1)(A).

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall identify for disallowances under section 403(i) of the Social Security Act any State the error rate of which exceeds—

(A) in the case of any particular fiscal year after fiscal year 1980 and before fiscal year 1983, the greater of—

(B) in the case of any particular fiscal year after fiscal year 1982 and before fiscal year 1991, the national average error rate for the fiscal year after fiscal year 1980 and before fiscal year 1991 for which such rate is the least.

(b) CALCULATION OF ERROR RATES.—

(1) ERROR RATE DEFINED.—As used in this section, the term "error rate", means, with respect to a State and a fiscal year, the ratio of the State's erroneous excess payments (as defined in section 403(i)(1)(C) of the Social Security Act, as in effect before the date of the enactment of this Act) for a fiscal year to its total payments under the State plan approved under section 402(a) of such Act for such fiscal year.

(2) TECHNICAL ERRORS EXCLUDED FROM STATE ERROR RATES.—In calculating a State's error rate for any fiscal year, the Secretary shall exclude all technical errors made with respect to benefits under the State plan approved under section 402(a) of the Social Security Act for such fiscal year.

(3) TECHNICAL ERRORS INCLUDED IN NATIONAL AVERAGE ERROR RATES.—In calculating the national average error rate for any fiscal year, the Secretary shall include all technical errors made with respect to benefits under any State plan approved under section 402(a) of the Social Security Act for such fiscal year.

(4) TECHNICAL ERROR DEFINED.—As used in this subsection, the term "technical error" means—

(A) the failure to—

(i) secure or apply for a social security number;

(ii) register for a work program;

(iii) assign child support rights;

(iv) assign rights to third party payments; or

(v) obtain monthly reports from cases for which such reports were required; and

(B) any error which, when made, did not result in a change in any benefit amount.

(c) STATE OPTIONS.—Any State identified under subsection (a) for a disallowance with respect to a fiscal year may—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Within 12 months after the date any such appeal is filed in accordance with paragraph (1), the Board shall decide whether to affirm or reverse the decision to impose a disallowance on the State, and shall determine the amount (if any) of any disallowance.

(B) FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED.—In determining the amount of any disallowance to impose on a State with respect to an error rate for a fiscal year, the Board shall, at a minimum, take into account—

(i) whether the error rate is sufficiently statistically valid and reliable to support a conclusion that the error rate exceeded the tolerance level;

(ii) whether the errors included in the error rate represented misspending of funds;

(iii) whether the State could have cost-efficiently avoided errors included in the error rate through means that would not have interfered with the purposes of the State program of aid to families with dependent children under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act;

"(I) the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905);

"(II) the aggregate of the State's payments under the State plan approved under this part for such fiscal year; and

"(ii) FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED.—In determining the amount required to be paid by a State under paragraph (1)(A)(i) with respect to an error rate for a fiscal year, the Board shall take into account—
